AMERICANS GET GUNS TO GUARD HOMES IN CHILE

Other Foreign Residents of Santiago Join in Defense Move.

AIR BASE AND COAST FORCE ASSIST REBELS

Capital Tense, Despite Official Promise of Early Peace Pact.

Santiago, Chile, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—Americans and other foreign residents of Santiago arranged tonight for armed patrols as a precaution against disorders threatened by the Chilean naval mutiny and revolutionary agitation among workers.

Pending a final agreement between the government and the mutinous sailors, the Chilean residents of the exclusive Los Leones district joined with 300 Americans, Germans, Britons and French in asking the cabinet for arms to protect their homes. The government was understood to have granted the request.

The situation in the capital was tense, despite a government announcement that the signing of a peace agreement was expected "any hour." Foreign residents of Los Leones obtained shotguns to defend themselves in event of an emergency.

The Santiago street car strike, which presumably had been settled this morning, was resumed and strikers clashed with carabineers in the streets. Demonstrators stoned street cars run by strike breakers. The coastal guard base at Valparaiso joined the mutiny.

Details of the government's peace agreement "in principle" with the sailors at Coquimbo were completed by the rebel "general staff" and Rear Admiral Eduardo von Schroeder, the cabinet's representative. Officials said final acceptance was expected immediately.

U. S. Air Base in Revolt.

The ministry of marine reported, however, that efforts to prolong the uprising were under way. A radio message from the naval air base at Quintero, near Valparaiso, was intercepted, disclosing that the air base had joined the movement and appealed to the sailors to continue resistance against the cabinet.

At Valparaiso 200 naval school students and about 800 officers and men joined the uprising, but surrendered to government forces because of a shortage of ammunition. Santiago, Valparaiso and other large cities were reported calm under martial law and strict censorship.

Senator Manuel Hidalgo, Communist candidate for president, was busy all day meeting Communist leaders on the outskirts of the city. The Communist party has gained enormously as a result of business depression, unemployment and the political unrest of the last few days and the chances of Hidalgo in the forthcoming election have been greatly improved. Communist agitation has been rife in the principal cities and Indalecio Tellez, commander of the Santiago area under a decree of martial law, issued a warning to the public against "the dangers of communism."

Simultaneously, military garrisons were ordered to accept volunteers with or without military training, if they take an oath to uphold public order.

Blames "Salaried" Classes.

Hidalgo, in an interview, said the naval mutiny was not planned by Communists, but was purely an outbreak against "the salaried classes."

"The movement is a result of the capitalistic system, which favors the rich," Hidalgo said. "That system is collapsing. I regard the present movement with much sympathy. Those

Kidnaping Alleged In Cigarette War

Former Salesman Asserts Company Sought to Kill Rival's Repute.

New York, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—The season's most mysterious kidnaping case in New York took on a new aspect today when it was reported that George J. Wemyss, Massachusetts salesman who claims to have been shanghaied, professed himself to be an employe of a tobacco company, engaged in spreading propaganda against a rival cigarette manufacturing firm.

Wemyss, according to detectives, was employed to destroy the reputation of a certain brand of cigarettes. When he left the company last July, it was said, he furnished the Federal Trade Commission with a report on the work he had been doing.

A Correction

No bonds of the Arlington Hotel of Washington were ever owned or in the possession of Emory L. Coblentz, president of the Central Trust Co., or the F. H. Smith Co. or any Maryland banks.

In its article on the Central Trust Co. and its branch banks yesterday The Post, in quoting Assistant Attorney General Dodds, mentioned the Arlington Hotel without stating that the hotel referred to is in Pittsburgh. The Post takes this opportunity to assure its readers the hotel referred to is not the Arlington Hotel in this city.

Doolittle Sets Record In Cross-Nation Flight

Hawks' Mark Smashed; Trip Is Made in Less Than 12 Hours.

Cleveland, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—Jimmy Doolittle, former Army pilot and stunt king, streaked his green and orange biplane from coast to coast today in the record-breaking time of 11 hours and 15 minutes, hopped back to Cleveland and then took a ride to his home town of St. Louis. He arrived there at 11:22 p. m. Eastern standard time.

Doolittle established the new transcontinental speed record in a dash from Burbank, Calif., to Newark, N. J., as part of the national air races. He stopped at Newark only long enough to refuel and headed his oil-streaked plane back to Cleveland.

A few minutes later he was on his way to St. Louis, another 500 miles.

MEXICO FAST TO NIP CHINESE MOVE HERE

Seeking U. S. Good Offices in Expulsion Dispute Is Called Unacceptable.

Mexico City, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—The foreign relations department tonight declared the action of the Chinese Legation in Washington in requesting American good offices in behalf of Chinese nationals in Mexico was "unwarranted because of its imprudence," and could not be accepted by the Mexican government.

"The Mexican authorities have been acting in accord with the circumstances, and the Chinese Legation has offered its full cooperation to avoid difficulty for its nationals," a statement from the foreign relations department said.

"The interference of the Chinese Legation in Washington is unwarranted because of its imprudence and can not be accepted by the government of Mexico."

Nogales, Ariz., Sept. 4 (A.P.).—Mexican federal troops were stationed today in Hutabampo, Navajoa and Cajeme, cities in the State of Sonora where anti-Chinese feeling is strongest, and given orders to protect Chinese against violence.

The migration of the Chinese from Sonora and Sinaloa State was near a standstill today as the result of an indefinite extension of the time limit for their expulsion. Original orders called for their departure by tomorrow. About 400 already have crossed the border into the United States to be returned to China.

W. C. Wong, Chinese vice consul here, expressed hope an agreement would be reached with the Mexican government whereby the expulsion edict would not be enforced. He estimated upward of 6,000 of his countrymen in the northern Mexican states are affected by it.

At Imuris, 45 miles south of here, agitators drove the Chinese out with guns and many were forced to leave their possessions behind, Wong said.

Hundreds of the Orientals were gathered along the border seeking legal entry into the United States when Gov. Elias Calles of Sonora and federal officials at Mexico City notified Wong the expulsion time limit had been extended and protection would be given Chinese.

Three hundred and six Chinese have entered this country legally

Tax Raise Is Inevitable, LaGuardia Declares

New York, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—A warning that an increase in Federal income taxes was inevitable despite "misleading" statements from Washington was voiced today by Representative Fiorella H. LaGuardia in a statement denouncing the Treasury's flotation of a billion dollar long-term bond issue.

The bond issue will add $50,000,000 to the annual budget, "while the administration is talking economies," the independent New York Republican said.

Attempt to Kill Italian Official in Paris Fails

Paris, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—An attempt to assassinate Gen. Emilio de Bono, Italian minister of colonies and former governor of Tripoli, was frustrated today as the General was en route to visit the French Colonial Exposition.

JAPAN ORDERS CHINA TO EXPLAIN SLAYING

Relations Become Strained as Report From Mukden Is Delayed.

Tokyo, Saturday, Sept. 5 (A.P.).—The foreign office today asked Mukden for an immediate explanation of the shooting a month ago by Chinese troops of Capt. Shintaro Nakamura, a Japanese, as a spy.

The action was taken when reports said a commission which went to the scene of the killing to conduct an investigation returned last Wednesday to Mukden, capital of Manchuria. Previously Mukden authorities, when an explanation was asked, had requested more time for the commission to complete its inquiry.

Nakamura and another Japanese, a Mongol and a Russian were shot by a Chinese firing squad despite the fact, the war department said, that each held certificates from Chinese officials permitting them to make maps in Manchuria and Mongolia.

The incident and the apparent slowness of Mukden authorities in making an explanation has aroused keen resentment here.

Newspapers asserted the war department was resolved to take "certain resolute steps" unless the Nakamura case was satisfactorily settled. The Asahi said Japanese war officials "might resort to force," and the Nichi-Nichi declared they "might decide upon troop concentration somewhere in Manchuria."

Gen. Jiro Minami, minister of army, told the cabinet the Japanese government should take a firm stand. He denounced failure of the Chinese government to reply to Japan's protest against the shooting of Nakamura.

While the Japanese foreign office awaited a reply to its protest to China's Nationalist government, press dispatches from Nanking quoted Foreign Minister C. T. Wang as saying that bandits, not soldiers, killed the Nakamura party.

Several other acts in recent months have aroused Japanese popular feeling against the Chinese. The attack by Chinese mobs upon Koreans at Wanpaoshan, Manchuria, in a dispute over land and irrigation rights was the forerunner of rioting by Koreans against Chinese in Seoul and other districts of Korea.

Stirred by agitators on various pretexts, the boycott against Japanese goods in China is said to have become stronger.

Hoover Is Told South Will Back Him in '32

(United Press.)

The South will support President Hoover in the next presidential campaign because of his prohibition stand, R. B. Craeger, Republican national committeeman from Texas, told the Chief Executive yesterday.

Following a conference with the President, Mr. Craeger said that he believed prohibition would be the major issue in the South in the next campaign, and that no wet Democrat stood a chance of election.

Graf Crosses Equator On Her Return Voyage

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Sept. 5 (Saturday) (A.P.).—The dirigible Graf Zeppelin, communicating with the Zeppelin works at 12:20 a. m. today, gave her position as 7.20 degrees north lattitude, 28.50 degress west longitude.

The position is well above the equator and more than half the distance from Pernambuco, Brazil, which the Graf left yesterday, to the Cape Verde Islands.

QUIMET FACES CHICAGO STAR IN GOLF FINAL

M'CARTHY IS VICTIM OF SEMIFINAL MATCH

Bows to Westerner by 3 and 2 After Staging Valiant Finish.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

Beverly Country Club, Chicago, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—Sharpshooting his way back toward the peak he has failed to reach since his triumph of 17 years ago, the veteran Francis Ouimet today turned back the "boy wonder" of Virginia, Billy Howell, and will play the home-town favorite, Jack Westland, tomorrow for the amateur golf championship of the United States.

With a finishing flash of inspired golf reminiscent of the prewar days when he was first open and then amateur champion of the Nation, a boy wonder then himself, Ouimet outlasted the 19-year-old Howell to win by 2 and 1. The Richmond youth battled gamely right down to the last shot.

Ouimet dealt the finishing blow by sinking a 20-foot putt on the thirty-fifth green for a birdie deuce after Billy had come with a few inches of holing out from a trap.

McCarthy's Rally Checked.

A gallery of nearly 3,000 spectators cheered this brilliant finale shortly after Westland checked the last-ditch rally of Maurice J. McCarthy, jr., to eliminate New York's favorite, 3 and 2, on the thirty-fourth hole. McCarthy started out a 2-to-1 choice, but he was never a match for the cool and skillful Chicago star until it was too late. Six down and six to go, McCarthy put on a typical rally, capturing three straight holes, but missed a three-footer to win the thirty-fourth and passed out of the picture.

The 36-hole final over the battleground of Beverly will start at 9 a. m. (C. S. T.) tomorrow and bring together two players whose national tournament experience hardly could be more sharply contrasting. This is Ouimet's fifteenth national amateur battle since 1913, whereas Westland qualified only once before, in 1926 at Baltusrol, where he was eliminated by Watts Gun in the first round.

Third Time in Final.

Ouimet, a semifinalist eight times altogether, twice before has been in the final. He beat Jerry Travers for the crown in 1914, but lost to Chick Evans, of Chicago, in 1920. Evans helped "root" Ouimet in this afternoon, as a fellow veteran, and then found himself in a quandary trying to make his choice for tomorrow, with a fellow Chicagoan in the title round for the first time since Chick himself last appeared there, in 1927. Ouimet is 38 years old and Westland 27.

Westland, the Chicago district champion, has contributed some of the most brilliant golf in the first "Jonesless" tournament since before the war. First to tee off in the qualifying round Monday, Jack shot the first nine in just 33 strokes, 3 under par. He led the whole field

Atlantic City May Get G.O.P. '32 Convention

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 4 (A.P.).—C. Bascom Slemp, National Republican committeeman from Virginia and former secretary to President Coolidge, said today this city stood a good chance of getting the Republican National Convention in 1932.

Other cities being considered are Chicago, Cleveland and Philadelphia, he said.

20 NEW BEATING CASES LOOM WITH 5 POLICEMEN INDICTED; OFFICIALS SLOW ON STAPLES

Commissioners to Hold Own Inquiry Before Taking Action.

U. S. ATTORNEY'S AIDS CLEARED BY REPORT

The District Commissioners will conduct their own inquiry into charges that former Policeman Orville Staples was dismissed from the Police Department on perjured testimony and will not be guided solely by the recommendation of the grand jury that he be reinstated, it was learned last night.

Not having received the official report from the grand jury, the District Commissioners refused comment.

It is unlikely, it was said, that any definite action regarding the recommended reinstatement of Staples, the dismissal of Patrolman Joseph H. Hunt, or the reprimand of police officials for negligence and incompetence will be taken for several days.

Representative Thomas L. Blanton, former counsel to Staples, in a telegram to The Post declared that "Police Trial Boards are farcical and must be repealed and power given to the Commissioners to discharge policemen for good cause."

Sends Brief to Hoover.

Representative Blanton also said that he had mailed a letter to President Hoover with a copy of the brief which he filed with the District Commissioners in appealing the Staples dismissal.

"The uncontroverted evidence of any probative force and effect whatever, quoted in the brief from a stenographic report of the Trial Board proceedings, shows conclusively that Staples was framed," Representative Blanton said.

The official report of the grand jury is expected to reach the Commissioners today, at which time they will request the transcript of the testimony given before the Police Trial Board which convicted Staples of conduct prejudicial to the force. This transcript is made up of 1,623 pages of legal cap.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride, whose office prepared the charges against Staples, said last night: "We leaned over backwards in trying to give him a fair trial."

Capt. C. P. M. Lord, one of the members of the board which convicted Staples and who has since retired, said last night: "Staples was given a fair trial. We reached our conclusion on the basis of the evidence."

Verdict Was Unanimous.

Another member of the board, who preferred not to be quoted, said: "Everything possible was done to insure a fair trial for Staples. All the witnesses were carefully examined by the corporation counsel before they were permitted to testify. If I had thought the charges were not substantiated by the evidence I would have voted for acquittal. As it was, the verdict was unanimous."

Among other things, the grand jury reported its belief that "there exists in the police department a false sense of loyalty supplemented by a vicious system of reprisals for those who tell the truth."

Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby, who has supervision of the police

Six Believed Drowned In Battleship Explosion

Yokohama, Japan, Sept. 5 (Saturday) (U.P.).—A gasoline explosion shook the battleship Nogoro today.

Naval authorities said they feared the blast threw six sailors into the sea, drowning them. Thirty more were missing or injured. The explosion showered the ship with flaming gasoline, causing extensive damage.

Dry Agents to Be Drinkless; 'Evidence Tippling' Barred

It Isn't Necessary Any Longer, Woodcock Says in Letter Forbidding Practice; Urges Arrest-After-Purchase Plan as Most Effective Blow at Speakeasies.

(Associated Press.)

Federal prohibition agents yesterday were forbidden to drink intoxicants as a means of obtaining evidence.

Director Woodcock of the Prohibition Bureau, in a lengthy letter to all members of the Federal dry army, said it was better to proceed against speakeasies by cutting off their supply, but that in any event drinking by agents to avert suspicion was "the older method."

When it was necessary to act against the speakeasy directly, he said, it was preferable to advance "by the observation method or by the method of purchase of liquor, not for consumption."

"I strongly recommend to you for use against certain types of speakeasies," he said, "the method of immediate arrest after purchase. This method is certain and direct. It eliminates the necessity for consuming intoxicating liquor and if followed by careful intensive investigation should lead to the disclosure of the real parties in interest."

In conclusion the Federal dry chief went on record for almost the first time as saying "we are slowly winning this fight against the commercial trafficker in intoxicating liquor." He added that no one in the Prohibition Bureau "has any reason to be discouraged."

"One little bit of effort more on the part of all of us," he said, "will make victory assured."

Col. Woodcock plans to sail from New York for Miami, Fla., at noon today, to continue his inspection of the South, thus completing his circuit of every State in the Union in the year he has been in office. His letter was made public here upon telephoned orders from his Salisbury, Md., home.

The letter recommended increased use of the injunction against speak-

Report of Grand Jury Upon Staples Charges

The text of the grand jury report exonerating Orville Staples and recommending a reprimand for all members of the Police Department identified with the Staples case, follows:

To the Honorable Justice of the District of Columbia Supreme Court sitting in Criminal Court:

We, the grand jury of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia in and for the July term, A. D. 1931, had presented to us on August 10, A. D. 1931, by the United States attorney in and for the District of Columbia the affidavit of one Frederick A. Schenck, in which he confesses his part in causing untrue charges to be made against one Orville Staples, at the time a member of the Metropolitan Police Department, upon which charges the said Staples was brought to trial before a Police Trial Board, found guilty and dismissed from the police force.

In this same affidavit the said Schenck states that others and himself gathered false testimony for the purpose of substantiating these charges; that many members and officials of the Metropolitan Police Department were guilty of corruption and graft and, further, that two members of the United States attorney's office were guilty of misconduct in office, in connection with their handling of the cases of United States vs. Clifton Young and Estelle Robinson and certain cases of United States vs. Bess Dodson.

On the above date the United States attorney requested this body to thoroughly investigate these charges and report to this honorable court.

We wish to advise that an exhaustive investigation, as requested, was made, numerous witnesses were heard, including Frederick A. Schenck. During the course of the investigation we had the full cooperation and assistance of Leo A. Rover, United States attorney, and special agents of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice. We have also been rendered valuable assistance by Robert J. Allen.

We, the grand jury, report the following findings from our investigation:

We find the charges against the members of the United States attorney's office to be false in their entirety.

We have been unable to substantiate in any particular any of the charges of corruption and graft against any of the officials of the Metropolitan Police Department.

We find that the testimony against Orville Staples, on which he was dismissed from the Metropolitan Police Department, was false in its entirety; that it was perjured testimony by incompetent witnesses.

We believe that this perjured testimony was secured by then members

Far East Republic Buys 15,000,000 Bushels on Long-Time Credit.

(Associated Press.)

The Farm Board has sold China 15,000,000 bushels of wheat. Completion of the negotiations for the transaction was announced yesterday by President Hoover. The grain will be used to feed the hungry in the flooded regions along the Yangtze River.

Carl Williams, Farm Board member, said a minimum of 50 per cent of the wheat would go as flour, and that shipments were expected to begin the latter part of this month.

The Chinese Government, he said, agreed to pay equal installments on the wheat in 1934, 1935 and 1936. The price is to be market quotations at the time of shipment, with interest at 4 per cent.

Millers complained when Brazil put an embargo on flour soon after that government had exchanged 1,050,000 bags of coffee for 25,000,000 bushels of wheat held by the board.

Shipping interests also protested after they learned the Brazilian contract made no provision for carrying the grain or coffee in United States vessels.

Chairman Stone, of the Farm Board, said recently he would endeavor to provide that some of the grain involved in the Chinese negotiations, then in progress, be carried in American bottoms.

President Hoover said the Chinese government "undertakes the trans-

Car Running Board Mounted by Bandit

Theft Attempt Is Made When Red Light Halts Auto.

Activities of the running board bandit who held up several motorists several months ago were recalled last night when William H. Hunton reported to police that an attempt was made to rob him as his auto drew up for a red light at Sixteenth and S streets northwest.

Mr. Hunton, who lives at 3900 Cathedral avenue, said that the bandit leaped onto the left running board of his car and, flourishing a pistol, demanded his money. The driver's response was to step through the door on the other side and run for help. When he returned to the car a few moments later with a taxi driver, the bandit got out of the machine and fled at their approach.

Police broadcast a lookout for a man, who was declared to be about 30 years old, 5 feet 9 inches, 150 pounds, medium build, smooth face and wearing a dark suit and gray cap.

1,000 Escape Theater When Flames Leap Up

New York, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—A crowd estimated by police at more than 1,000 persons made a hasty exit from the Grand Opera House, motion picture theater at Twenty-third street and Eighth avenue, tonight as flames suddenly sprang up near the front of the orchestra. One man was burned slightly and a woman became hysterical.

Police said they were investigating information from members of the audience that two men were seen to drop a lighted match near the place where the fire began about 10 p. m.

BARCELONA STRIKE OFF AFTER 20 DIE

Women Storm Cathedral and Snipe at Police as Communists Riot.

Barcelona, Spain, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—The general strike which has paralyzed Barcelona for two days had been declared off tonight, but the situation remained grave after a day in which the crackle of machine gun and rifle fire was heard throughout the city.

With at least 20 persons killed, more than 40 wounded and hundreds arrested as a result of two days of disturbances, Barcelona's women took a hand in sporadic fighting between police and Communists today.

Hundreds of women stormed the cathedral, where panic-stricken citizens had taken refuge, and shot at police from the roofs. The police replied to the sniping, killing at least one woman and wounding several others.

Sobbing women, in the streets and on balconies, after failing to induce their men folk to return to work by threats of a "wives' strike," beseeched them on bended knees to return home to safety.

Syndicalist leaders called off the strike this afternoon when the authorities displayed an unusual show of force, but there were indications of further trouble. Martial law has not been declared, but Spanish bluejackets were landed to protect the civil population.

Foreign visitors mostly have remained indoors to avoid trouble, but two were arrested and later released when they ventured on the streets without identity cards.

Every main street was patrolled by strong police guards. Anyone who refused to stop when challenged was shot, in some cases with machine gun bullets.

Guards stood at every street corner with carbines cocked and citizens who ventured out had to move with their hands above their heads.

Groups replied to the display of force with assaults on public buildings. The police station, postoffice and town hall were besieged in turn, but in each case the raiders were driven off by police fire.

Although police tried to centralize the area of the outbreak by putting up barricades outside of which the public was kept, noncombatants of all ages suffered. Aged people and children scurried to safety when a storm of bullets swept down a street in the danger area.

At several points where police charges were made the crowds cried "Up with the Soviet" as they scattered wildly.

Troops, called in to assist the police during the afternoon, were fired

Department of Justice Inquiry Spreads to Other Precincts.

The Department of Justice was hard at work last night on approximately 20 additional complaints of third-degree tactics in the Police Department, soon to follow the four which resulted in the indictment of five policemen yesterday on charges of assault.

The grand jury swept its investigation of police brutality to a climax in four of the five cases presented to it by Department of Justice agents with indictments against Policemen George E. Perry, William R. Laflin, William T. Burroughs and William C Grooms and Detective James Mostyn, all attached to the First Precinct.

Mystery surrounds the delay in action on a fifth case brought before the jury, inasmuch as the names involved and the complainant are still kept secret. It is understood that this case was not complete and that several contradictory statements were made before the jury. That body only returned indictments in cases which appeared "clear cut," it is understood.

Surface Merely Scratched.

Investigation and action in the four cases reported upon by the jury yesterday only scratched the surface in the police investigation. This part of the inquiry was centered around the First Precinct and men on duty there. There is every indication that additional cases under preparation by the Department of Justice will result in charges against men in several other precincts from many other complaints.

The indictments accuse the five policemen of using fists, a rubber hose and a wooden club on prisoners in custody at the precinct. In addition to James Henry Harker, 22-year-old baker, whose charges brought about the widespread investigation, the alleged victims of the beatings are Walter W. Johnson, Preston Brooks and John F. Miller.

The indictments charge Mostyn with beating three prisoners on August 22; Laflin of assault on two prisoners named in the Mostyn indictments on the same day, and Burroughs and Grooms are charged jointly with Mostyn and Laflin in the alleged attack on Harker on August 22.

Perry is accused of clubbing John F. Miller on August 21.

Crowd in Courtroom.

There was little of the sensational surrounding the presentation of the indictments to Justice F. Dickinson Letts, of the District Supreme Court. While the courtroom was jammed, the presentation took only two minutes, and there was no demonstration.

Indeed, it is doubtful if many of the spectators understood clearly what was going on. The grand jury filed into Justice Lett's courtroom promptly at 12:30 o'clock and ranged themselves in a semicircle before the bench.

As soon as a bulky bundle of documents, which included the report of the Orville Staples case and about 75 routine cases, was presented to Justice Letts, court was immediately adjourned.

Perry, Laflin and Mostyn were in the courthouse at the time the indictments were returned, but did not enter the courtroom. They had appeared with their attorney, James O'Shea, to give bond. As soon as the formality of presenting the indictments to the court was over, the three accused policemen went to the clerk's office and bond of $1,000 was arranged for them by Milton Kronheim.

Perry Suspended at Once.

Another formality was dispensed with as soon as the indictments were in. Perry, whose name had not been previously connected publicly with the third degree investigation, was immediately suspended from the Police Department as soon as the indictment was reported to headquarters. Laflin, Burroughs, Grooms and Mostyn had previously been suspend-

BANK CLOSING TIES COUNTY BOND CASH

Frederick's $400,000 Was Partly to Meet Issue; Most of It Unsecured.

Money to meet a Frederick County, Md., bond issue which comes due in October was revealed yesterday as tied up by the receivership of the Central Trust Co. of Frederick and its eleven branches in Western Maryland counties.

When this money and the rest of the $14,000,000 due to depositors can be paid is not known. George W. Page, State banking commissioner and receiver of the trust company, said yesterday that liquidation can not begin until all assets have been listed, and this will be a "long and slow process."

Meanwhile the reorganization of the chain with each branch as a separate bank was being considered. A meeting was held yesterday in Sykesville, at the call of the mayor, to discuss such a reorganization. In Poolesville, where the only Montgomery County branch is located, it is known that the local board of directors has hopes of reorganizing as a separate bank. The Poolesville bank, which has been in the system only one year, has deposits of nearly $400,000. State Senator Emory L. Coblentz, president of the defunct chain, said several days ago that a reorganization on a separate basis is "possible."

Frederick County funds in the Frederick bank amounted to about $500,000. Of this, approximately $100,000 is secured under the trust account law, the remainder being in an unsecured account. The county commissioners had funds in the bank of $300,000, and the office of the registrar of wills had about $100,000 in another account.

A sinking fund of $100,000 has been built up to meet the bond issue which is due in October, and this amount is understood to be among the unsecured funds. There is also another bond issue which comes due in January, it is reported.

Trust funds form an indefinite part of the assets of the bank, but it is understood that these may have preferred treatment over the other deposits. The status of the Central Trust Co. Building Association is also not clear, as it is not known whether the funds of this organization are affected by the receivership of the bank. The building association is owned and operated by the trust company.

Another auxiliary of the Coblentz chain which is being studied is the Central Securities Corporation, which was formed after the Wardman reorganization here in 1928. At the time of the reorganization, about $2,225,000 worth of debentures were issued to Mr. Coblentz in place of mortgages which he held on Wardman property. Whether or not the securities corporation holds any of these debentures is not known, but it is said that a number of other persons in the section do hold the certificates. With the Wardman properties in the hands of receivers, the value of the debentures is thought to have largely disappeared.

Whether the bank holds any securities of the F. H. Smith Co. is not yet known, the State officials who are listing the assets said yesterday. Mr. Coblentz, president of the bank, had business dealing with G. Bryan Pitts, head of the Smith Co., and was indicted here following his testimony during Pitts' trial last fall. The indictment charges him with "aiding in the commission of perjury."

National Bank in Sykesville.

The meeting in Sykesville yesterday resulted in a decision to organize a national bank in that town, Millard H. Weer, mayor, said last night. The citizens will make no attempt to reorganize or salvage the Sykesville branch of the Central chain. The national bank will be organized at once, Mr. Weer said, and capital of $25,000 has already been pledged.

While the closing of the Central and its branches has not caused any other suspensions, industry is still crippled in the smaller towns by the lack of banking facilities. In Frederick other banks have taken over the pay rolls of the manufacturing plants, but many of the Central's eleven branches were in towns where there were no other banks. Nevertheless, it is reported that there is an atmosphere of optimism, and that most depositors expect to be paid in full. Stockholders, however, expect to lose to some extent.

Small Towns Feel Closing.

The string of banks in Frederick, Montgomery, Carroll, Howard and Washington Counties, failed to open Thursday morning, and a receiver was appointed that afternoon at the request of Attorney General W. Preston Lane. Mr. Coblentz issued a statement blaming the closing on "frozen" assets and the "miserable publicity" to which he had been subjected during the Smith Co. investigation.

Walker's Passage On Liner Paid For Mayor's Bank Accounts Fail to Show That Money Came From Him.

New York, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—The Times says definite information that Mayor Walker's passage to Germany on the liner Bremen was paid for was obtained today by the Hofstadter legislative committee, which was told, however, that the passage of David Maier, traveling companion of the mayor, was not paid.

Friends of Walker have insisted that Maier had nothing to do with the sailing of the mayor and his party on the Bremen, and that Maier's presence on the boat was a coincidence. Maier once served a prison term for bribery.

The committee, investigating the municipal government, has not ascertained how the mayor's passage was paid. The mayor's bank accounts show no checks of payment for the passage. The committee has been informed that the payment was not made by Maier.

Paris, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York was made a commander of the Legion of Honor today. The honor, one of the highest that France bestows, came to him on the eve of his private audience with President Doumer, whom he will visit tomorrow.

STOLL QUIZZES MAN ON POLICE GUN PLAY

Inspector Is Not Ready to Report Upon Firing at Autos.

Inspector Louis J. Stoll, who yesterday began an investigation of police use of firearms in two recent cases, last night had reached no conclusions as to police culpability. He said his inquiry was incomplete.

One of the occupants of a car Motorcycle Policeman J. O. Hite is alleged to have fired on Thursday night, after Hite and another policeman chased the auto for two miles across the city, was questioned yesterday by Inspector Stoll. Futile efforts were made to question another occupant, he said.

The unidentified driver of the car disregarded a traffic light at New York and New Jersey avenues. The policemen gave chase and Hite was alleged to have fired twice. The driver escaped before police overhauled the car. Two colored occupants were arrested and subsequently released. It was the second time this week police had been charged with gun play.

Inspector Stoll said he is attempting to ascertain whether the policemen were justified in using their guns. He was unable to say when his report will be ready.

Former Policeman Guilty in Tax Case

Federal Jury Asks Mercy for Man Who Was on Vice Squad.

New York, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—A verdict of guilty with a recommendation of mercy was returned by a Federal jury today in the trial of James J. Quinlivan, former vice squad policeman, on income tax evasion charges.

In his charge to the jury, Judge Harry D. Anderson said the chief evidence consisted of bank accounts and expenditures of Quinlivan and his wife.

He pointed out the former vice squad member received a yearly salary of $2,500 and $42 monthly insurance payments. The Government introduced evidence showing the policeman and his wife had several bank accounts, one under a fictitious name. The Government contended Quinlivan and his wife had taxable income of approximately $12,000.

Plea for Ban on Wives As Workers Held Futile

(Associated Press.)

A resolution by postal supervisors in San Francisco convention, asking the United States Civil Service Commission to drop all married women from the rolls to give unemployed men postoffice jobs, was characterized today by Commissioner George R. Wales as "rather futile."

"There is nothing in the world we could do on the matter without the authority of Congress," Mr. Wales said. "We can't act on the request of postal supervisors."

Britain Starts Use Of Credit Provided

Only About 10 to 15 Per Cent of $200,000,000 Is Drawn.

New York, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—Great Britain has drawn upon the $200,000,000 credit for the use of the British treasury recently placed here among a consortium of bankers, to a small extent, it became known today.

It was said the amount used was possibly 10 to 15 per cent of the total, and it was understood that all of the out-of-town bank members of the group were not sharing in the amounts so drawn at the present time.

Bank members of the consortium take the view that the credit should be used and welcome the drafts made upon them. While all the members of the group receive a "stand by" commission, whether or not the credit is used. The amount of their profits increase as the credit is called into use.

Dog Saves Five; Dies In Fire on Boardwalk

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 4 (A.P.).—The barking of a little dog aroused five persons from sleep early today, and enabled them to escape from a $25,000 fire which swept their apartments over boardwalk stores.

In the confusion the dog was forgotten. He died of suffocation.

Counterfeiting Arrests Are Reported in Texas

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 4 (A.P.).—The Times Herald said today that it had learned Secret Service agents were holding a score of suspects in jail at Tyler and about five at Dallas for alleged manufacture and distribution of $10 Federal Reserve notes, which they had been issuing in Dallas, Tyler, Corsicana, Amarillo and other towns in the Southwest.

20 NEW POLICE CASES LOOM AS FIVE MEN ARE INDICTED

ed, shortly after Harker's charges were made public through The Post.

In the Harker case the indictment recites that Mostyn, Laflin, Burroughs and Grooms "with force of arms in and upon one James H. Harker, then and there being, feloniously and unlawfully did make an assault with a certain dangerous weapon, to wit, a piece of rubber hose, in the right hand of him, the said James A. Mostyn, then and there had and held; and that the said James A. Mostyn, the said William R. Laflin, the said William T. Burroughs and the said William C. Groomes, with the said dangerous weapon, then and there feloniously and unlawfully did strike, beat, bruise and wound the said James H. Harker in making the assault aforesaid; against the form of the statute in such case made and provided, and against the peace and Government of the United States."

A second count in this indictment charges that the four policemen "then and there, with their hands, did beat, wound and ill treat and inflict other wrongs and injuries upon" Harker.

Harker Is Present.

Harker himself was at the courthouse yesterday as the indictments were returned, in company with his attorney, S. McComas Hawken, who pressed his client's accusations against the policemen.

"Through the efforts of the Department of Justice in ferreting out the truth, an innocent man has been saved an unjust term in the penitentiary," Mr. Hawken declared.

The grand jury ignored housebreaking charges against Harker. The charges had been presented to the grand jury previously by the police.

The grand jurors alleged that Walter Johnson was attacked by Mostyn and Laflin on the day Harker was alleged to have received his beating. This indictment declared that the pair "did unlawfully make an assault" and "with their hands did beat, wound and ill treat" Johnson and commit other "wrongs and injuries."

The third indictment charged that Preston Brooks was assaulted by Mostyn alone on August 22. The detective, the indictment charges, "with his hands did beat, wound and ill-treat" Brooks.

Two counts were handed down against Perry. The first recites that he "feloniously and unlawfully did make an assault with a certain dangerous weapon, to wit, a wooden club, and that he used the club to "strike, beat, bruise and wound the said John F. Miller."

The second count charged that Perry "did unlawfully make an assault" on Miller with his hands.

Maximum 10-Year Penalties.

Maximum sentences of 10 years in the penitentiary are possible on conviction of the charges placed against the four policemen in the Harker case. The charge against Perry is also regarded as a felony and would subject an offender, if convicted, to possible imprisonment for 10 years. The charges in the other cases, of simple assault, carry with them, in the event of a conviction, a maximum penalty of only one year imprisonment.

Shortly after the indictments were returned Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby Police Commissioner, had a conference at headquarters with Maj Henry G. Pratt, Superintendent of Police, and Inspector William S. Shelby, assistant superintendent.

Search Is Planned For Arctic Airman

No Report Is Received From Their Taking Aid to Guide.

Anchorage, Alaska, Sept. 4.—An airplane was made ready here today to search for Frank Dorbandt, famous Arctic flier, unheard from since he left here yesterday for Kenai Peninsula, where a New York hunting party guide was stricken with an intestinal attack and reported near death.

Dr. A. Malkowskie, Alaska railroad surgeon, and "Slim" Crocker, who traveled continuously for 24 hours by horseback and by a small boat over treacherous waters to summon aid for the guide, Henry Lucas, were with Dorbandt.

Lucas, a veteran guide, was conducting the party of J. Watson Webb, of New York. Dorbandt returned here a few days ago from New York with his wife in a new plane he had bought for his private use.

Chemists' Spokesman Deplores Price-Cuttting

(Associated Press.)

Commodity price cutting was deplored yesterday by W. D. Huntington, chairman of the executive committee of the Manufacturing Chemists Association of the United States, who said "declining prices are gradually bringing industry to ruin."

"The time has come," he said, "when a definite stand must be taken to hold prices firm and check selling below cost." He predicted that unless an attempt is made to correct the present demoralized condition of the commodity markets, the situation will be much worse during the coming year.

El Paso and Las Cruces Banks Suspend Business

El Paso, Tex., Sept. 4 (A.P.).—The closing of the First National Bank of El Paso today was followed by a heavy run on the First National Bank of Las Cruces, N. Mex., which also closed. A national bank examiner took charge of the El Paso institution.

The June 30 statement of the bank showed deposits of $9,262,429 and resources and liabilities of $11,306,593. The bank was capitalized at $1,000,000. W. F. B. McSain, president of the Las Cruces bank, said it was in sound condition and would reopen in a few days.

Railways' Income Is 2.19 Per Cent

Economics Bureau Puts Figure Under That in Rate Plea.

(Associated Press.)

The Bureau of Railroad Economics yesterday announced net railway operating income of the larger railroads of the country was at the annual rate of 2.19 per cent of their book value during the first seven months of 1931.

This figure, based on reports of 171 railroads having gross revenues of $10,000,000 a year or over, coincides closely with claims of the carriers in their petition for permission to increase rates 15 per cent. The petition asserts that for the first four months of the year net earnings were 2.24 per cent annually.

Net railway operating income for the 171 railroads was $295,085,044, out of which interest on bonds and other similar charges must be paid before stockholders get dividends. During the same period last year net railway operating income for the same group was $460,448,586, or 3.48 per cent. Gross operating revenues during the seven months was $2,564,583,852, compared with $3,149,353,490 in 1930, and operating expenses were $1,996,901,513, compared with $2,405,567,388. While revenues dropped 18.6 per cent, expenses declined only 17 per cent.

Ash-Removal Contractor Is Suicide in New York

New York, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—Howard H. Van Etten, son of Charles Van Etten, president of the Brooklyn Ash Removal Co., killed himself today.

News of his suicide was met at the offices of the legislative investigating committee with the disclosure that the contract between the company and the department of sanitation has been under scrutiny by the committee for two months. Neither of the Van Ettens, however, had been called as witnesses.

North Yorkshire Towns Are Isolated by Floods

Birmingham, England, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—Remote country villages of north Yorkshire were isolated by floods which tonight were spread over a large area of the Midlands and northern England.

Leeds, Sheffield, Northampton, Rotherham and other Midland cities reported water flowing down the streets in low-lying areas. Traffic was discrganized and in some cases citizens were forced to take refuge in the upper stories of houses.

MEXICO MAY JOIN LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Reports Circulate in Capital as Important Statement Is Promised.

Mexico City, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—Reports that Mexico would shortly become a member of the League of Nations were circulated today in well-informed circles. Asked to comment on them, Foreign Secretary Genaro Estrada said that probably early next week he would have an important statement to make on the subject.

In his annual message at the opening of Congress Tuesday President Orita Rubio touched on the league question.

"It is my duty to announce," the president said, "that the old situation of Mexico in regard to that higher organism (the League) has changed almost radically, and that in an exchange of good will and effective collaboration we have reached a point which promises a brilliant future."

The president recalled that for more than a year Mexico had been cooperating with the League through an observer at Geneva and by attending various technical conferences under League auspices.

Mexico until recently held aloof from the League, as she was not included among the nations that assisted in forming it.

Porto Rican Controversy With Land Bank Ended

San Juan, Porto Rico, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—Difficulties between the Federal Land Bank, of Baltimore, and Porto Rican borrowers have been ended, the Agricultural Association announced today.

Three officials of the bank—Charles S. Jackson, I. P. Whitehead and George P. Alberson—said in a letter to José Pesquera, president of the Farmers' Association, that the interests of the farmers and the bank were identical and that past misunderstandings had been eliminated. The bank has lent $12,000,000 here and will continue to advance money to eligible individuals and to establish intermediate credits for cooperatives, it was announced.

Cuban Strike Peace Sought.

Havana, Cuba, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—The Havana Electric Railway Co. today made a new attempt to end the month-old strike of its motormen and conductors by offering 35 per cent of the gross income for payment of the men. Strike Looms in Western Mexico.

Mazatlan, Mexico, Sept. 4 (U.P.). A strike of all workers on the Southern Pacific Railroad of Mexico who belong to affiliated unions was considered likely today after the men refused to consider a 10 per cent wage cut.

Capital Man Gives Court Foshay Data

Anderson, Once Chief Bookkeeper, Fraud Case Witness.

Minneapolis, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—The Government today sought to prove a charge that seven former officials of the defunct W. B. Foshay enterprises, being tried on charge of using the mails to defraud, authorized stock dividends when financial condition of the concerns did not warrant dividends.

The specific allegation was that dividends were paid from capital instead of from earnings, and that this was done in a scheme to deceive investors. The mails, the Government charges, were used to distribute literature regarding the dividends.

With Melvin S. Anderson, Washington, D. C., former head bookkeeper of the W. B. Foshay Co., on the witness stand in Federal District Court, Fred Horwitz, special Government prosecutor, offered additional documentary exhibits.

U. S. Fruit Exports Show Big Increase

Short Apple and Pear Crops in Europe Add to Demand.

(Associated Press.)

American exports of fruit during the year ended June 30 showed a decided increase as a result of short apple and pear crops in Europe and greater sales efforts.

The Commerce Department announced yesterday that fresh fruits exported during the year totaled $66,529,000 in value against $50,468,000 the previous year and dried fruit, $29,661,000 against $28,622,000.

Grapefruit exports were valued at $4,121,000 as compared with $3,513,000 in the previous year. Apples exported were valued at $35,996,000 against $20,342,000 and pears, $6,615,000 against $4,210,000. Other fruits showed either increases or were well maintained as compared to the previous year.

easles as "a powerful and easily applied weapon." Woodcock said the "basic strategy" of its use was that it brought the property owner "to the side of law, order and decency."

Although asserting flatly he believed it was no longer necessary for agents to consume intoxicating liquor, Woodcock added:

"It is conceivable that there are still places in some districts where the older method will be necessary. If such places exist administrators are authorized to give special permission in advance for agents to consume intoxicating liquor upon the premises, but this permission must be given in advance for each particular place before any agent in this service will be permitted to consume intoxicating liquor."

In further recommending the method of immediate arrest after purchase, he pointed out it removed all doubt as to the identify of the seller "and the delay and circumlocution of the search warrant system."

GREEN OFFERS NEW EMPLOYMENT CURE

Would Allocate Proportional Quota of Unemployed to Each Industry.

(Associated Press.)

A plan for solving the unemployment problem by allocating a proportional quota of the jobless to each industry was advanced yesterday by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

The plan will be presented by the labor leader to the committee of President Hoover's Unemployment Relief Organization which is studying methods of creating work. Green is a member of this group.

"The best relief that can be offered an unemployed person is a job," Green said. "The only way to immediately provide jobs for over five million persons is to get the cooperation of those who control jobs for putting into effect a general plan on a uniform scale.

Who Are Employers.

"Those who control jobs are employers and their technicians, those who supply the credit, and the workers who must work under the plan agreed upon.

"A conference of representatives of such groups called by the President of the United States should determine the general plan and allocate to each industry its quota of unemployed. Each industry would then arrange to do its part. Such a method would absorb the majority of the unemployed.

"There would, of course, be expense connected with such a plan. This expense should be balanced against the funds that would otherwise have to go into relief if the unemployed did not get work and against the costs of a business depression.

Called Productive Investment.

"The method of budgeting the unemployed would give them the opportunity to earn their livelihood. It is a productive investment of capital whereas capital spent in relief is not consumed directly.

"If every industry will take on its quota of the unemployed, reduce the work-week for all while maintaining wage rates, our united industries will pull us up to the level of better business."

Green has sought to have President Hoover call a conference of industrialists and labor leaders to discuss his plan. In case such a conference is not called he will advise his proposal to the employment committee of the President's organization.

This committee, headed by Harry A. Wheeler, of Chicago, is composed of industrialists, economists and labor leaders.

Another member was added yesterday to the advisory committee set-up by President Hoover to aid Walter S. Gifford, national relief director. The new member is E. W. Lane, of Jacksonville, Fla.

Six States Now Ready For Own Relief Work

President Hoover yesterday said that six States have indicated they can take care of their own unemployment relief problem next winter and others are preparing to do so.

The President also announced 20 appointments as State representatives and members-at-large of the national advisory committee he has set up to assist Walter S. Gifford, national relief director, in preventing distress.

President Hoover made public a letter from Gov. Buck, of Delaware, saying the citizens of that State would provide the necessary funds to take care of their unemployed.

Governors of California, Michigan, Illinois, Connecticut and New York have taken similar action, the President said. The White House previously had made public letters from the first four giving assurance their States would handle their own relief.

The White House said no such letter had been received from Gov. Roosevelt, of New York, and the President apparently counted him in with the others because of his message to the New York Legislature proposing a $20,000,000 relief fund.

The President said other governors were making surveys of the problem in their States and probably some of them would be added to the list.

The President's appointments to the advisory committee brought the total membership of that group to 84.

The State representatives were:

S. P. Bush, Columbus, Ohio; Charles C. Gates, Denver, Colo.; Carl R. Gray, Omaha, Nebr.; Charles DeB. Claiborne, New Orleans, La.; William Stern, Fargo, N. Dak.; Christie Bennet, Columbia, S. C.; Stuart W. Cramer, Cramerton, N. C.; H. D. Huston, Nashville, Tenn.; Edward W. Lane, Jacksonville, Fla.; W. H. Maytag, Newton, Iowa; J. Walter Drake, Detroit, Mich.; James W. Hook, New Haven, Conn.; C. H. Banfield, Portland, Oreg., and Charles C. Glover, Washington, D. C.

Members appointed at large were:

Harry A. Wheeler, Chicago, Ill.; Tom K. Smith, St. Louis, Mo.; Mrs. Robert E. Speer, president of the National Board of the Y. W. C. A., New York; Mrs. Inez Richardson, White House conference on child health and protection, Washington; Leonard P. Ayers, Cleveland, and James R. Garfield, Cleveland.

Bishop Not Heard On Campaign Aid

Cannon Church Inquiry Here Explained by Dr. Ainsworth.

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 4 (A.P.).—Bishop W. N. Ainsworth of the Methodist Episcopal Church South today said nothing pertaining to the recent Senate committee inquiry was included in charges against Bishop James M. Cannon, jr., who was investigated by a church committee in Washington last February.

"In view of the numerous inquiries that are reaching me since a committee of the United States Senate began an investigation of Bishop Cannon, it seems proper for me to state that no charge concerning the use or misuse of funds by Bishop Cannon in the political campaign of 1928 was before the church committee of investigation which met in Washington last February," Bishop Ainsworth said.

"That committee of twelve ministers considered fully every charge that complainants presented to it. Nothing pertaining to the subject of the recent Nye inquiry was brought before them."

FOURTEEN HUNDRED AND NINE H STREET

JURY LAYS SLAYING OF FIVE TO POWERS

Claim of Sheriff That Man Confessed Accepted by Coroner's Panel.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 4 (A.P.).—The State tonight had the findings of a coroner's jury to support charges that Harry F. Powers killed Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lemke, Worcester, Mass., Mrs. Asta Eicher, Chicago, and the latter's three children at his Quiet Dell "murder farm" near here.

Informed by Sheriff W. B. Grimm that Powers had confessed the killings to him, the jury speedily returned a verdict in each case that the victims died at the hands of the man held in the county jail here. The jurors found the women and two daughters of Mrs. Eicher died by strangulation and that 12-year-old Harry Eicher was killed by blows from a blunt instrument, probably a hammer.

A coroner's jury in West Virginia does not make a recommendation of charges to be preferred. Prosecutor Will E. Morris attended the inquest and will take the next step in the State's attempt to convict Powers by laying the case before the grand jury which meets in November.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 4 (U.P.). Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lemke, victim of Harry F. Powers, the alleged "Bluebeard murderer," drew $4,000 from two banks at Northboro, Mass., before she left for West Virginia last July 28, according to her sister, Mrs. Charles L. Fleming.

Mrs. Fleming came to Clarksburg today to make positive identification of her sister's body, one of five found in Powers' burial ground. She was accompanied by her husband.

District Attorney Will E. Morris said today that he has succeeded in tracing most of Powers' alleged "blood money," which was stored in a safety deposit box at a local bank. Powers had, according to reports, about $4,000 in the bank, but it is said that his attorney withdrew about $1,000 before the prosecutor got the order for seizure.

Brookhart Asks Rate Plea Denial

Senator Tells I. C. C. That Basic Rail Valuation Is "Watered."

Chicago, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—Senator Smith W. Brookhart, of Iowa, asked the Interstate Commerce Commission today to deny the request of railroads for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates, reduce what he termed their "watered basic valuations" and cut their investment return from the 5¾ per cent allowed under the transportation act to 3 per cent.

Appearing with C. E. Huff, president of the Farmers National Grain Corporation, and Edward J. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, as witnesses against the boost, Brookhart charged that the railroad valuation of $19,000,000,000 set by the commission in 1920 was $7,000,000,000 "water."

U. S. Gold Surplus Result of Unrest

Sent Here Through Fear of Weak Regimes, Say Officials.

(Associated Press.)

The accumulation of gold in the United States, now totaling nearly $5,000,000,000, is regarded by the administration as a problem for other than governmental action. The accumulation, it was said, resulted from the flight of capital here from many parts of the world and not of a trade balance.

At least $2,000,000,000 of the surplus, it was estimated, was sent here because of a lack of confidence of other peoples in their financial institutions. Governmental authorities, with this view, have expressed resentment of charges that the surplus is due to American hoarding.

MEXICO QUICK TO NIP CHINESE MOVE HERE

from border ports, giving bond that they will continue to the Pacific Coast and sail for China. Seventy-five others, charged with illegal entry, are held in Arizona jails.

The action to expel the Chinese from northwestern Mexico was taken by state authorities and local committees following intense nationalistic campaigns directed particularly at Chinese merchants operating numerous grocery stores and restaurants. Unemployment and hard times among Mexicans aggravated the situation.

(Associated Press.)

A formal request that the United States exercise its good offices in connection with the expulsion of Chinese from Mexico was received yesterday at the State Department from the Chinese Legation. Yung Kwai, charge d'affaires ad interim, mentioned only the State of Sonora, although previous complaints also have referred to the State of Sinaloa.

Acting Secretary Castle of the State Department took the request under consideration. No official action on it is expected until Tuesday, although earlier in the day Secretary Castle said that if formally requested to do so the United States would do what it could to assist the Chinese Minister at Mexico City.

FARM BOARD SELLS WHEAT TO CHINESE

portation," and would give equal opportunity to American ships to carry the 15,000,000 bushels.

Williams said American shipping interests wanted to carry the grain at their "own rates." He added they were charging from 50 cents to $1 more a ton on the average for shipments to China than the vessels of other nations.

"They can get the business if they can meet the competition," he said. "The next move is up to them."

He said that the grain was white wheat now stored in Pacific ports. The flour would be milled in this country, he said, before shipment, adding that most of the grain would be sent from Puget Sound ports.

"It will relieve serious congestion at Pacific terminal ports," he said.

A minimum of 50,000 tons monthly is to be shipped, after the movement begins, and more if possible.

Although the amount settled upon in the deal is 450,000 tons, approximately 15,000,000 bushels, Williams said it was possible that China might wish to purchase additional grain. He said in that event new negotiations would be necessary. There are still a few minor points to be settled, he said, in the present deal, but it was regarded as closed.

Parleys which resulted in the sale of the wheat became known in August. There were several exchanges before agreement was reached. The Farm Board has disposed of approximately 75,000,000 bushels of wheat this year, but the amount it still holds is unofficially estimated at close to 200,000,000 bushels.

In announcing completion of the negotiations, the President said:

"The Chinese government has accepted the proposal of the Farm Board for the purchase of wheat and flour to be used exclusively for famine relief purposes on terms of payment over a period of years.

"The Chinese government undertakes the transportation, and it has given assurances that it will give equal opportunity to American flag ships in the charters made for this purpose.

"The amount at present settled is about 15,000,000 bushels."

HAWES FINDS STAND FOR ISLAND LIBERTY

Missouri Senator Returns From Philippines; Deplores False News Stories.

(Associated Press.)

Philippine people were said yesterday by Senator Hawes (Democrat), of Missouri, upon his return from the islands, to be unitedly and "without qualification" for independence.

Senator Hawes came back full of wrath at some newspaper stories published in the United States about his trip and the attitude of the Philippine people.

He denied stories published in this country that Americans were stoned at the "liberty" parade given in his honor in Manila, and other stories that school children had been forced to take part in the parade.

Action by Congress Seen.

Senator Hawes was confident that the next Congress would pass Philippine independence legislation, and said he believed it would follow the lines of the Hawes-Cutting bill reported to the Senate last session by the insular affairs committee. This provides for independence to the Philippines by vote of a plebiscite at the end of five years.

The Missourian stated he did not believe Japan would care for the islands, and he did not think she would take them. Anyway, he said, the Washington arms limitation treaty of 1922 left the islands almost defenseless from an American strategical view.

"Without qualification whatever," he said, "the Philippine people are for independnece. That was one of the purposes of my trip to the islands. At the hearings before the Senate committee it was intimated that the people and the leaders were really not for independence. I say they are unitedly for it.

Political Issue Opposed.

"I believe every one realizes that Congress must now define the status of the Philippines not only for the benefit of the Philippines but for the benefit of the Philippines and Americans. I hope it will not become a political issue in this country. Of course, Senator Cutting, of New Mexico, who is coauthor of our bill, is a Republican."

Senator Hawes said his condemnation of newspaper stories from the Philippines did not refer to accounts carried by the press associations. He produced copies of the speech he made before the Philippine Legislature, and noted that he did not advocate anything not provided in the bill reported to the Senate by its insular committee last session.

He attributed the "untruthful stories" of his visit to writers employed by a Manila newspaper antagonistic to independence.

Carmen McDonald Calls Mate Fraud

Girl, Formerly of Capital, Charges Her Money Was Squandered.

San Francisco, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—Carmen Mae MacDonald, former Washington, D. C., society girl, filed suit for annulment from James Ballard MacDonald here today, alleging she lost $30,000 through her marriage to him.

The couple wed in Baltimore on August 29, 1929. At that time, she said in her suit, MacDonald told her he was the son of a New York appellate court judge.

She said this proved untrue. Mrs. MacDonald also said she gave him $30,000 to help promote the "Airways Corporation of America." He used her influence, she said, to help him sell stock to her Washington friends.

Capone Hearing Postponed.

Chicago, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson informed the Government attorneys today he would not convene court until September 10, automatically postponing until then the hearing of Alphonse Capone scheduled for September 8.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 35

THIS is not a group of Boer War campaigners, African big game hunters in the veldt, or the Union Army on dress parade.

Having exhausted these possibilities, there is but one guess left. Correct. It is the National Guard of the District of Columbia at Camp Ordway, Fort Washington, Md., July, 1889.

In the center, with the spotless helmet that positively never saw service in a polo match, is Maj. Gen. Albert Ordway, for whom the camp was named. The photo was taken in front of headquarters tent, where Gen. Ordway has assembled his staff, mayhap, to review the guardsmen.

The gentleman on the extreme right with flowing mustachios waving in the breeze is Maj. W. Cranch McIntyre. Other beards in the group are coming along nicely, but Maj. McIntyre was certainly ahead by many whiskers in the battle for sartorial elegance.

BRAZIL AND ECUADOR HALT BRIEF REVOLTS

Citizens Rebel Near Rio; Reds in Quito Fight Street Battle.

Rio de Janeiro, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—A subversive movement against the government broke out early today at Nictheroy, across the bay from here, but was quicqly suppressed by state militia, according to an official communique. Three rebels were killed and several wounded.

The rebels, apparently all civilians, seized possession of the penitentiary, fire and police stations, but were ousted by the militia without assistance from federal troops. Jorge Soares, alleged rebel leader, was among those killed.

Government officials believed that the movement was an isolated affair.

Guayaquil, Ecuador, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—Military commanders were ordered to their quarters by the government today as a precaution against possible further Communist outbreaks.

Advices fom Quito, the capital, described serious street fighting last night between Communists and soldiers. Many shots were exchanged between the demonstrators and the soldiers before the streets were cleared. Two soldiers were wounded.

The alarmed populace witnessed the affair from the balconies of their homes. The chief of police of Quito narrowly escaped death when a group of the Communists fired into the car in which he was riding.

Guayaquil was quiet today, although the disorders in Quito caused some excitement here.

La Paz, Bolivia, Sept. 4 (A.P.)—Chief of Police Aguirre announced today that the head of the government investigation bureau had been relieved from further duties until an examination had been made into Communist activities here.

Harbord Urges Legion in Politics.

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 4 (A.P.).—Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord, retired, in an address to the State convention of the American Legion today, advised the World War veterans to "take political leadership into your own hands."

AMERICANS IN CHILE ARM AGAINST MUTINY

who are involved are only trying to defend themselves from misery and hunger brought on by the capitalistic classes.

"I do not know how soon Chile will have a Communist government, but it will not be long before the people, rather than die of hunger, will be ready to die in defense of their social rights."

Hidalgo said Minister of Finance Pedro Blanquier held "the greatest responsibility" for the present crisis.

The government appeared to be more confident as to the action of a large part of the army today, although both the army and air force had refused to attack the sailors, and some sections of the coastal guard joined the uprising. The entire navy remained under control of the mutiny leaders and the vessels which left Talcahuano base yesterday were understood to be nearing Coquimbo, to join the leaders of the uprising.

The demands of the mutiny leaders, who originally protested against the proposed reduction of pay, were described more in detail, disclosing distinctly socialistic tendencies, despite the reiteration that there was no connection between the Communist agitation and the mutiny.

The Talcahuano leaders, for instance, demanded complete socialization of land and confiscation of property of persons they considered responsible for the present depression. The Coquimbo leaders, reiterating their demand for full pay and no retaliation, asked less extensive social reforms and insisted that a commission of experts should be named to function until the reforms are applied. The commission would include representatives of the sailors.

The government already was said to be planning unemployment relief by new road-building schemes to employ some 30,000 men and was understood to have promised to rescind cuts in all public salaries.

Former Envoy to U. S. Reported Chile's Captive

(Associated Press.)

Reports were received here yesterday through private sources that Carlos G. Davila, former Chilean Ambassador to the United States, was being held incommunicado in Santiago, charged with fomenting a movement to return Gen. Ibanez, deposed dictator.

Davila returned to Chile several weeks ago to become director of La Nacion, important Chilean newspaper. This, however, failed to materialize in the disturbed political situation which followed the ousting of Ibanez, who is now in Argentina.

State Department officials said yesterday they were uninformed of Davila's activities or whereabouts since he returned to Chile. Friends of the ambassador, however, have been told that an attempt to bring back Ibanez was frustrated, Davila arrested as its leader, and held in the Escuela de Carabineros.

From the same source came reports that the former ambassador's family was in straitened financial circumstances.

Meanwhile, reports were received that the communistic movement in Chile was losing force.

ROBINSON OUTLINES 50 P. C. COTTON CUT

Arkansas Senator Suggests Crop Curbing Through County Bodies.

(Associated Press.)

A plan to cut cotton acreage 50 per cent through a system of county organizations was offered by Senator Joe T. Robinson, of Arkansas, yesterday as two Southern governors reaffirmed they were awaiting action by Texas before calling special legislative sessions to consider cotton relief.

Senator Robinson suggested the United States Department of Agriculture cooperate with the Federal Farm Board in setting up county organizations.

The plan calls for the appointment of fifteen men from each county to serve without pay in bringing together farmers and agricultural credit corporations, banks and supply houses, who would agree not to finance growers who would not sign pledges to reduce cotton acreage 50 per cent.

Senator Robinson did not advance his suggestion as a "cure-all," but as representative of the thoughts of many farmers who believe it promises "notable benefits and rests upon the volition of the farmers."

One Slain as Guard Pursues Rum Ship

Four Members of Crew Held; Vessel Takes Fire and Sinks.

Gloucester, Mass. (Saturday) Sept. 5 (A.P.).—Coast Guard officials early today reported that one man was killed during pursuit of a rum boat off this port. They said he was Joseph Mello, 39 years old, New Bedford. Mello was a member of the crew of the Lassghen. The four other members of the crew were arrested by Coast Guardsmen.

Boatswain's Mate Roy Fitzgerald, commanding a Coast Guard boat, said he sighted the Lassghen off the Cape Ann breakwater shortly after midnight and ordered the craft to stop. Orders to heave to were ignored, he said, and several shots were fired by the Coast Guardsmen.

When the Lassghen finally stopped, Fitzgerald said, they boarded the craft, found Mello dying, and started at once for port. One case of liquor was found on the Lassghen, he said. Mello died. Fitzgerald said the Lassghen burst into flame and sank.

VETERANS ASK FULL PAYMENT OF BONUS

State Vote on Rum Indorsed; De Coe Is Named Leader; Capital Man Honored.

Kansas City, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—Resolutions favoring additional Federal expenditures in behalf of World War veterans and submission to State conventions of a proposal to repeal national prohibition were indorsed by Veterans of Foreign Wars here today in closing their national encampment.

Darrold D De Coe, Sacramento, Calif., was elevated by acclamation to the office of commander in chief, and Sacramento was chosn for next year's encampment.

Admiral R. E. Coontz, retired, Washington, D. C., became senior vice commander without opposition. James T. Van Zandt, Altoona, Pa., retiring chief of staff, was the encampment's unanimous choice as junior vice commander in chief. Brig. Gen. Henry J. Reilly, who was a nominee for the post, withdrew. Robert B. Handy, jr., in charge of national headquarters here, was reelected quartermaster general.

M. S. Thomas, Roanoke, Va., received $250 for having recruited 213 members in a three-months' period. The second prize of $200 went to J. L. Sweeney, Paterson, N. J., for recruiting 100 members. A. V. Cercel, Washington, D. C., won the third prize of $100.

The veterans, who had been requested by spokesmen of the Hoover administration to exert caution in formulating their requests for aid, voted for immediate payment in full of adjusted service compensation certificates, refunding of interest on bonus loans and pensions for widows and orphans of World War soldiers.

The pension resolution called for payments to widows and orphans of veterans who have died of disabilities technically nonservice connected. It asked the veterans' legislative committee to permit no legislation of any other character to usurp its efforts in behalf of such a bill in Congress.

Another resolution asks prohibition of all immigration for ten years and the total restriction of all entry into the United States of Asiatics.

National council members elected were: Francis J O'Malley, Portsmouth, N. H.; Charles Haley, Pittsburgh, Pa.; A. E Bennett, Winston-Salem, N. C.; I. F St. Amant, New Orleans; James Cannon, Youngstown, Ohio; Arthur D. Dodds, Lincoln, Nebr.; W. E. Gunther, Denver, Colo., and C. R. Christie, Portland, Oreg.

The veterans' auxiliary elected Mrs. Dora Raffensperger, Harrisburg, Pa., president.

2 in Audience Hurt By Falling Plaster

Piece of Ceiling Drops Into Little Theater Crowd; Panic Is Averted.

Two persons were injured last night when a large piece of plaster fell from the ceiling of the Little Theater, 608 Ninth street northwest, into the audience.

More than 300 persons were in the theater, which is a movie house, at the time of the accident. A panic was narrowly averted when many of the patrons became frightened and ran for the exits. Prompt action on the part of the management restored order, and the injured were removed to Emergency Hospital.

Those treated were Benjamin Byington, 28 years old, of 1006 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, and Leo Ruppel, 35 years old, of 929 Fifth street southeast. Both suffered lacerations and bruises on the face and body.

on as they arrived in motor trucks. Soldiers were used to surround houses where Communists were suspected of being in hiding.

Strikers manned trenches dug across the main roads leading into the city and travelers had to come in by side roads. Telephone and telegraph service still was interrupted. The movement spread to outlying towns, including Martorell and Sabadell.

The origin of the present trouble was in a refusal of the syndicalists' demand for release of prisoners held in the local jail and for dismissal of the civil governor.

The GIRL About Town

SENATOR "JIM" DAVIS is back in town, full of pep, but silent on the subject of Pennsylvania politics. He learned the art of keeping still through nine years of service in presidential cabinets. Mrs. Davis and the five little "Js" are on their Keystone farm, but soon the spacious Davis mansion next to the British embassy will echo Welsh tunes once more as the children gather around "Daddy" for their morning sing.

HAVING learned to eat raw fish in Japan, the Lindberghs should find birds' nest soup not such a difficult dish to encompass in China, after all the practice Americans get with chop-suey and chow-mein delicacies, by the way, entirely unknown to the Chinese people in their native habitat. When the Lindbergs come to Washington to visit the Dwight W. Morrows they will find political pie on the menu. There is a great deal of quiet talk regarding Senator Morrow as the choice for second place on the Hoover ticket, if Charlie Curtis decides to get back with the boys on the Senate floor.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ernest Lee Jahncke told me about meeting "Dave" Bagley at a luncheon at Great Lakes Training Station near Chicago. "Dave" is Capt. David W. Bagley, brother of Ensign Worth Bagley, one of the heroes of the Spanish-American War. "Dave" is a modest chap, and never brags. During the World War he had to stand a great deal of joshing because he was the brother-in-law of Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy. But the gallant Bagley survived even that drawback. He is now the chief of staff of the Ninth Naval District.

Such cunning seals and ribbons on them! And the language is so stately, somehow!

U. S. Employment Unit Indorsed by Veterans

John R. Alpin, supervising director of the United States Employment Service of the Department of Labor, yesterday received a telegram from the Veterans of Foreign Wars convention at Kansas City, Mo., stating that the body had adopted a resolution indorsing the employment service's work.

A special division of the service is devoted to the interests of war veterans.

CURTIS' 1932 PLANS STIR PARTY RUMORS

Vice President to Be Silent for Months on Wishes in Next Campaign.

(Associated Press.)

The group of aspiring Republican candidates for Vice President is going to have to wait some time to learn the decision of Charles Curtis whether he will run for renomination, or for his old seat from Kansas in the Senate next year.

As noncommittal as ever, Mr. Curtis said yesterday he would not make his announcement of plans for "two or three months." He just smiled at the newspaper stories predicting he would run for the Senate, and commented that "I have said nothing whatever about my plans, and I will make my announcement in my own way and in due time."

Meanwhile, the Republican politicians are busy speculating. A large number of the party chieftains have urged Mr. Curtis to stand again for the Vice Presidency as a matter of party welfare.

While there are rumors that Mr. Hoover desires some other candidate as a running mate, it is generally agreed that he has given no indication of it. Many names of those close to the President are mentioned in this gossip.

But the Republican leadership is known also to be concerned at the reaction which would follow a decision by Mr. Curtis to cut loose from the Hoover ticket next year, and cast his fortunes on a State race for the Senate instead.

A Democrat—George McGill—has taken the seat vacated by Curtis when he went to the Vice Presidency. Henry J. Allen, a Republican, was appointed to fill it, but in the ensuing election he lost to McGill. Kansas Republicans have been involved in factional troubles, and Mr. Curtis is known to be studying the situation with a view to running again for his Senate seat, which is at stake next year.

Some close friends of Mr. Curtis are confident he intends to announce for the Senate. If he does follow this course, it is believed Mr. Curtis will definitely eliminate himself from consideration as a vice presidential nominee. Such an announcement and the form it would take would not only satisfy expectant Republican leaders, but would make way for others aspiring to the Vice Presidency.

STAPLES AND FAMILY

department, with Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman of the Board of Commissioners, and Mr. Bride, conferred informally on the subject late yesterday.

None of these would offer definite comment on the nature of the report, taking the view that since they have not received it they should not make official comment. Legal authorities at the District building said that the recommendations of the grand jury are not mandatory upon the Commissioners, but this was one of the points on which Mr. Bride refused to comment

Surprise at Headquarters.

Upon receipt of a copy of a letter purporting to have been written by former Policeman Frederick A. Schenck to Representative Blanton, outlining the "framing" of Staples, Maj. Pratt went to District Attorney Leo A. Rover and asked that the grand jury investigate the charges.

With the exception of Schenck's story, the evidence presented to the grand jury, it was learned, was substantially the same as that presented to the Trial Board, which convicted Staples of prejudicial conduct, a conviction which was later ratified by the Board of Commissioners to whom an appeal was taken by Representative Blanton, then counsel for Staples.

The only important variation in testimony before the grand jury was made by Schenck, who made a complete reversal of his testimony before the trial board. The corroboration of the frame-up charges was given by Robert J. Allen, who was dismissed from the force for insubordination, and Schenck, who is now serving a twenty-year term at Leavenworth Penitentiary for robbery, and is wanted in Newark, N. J., for shooting a policeman, and on other charges in other cities.

U. S. Attorney's Office Cleared.

In the same affidavit of Schenck's in which the "frame-up" charges were made, additional charges of misconduct were made against two members of the United States attorney's office in the handling of two criminal cases.

As to these charges, the grand jury reported: "We find the charges against members of the United States attorney's office to be false in their entirety."

On the basis of statements in the same affidavit of Schenck's the grand jury found that the testimony against Staples "was perjured testimony by incompetent witnesses," and expressed the belief that "this perjured testimony" was gathered by members of the Metropolitan Police Department "through coercion, duress and inducement."

Other charges made by Schenck included allegations of corruption and graft within the department. These charges, the jury reported, they were unable to substantiate in any particular."

Austin F. Canfield, attorney for Staples, said he does not intend to press any charges against the men involved in the reputed frame-up. "We intend to show no acrimony against the Police Department. Neither do we intend to press the Commissioners for action. It is only courtesy to them to give them ample time to digest the facts in the case."

Staples was in the District Supreme Court when Foreman Charles Fonda presented the finding to Justice Letts. The report was not read. Staples' only comment was:

"Naturally, I am very happy over my vindication at the hands of the grand jury. I deeply appreciate the courtesies extended to me by the members of the jury as well as the District Attorney. I have nothing further to add to this except to say that this day means a lot to me and my family."

Patrolman Joseph H. Hunt, now attached to the Second Precinct, who is recommended for dismissal, could not be dismissed without a trial, it was pointed out. This would likely result in a virtual rehearing of the Staples case. He had not been suspended last night.

Fails to Name "Incompetents."

The jury failed to name the men who should be "severely reprimanded for negligence and incompetence." Inspector Louis J. Stoll handled the investigation of the charges against Staples. Capts. Guy E. Burlingame and Lord, who sat on the Trial Board that tried Staples have since been retired. W. H. Wahly, an assistant corporation counsel, was chairman of the board. Under the old Trial Board system a member of the corporation counsel's office sat as chairman. On the basis of testimony given at an earlier trial, Mr. Bride pointed out, no perjury charges could be drawn against the policemen since the statute of limitations would apply. However, he pointed out, if it was found that witnesses had perjured themselves before the grand jury, he believes that perjury charges could be made.

The grand jury inquiry was instituted by District Attorney Leo A. Rover, who had been considering Schenck's charges, when Maj. Pratt, who also had a copy of Schenck's letter, asked the District attorney to bring the case to a grand jury.

Staples had been convicted by the trial board of association with women of the underworld and other conduct prejudicial to the department. The charges go back to the time when Maj. Edwin B. Hesse was being attacked by Representative Blanton. Staples was reputed to be an aid to Blanton.

Schenck Confessed "Framing."

Schenck says he and Hunt persuaded witnesses to perjure themselves in charges against Staples. Schenck was one of the important witnesses against Staples. In July, however, he addressed a letter to Representative Blanton in which he "confessed" the reputed "framing."

In spite of the supposed ill-feeling between Staples and Schenck, the latter addressed a letter to Staples on July 13, addressing him as "Dear Orville." In the letter he expressed his repentance for the "framing." He closed the letter, "Your friend." The Staples trial took place in March, 1928.

Might Get $7,000 Back Pay.

There was a small crowd present. Staples' wife and two of his children were among those in the courtroom. The former policeman shook hands with each of the jurors as they filed from the room.

Staples can not be reinstated without action of the Commissioners. The Commissioners, however, will conduct an exhaustive inquiry before acting on the recommendation, it was learned. If he should be reinstated under the recommendation, which is retroactive, he would have approximately $7,000 in back pay due him.

The former policeman said that he would be delighted to get his position back.

GRAND JURY REPORT ON STAPLES CHARGES

of the Metropolitan Police Department who gathered these incompetent witnesses together and, through coercion, duress and inducement, caused them to make false affidavits and give false testimony.

We do not believe that the dismissal of Staples from the Police Department and the incidental public discredit to him resulting from the above misconduct could have been accomplished without some knowledge, consent and cooperation of certain members of the Metropolitan Police Department, including some of its officials.

We believe, as disclosed by this investigation, that there exists in the Metropolitan Police Department a false sense of loyalty supplemented by a vicious system of reprisals for those who tell the truth that makes it impossible for a stationary body, such as the grand jury, to secure evidence against the parties who are guilty of initiating, condoning or cooperating in such a case as this we have investigated.

Perjury Is Charged.

We find that Joseph H. Hunt, at present a member of the Metropolitan Police Department, and Frederick A. Schenck, a former member of the Metropolitan Police Department and now incarcerated for other reasons, are both guilty of securing false affidavits, of giving false testimony themselves and of accomplishing perjured testimony by others.

We feel that all the members of the Metropolitan Police Department who were connected with the gathering of evidence in connection with the trial of Orville Staples were either active participants in the securing of the false evidence, or were guilty of gross negligence, incompetence and indifference.

We respectfully recommend to the honorable Commissioners in and for the District of Columbia:

(1) That Orville Staples, former member of the Metropolitan Police Department, be cleared of the charges that occasioned his dismissal and that he be reinstated to his former position as of the date he was dismissed.

(2) That Joseph H. Hunt, now a member of the Metropolitan Police Department, be dismissed from that body.

(3) That all members of the Metropolitan Police Department identified with the Staples case be severely reprimanded for negligence and incompetence, unless the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, as the result of any further inquiry instituted by them, should conclude that more severe measures are justified.

We, the grand jury, respectfully request of this honorable court that a certified copy of this report be transmitted to the honorable Commissioners in and for the District of Columbia.

Extortion Charged To Dry Unit Agent

Indictment Is Returned on Claim That Man Was Given $5.

An indictment charging Joseph R. Gamboro, 44 years old, a special employe of the Prohibition Bureau, with extorting $5 from Robert H. Adams was returned by the grand jury yesterday. Gamboro was a special employe working out of the office of Assistant United States Attorney Harold W. Orcutt.

Gamboro, according to the grand jury, accepted the money from Adams to help him in a liquor case which was pending before the probation officer, to which it had been referred after Adams had entered a plea of guilty.

Police officers allegedly were told by Adams that the agent had asked him for money, and they gave Adams five bills, the numbers of which had been noted. As soon as the money changed hands Gamboro was arrested, and the bills, police testified, were found in his possession.

PERJURY QUIZ BEGUN INTO 3,000 DIVORCES

Warrant Issued in New York State for Lawyer Specializing in Cases.

Mineola, N. Y., Sept. 4 (A.P.).—The complaint of one woman today resulted in the opening of an investigation into approximately 3,000 divorces of recent years in southern New York.

Because of evidence unearthed by District Attorney E. N. Edward and presented to the Nassau County grand jury, he ordered that the divorce records be carefully scanned for false testimony on which decrees may have been granted.

As the initial step in the inquiry, the district attorney obtained a warrant for Louis Greenspan, a Jamaica, Queens, lawyer, who specializes in divorce suits. When police went to arrest the man they found his office deserted and reported there were indications that quantities of records had been removed recently.

The complaint which resulted in the investigation was made by Mrs. Miriam Paxton.

She said she had been separated from Philip Paxton, of Long Island, in 1927, but only recently learned he had obtained a divorce on supposed evidence of misconduct in 1929 and 1930.

The district attorney said she was able to prove conclusively that she had not been in the State at that time.

Thomas Hennessy, jr., an investigator from Greenspan, who gave the evidence, was arrested and taken before the grand jury today. District Attorney Edwards said he admitted having given false testimony to obtain the divorce for Paxton.

The prosecutor said he would seek indictments for perjury and subornation of perjury against both Greenspan and Hennessy.

Immediately after the presentation of evidence before the grand jury today, Edward sent word to all southern New York counties asking a complete examination of approximately 3,000 divorce cases which he said had been handled by Greenspan in recent years.

Pair, 67 and 65, Die In Pact.

Dedham, Mass., Sept. 4 (A.P.).—George C. Ingraham, 67, tax collector of Dedham, and his wife, Dorothy K., 65, were found dead today in their gas-flooded home. Police said they found a note indicating a suicide pact.

28 Feared Trapped By Forest Flames

Destructive Fire Sweeps Through Millions of Feet of Oregon Timber.

Cohran, Oreg., Sept. 4 (U.P.).—A terrific forest fire, sweeping uncontrolled tonight through millions of feet of the finest Oregon timber region, was feared to have trapped 28 logging company employes who were working in its path.

The blaze broke out on the main fork of the Salmonberry River, 6 miles west of here, about noon. Whipped by a small gale, it spread quickly and within two hours was entirely beyond control.

Forty-four loggers were working in the path of the flames, but sixteen of them had been accounted for at 5 p. m. The remaining 28 loggers, comrades said, might have sought refuge from the flames in caves or other places of safety. If they remained to fight the blaze instead of fleeing their position would be extremely precarious.

Court-Martialing Of Poet Annulled

Navy Sets Aside Finding on Verses Objected To by Newport.

The Navy Department has ordered set aside court martial findings against E. B. Layfield, hospital apprentice, second class, Naval Hospital, Newport, R. I., which were the result of proceedings instituted against him after a poem he had written "Here's to Newport"—was published in a navy publication evoking considerable ire from the citizenry of the Rhode Island city.

In the order setting aside the court martial findings, the Navy Department indicated a belief that the ode was penned in a spirit of levity, and not with malice.

Proceedings were begun against Layfield as the result of a storm of protests to the commandant of the hospital after the poem appeared in the June 20 issue of the United States Naval Weekly.

ITALY ASKS LEAGUE FOR OPEN IRAK DOOR

Rome Fears Oil Grants to Britain and U. S. if Mandate Ends.

Geneva, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—Dino Grandi, foreign minister of Italy, said before the council of the League of Nations today that the principle of economic equality for all nations should prevail when Irak receives its expected emancipation from British mandatory control.

The council was considering recommendations from the permanent mandates commission covering conditions under which mandated territory might gain statehood.

When Irak becomes a sovereign state, Signor Grandi said, it must be with full recognition of the fundamental policies of reciprocity and the open door. There must be no special advantage economically or politically for the power that has been in control.

The Italian foreign minister's concern was understood to result from petroleum rights in Irak now enjoyed by Great Britain and the United States.

The council heard Dr. Johann Schober, Austrian foreign minister, present his nation's request for financial help and referred the matter to the league's financial committee now sitting.

The delicate question of Poland's treatment of her German minorities, which excited so much attention in the last two council sessions, was postponed until tomorrow or a later sitting.

The European commission will hold its concluding session tomorrow to adopt formally its report embodying recommendations for economic relief.

Lawyer Indicted as Thief Of Teacher Test Papers

On the complaint of Howard H. Long, chief examiner for the District public schools, the grand jury yesterday indicted Sylvester L. McLaurin, colored member of the District bar, on a charge of taking examination papers from a desk in the Franklin School Building.

The charge is that on July 25 McLaurin extracted a pile of papers on which a value of $1 has been placed. The indictment accuses the man of larceny from the District government.

Sons of Mexican President Complete Summer of Toil

New York, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—Two youthful sons of the President of Mexico today completed a three-month industrial apprenticeship in New York and modestly confided what careers they expect to follow.

Fernando Ortiz Rubio, 18, said he was going to be a civil engineer, so he could go home and build much-needed bridges, aqueducts and roads for his country.

His brother, Guillermo Ortiz Rubio, 19, predicted that before very long he would be one of Mexico's rising young bankers.

They told of their ambitions at a farewell luncheon in their honor given by officials of the International Telephone & Telegraph Corporation, where they worked through the summer—except for occasional days when frantic executives finally learned they had decided to swim instead of work. Tuesday the two youths will leave New York for Montreal, where they will enter McGill University as sophomores.

Reviewing some of their experiences Fernando told of visiting a New York night club a month after their arrival in the city.

"A waiter brought us champagne and when we were ready to leave he presented us with a check for $95," he related. "My brother and I were only making $25 a week, but luckily I had my check for a month's pay. So I paid and walked out with my $5 change thinking to myself there are no such bandits in Mexico."

Fernando added that the next day they wired their father for money, explaining it would be impossible to live in New York on $25 a week even in modest living quarters on Staten Island. Since then, he said, they had been receiving allowances from home.

Fernando has been working in engineering branches of the telegraph corporation, while his brother has been working in the comptroller's department. Both speak excellent English.

Paris Still Blocks German Payment

Way to Allow Berlin to Settle With U. S. Not Despaired Of.

Paris, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—American and French negotiators are still groping for a solution of the liquidation of German payments due American citizens.

Approval by France as one of the allied countries affected by The Hague agreements is needed. France has declined this approval on the ground it would imply alteration of the Franco-American agreement concerning suspension of payments under the Hoover moratorium.

France argues that the $9,000,000 due to Americans is a governmental debt, hence should be suspended one year. The Americans claim the debt is private and merely being handled through the Washington Government. The impression prevails that the negotiations should not be considered as definitely ended.

Sherman's Namesake Dies.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 4 (A.P.).—William Edwin Sherman Dunn, namesake of Gen. Sherman, of the Union Army, who burned Atlanta in the Civil War, but spared a house in which Dunn was born during the attack, died here today.

"HUCKLEBERRY FINN." Paramount picturization of the story by Mark Twain, adapted to the screen by Grover Jones and William Slavens McNutt, featuring Junior Durkin, Jackie Coogan, Mitzi Green and Jackie Searl, supported by Eugene Pallette, Oscar Apfel, Clarence Muse, Clara Blandick, Jane Darwell and Warner Richmond. Directed by Norman Taurog. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

Exerting the same qualities of appeal, and to the same degree, as "Tom Sawyer," presented in the same house last Christmas week, this Mark Twain tale of youthful adventure on the Mississippi River of 1850, yesterday kept the capacious Fox Theater packed to the dome from opening performance to closing. Into the characters peopling his two books of "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn," Clemens wrote homely virtues and quaint humors that have endeared them to successive generations of readers. Many of the characteristics of his genre comedy the screen has found it possible to perpetuate.

Since "Huckleberry Finn" partakes of the same flavor, and is interpreted in large measure by the same players, as the earlier "Tom Sawyer," it is hardly to be expected that you will like it less.

The screen version of the sequel to "Tom" concerns itself principally with Huck's rebellion against scholastic duties and social conventions, his escape from his father and the subsequent adventurous trip aboard the raft that Tom commands with a high regard for the traditions of piracy and the Spanish Main. The climax of the action occurs when it becomes necessary for the boys to salvage the household possessions of two charming orphan maidens from the predatory intrigues of the masquerading gamblers they have picked up in their leisurely cruise in the general direction of distant New Orleans.

The youngsters in the featured roles are those who played the same parts in the "Sawyer" production—Junior Durkin, in the title role; Jackie Coogan, as Tom; Mitzi Green, as Becky Thatcher, and Jackie Searl, as little Sid Sawyer. The Duke of Bilgewater and his treacherous accomplice—thrown off a river packet for cheating at cards—are impersonated by Eugene Pallette and Oscar Apfel. Clarence Muse does yeoman's service in the somewhat fanciful role of Jim, the Negro roustabout, and Warner Richmond, long absent from the screen, has a flambuoyant bit as the elder Finn. Clara Blandick and Jane Darwell are picturesquely cast in the role of Aunt Polly and the Widow Douglas, whose efforts toward the uplift go strangely unrewarded until the last few feet of film.

Junior Durkin steps far out ahead of Master Coogan in this picture, making his Tom seem a bit wishy-washy and effeminate by contrast. Mitzi Green has been appreciably subdued, to the vast advantage of her Becky.

Pictorially, the subject is one of extraordinary beauty. It is a remarkable achievement that the languid tranquillity of 1850 should have been so perfectly approximated in the midst of 1931's mechanical turmoil.

On the stage Fanchon & Marco's "Olympic Games" Idea is chiefly notable for the unusual contributions of the boys and girls of the ensemble, whose athleticism can hardly be impugned. Several of their routines are as difficult as they are spectacularly startling. The principals are Paul Ramos and his Wonder Midgets, in a novelty gymnastic act with which Washington is not unfamiliar; Hal Haig, who goes through some original and clever "training" stunts; Francia, soprano, and Sunny and Vina Jean Rooney, of whom, I am sorry to say, I have no recollection whatever, if, in fact, they appeared.

The crowd was so great at yesterday's first afternoon performance that it was necessary to omit both the Fox Movietone News and the orchestral overture, featuring Harlan Randall as guest vocalist, in order to get the customers in and out. If you can get in, you will probably like them both—if they can find time to present them!

RIALTO

"WATERLOO BRIDGE." Universal picturization of the stage play by Robert E. Sherwood, adapted to the screen by Benn W. Levy, with continuity by Tom Reed, featuring Mae Clarke and Kent Douglass, supported by Frederic Kerr, Doris Lloyd, Enid Bennett, Ethel Griffies and Bette Davis. Directed by James Whale. Previewed Tuesday night.

By NELSON B. BELL.

It is not surprising that Mr. Robert Emmett Sherwood, after viewing the finished product, should have expressed himself as eminently satisfied with the screen treatment accorded his play of "Waterloo Bridge," by Universal. What Mr. Dreiser would term the ideography of the drama, it seems to me, has been admirably preserved. There is constantly projected from the silver sheet a sense that the two pivotal characters are nothing more than the pawns of an inexorable fate, swaying their lives by war-bred and intangible terrors, rather than in any sense exercising even remote mastery of their own destinies. This, I take it, was the author's intention.

The story is one of such simple movement and uncomplicated development that it is carried in large measure by the nineteen-year-old private soldier, home from the fighting front on brief furlough, and the exchorus girl who has been brought to the necessity of soliciting pseudo-romances on the thoroughfares of London as the means of a meager and precarious livelihood. Tossed together by merest circumstance, these two strike up a strange attachment—the boy blind to the true character of his new-found sweetheart; the girl tortured by her consciousness of a complete unworthiness of so fine a devotion. She can not bring herself to explain the truth to the boy, but she can—and does—to his mother. An unconventional, but profounding moving romance is brought to a tragic climax in an air raid over the British capital, identical with the grimly realistic one with which the picture opens.

No less to the direction of James Whale, who was responsible also for "Journey's End," than to the splendid portrayals of the cofeatured roles by Mae Clarke and Kent Douglass is "Waterloo Bridge" indebted for its convincing and finely human quality. I do not recall an instance in which Mr. Whale permitted his sentimentality to slop over, or false delicacy to lessen the vigor of Mr. Sherwood's not always enlivening story.

Miss Clarke and the intense and wistful Mr. Douglass have waited long to come upon two such roles as they here illumine with their generous talents. Miss Clarke multiplies prodigously the poignancy and pathetic futility of the character she first created for brief "bits" in "The Front Page," and Kent Douglass takes on new stature by the excellence of his work in the most exacting and most fruitful role he has essayed for the cameras. Both are tremendously fine jobs, conscientiously and intelligently executed.

Among the supporting players, Doris Lloyd, as one of Miss Clarke's partners of the pavements, and Ethel Griffies, as their landlady, contribute surprisingly effective character bits, and the veteran, Frederic Kerr, is a tower of strength in the few moments in the action that are given over to gruff but delightful comedy. Enid Bennett and Bette Davis are cast as mother and sister of the hero of the tale, and a wonderfully understanding and sympathetic pair they are.

The supporting bill is led by a hilarious two-reel comedy, "Hot Tamale," in which Tom Patricola is the star, and also includes a one-reel sports subject, "Swordfish," with a thrill in every flash; the Universal News, with Graham McNamee, and Otto F. Beck's tuneful organlogue.

The Rialto is to be congratulated upon the superlative merit of its re-opening program and the enthusiasm with which it was received by last night's capacity crowd.

RKO-KEITH'S

"REBOUND." RKO-Pathe picturization of the Donald Ogden Stewart play of the same name, adapted to the screen by Horace Jackson, starring Ina Claire, supported by Robert Ames, Myrna Loy and Hedda Hopper. Directed by Edward H. Griffith. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

Here is one of the most glorious mix-ups that has been filmed for weeks, with the entire personnel—technical as well as histrionic—apparently not having any very concrete idea of what the shooting is all about. Perhaps as a stage play "Rebound" was quite all that could be desired in the way of entertainment, but the pictorial version falls something short of the superlative in this regard.

Strange as it seems, the principal interest of the picture lies neither in the story nor in the cast, but in the entirely undesirable spirit of burlesque that dominates the screening—even when Ina Claire attempts some bit that can be recognized as entirely within the character of Sarah Jaffrey.

The vagueness of the story is, paradoxically, assertive from the beginning, when a 4 a. m. garden conversation is made the topic of the breakfast-table talk, and continues even to the bitter end when Miss Claire decides she really does love Robert Ames in spite of the audience's conviction that the other Robert (Williams is the name) is the proper person with whom to have the traditional fade-out.

Essentially, "Rebound" is a picturization of the old adage that "the time to catch your man is on the rebound." And the truth and substance of the picture is no stronger than the truth and substance of the saw. The cast (including, besides those already mentioned and noted in the small type heading above, Walter Walker, Louise Closser Hale, Leigh Allen and Hale Hamilton) does as well with the picture as the adaptor did with the Stewart opus—just about!

The most entertaining portion of the program comes when the subsidiary attractions are screened, and these are as entertaining a group as has been gathered together for some time.

Heading the list is "Chris Crosses," another of Eddie Buzzell's excruciating bed-time stories for adults, wherein salient points of history are brought up (or down) to date. This time it is the inside dope on Mr. Columbus and the difficulties he encountered in convincing Belle that she ought to advance him the funds to discover America. And what a reception he gets when he does!

A new release of the multicolor version of The Washington Post feature, "Strange as It Seems;" "Big Game," an Aesop Fable, and a release of the Pathe News complete the holiday program, which, it must be said, was greeted with every manifestation of approval by last night's early audience.

It was originally planed to permit the fliers to race their ships wide open from Akron, Ohio, for which point the group will take off tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock on to Cleveland, but the rules were altered today to provide for a cruising contest all the way from Hickville, Long Island, the starting point, to Cleveland.

The winner of the derby will be awarded a bronze trophy modeled after the Winged Victory statue, donated by Charles L. Lawrence, president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America.

California Fliers Set for Ocean Hop

Moyle and Allen Arrive at Samushiro; Plan to Continue Today.

Samushiro, Japan, Sept. 5 (A.P.).—The California aviators, Don Moyle and C. A. Allen, arrived here at 12:03 p. m. (10:03 p. m., E. S. T.) Friday, after a 375-mile flight from Tachikawa Airport, Tokyo. They hope to start tomorrow on a nonstop flight over the Pacific to Seattle.

The fliers said they "had all the confidence in the world" they would succeed in their north Pacific hop. They planned to leave Samushiro Beach tomorrow, weather permitting.

Allen said they planned on landing at Boeing Field, Seattle, but if it was misty they might continue to Tacoma.

The fliers will load the plane here with 1,020 gallons of fuel.

Digges Is Indicted In Norman Killing

First-Degree Murder Put Against Former Wardman Doorkeeper.

Joseph Henry Digges, Negro, former doorman at the Wardman Park Hotel, was indicted for murder in the first degree yesterday. He was charged with having fatally shot Capt. William F. Norman, a member of the District bar and an erstwhile special assistant to the Attorney General.

The Negro took umbrage at a slapping given him by Capt. Norman when the doorman called Norman's attention to infractions of the parking regulations of the hotel by the lawyer's chauffeur. Digges is alleged to have procured a gun, and awaited his chance, which came August 12.

At that time Digges followed Capt. Norman from the hotel, and while he was behind him, shot him several times. Norman was dead when he reached Emergency Hospital, and Digges was taken by police after he had surrendered to a private detective.

Shoplifter Slashes Man Who Tries to Hold Him

In attempting to seize a shoplifter in Samuel Gittelmann's women's furnishings store, at 1336 Seventh street northwest, yesterday, Paul F. Banks, colored taxi driver, was severely cut when the robber attacked him with a knife. The latter escaped with a silk kimona.

Banks was outside the store when he heard Mrs. Bessie R. Gittelman, the proprietor's wife, scream as she saw the thief, a colored man, attempt to walk out with the merchandise. When the cabman grappled with him he was slashed on the left side, arm and forehead. Banks, who lives at 1806 New Jersey avenue, was treated at Emergency Hospital.

The Daughters of the American Revolution, the Sons of the American Revolution, the Sons of the Revolution and the Children of the American Revolution will cooperate with the Washington Bicentennial Commission in the celebration next year, it was decided by executive committees of the four organizations at a meeting last night in the Hay-Adams House.

The committees also outlined plans for the observance of the bicentennial celebration on February 22, 1932.

Dr. Thomas R. Green, of the American Red Cross, presided. Dr. J. T. Mood and Dr. Greene represented the Sons of the Revolution, Milo Sommers appeared for the Sons of the American Revolution, and the Daughters of the American Revolution were represented by Mrs. David D. Caldwell, vice president general for the District of Columbia, and Miss Helen Harman, regent for the District of Columbia.

DOOLITTLE SETS NEW RECORD FOR CROSS-COUNTRY FLIGHT

but only as a passenger with Jim Hazlip. The two will bring a plane back to the air races tomorrow.

Doolittle left Burbank at 4:35 a. m. Eastern standard time today. After refueling at Albuquerque, N. Mex., and at Kansas City, he arrived at Cleveland at 1:50:21 p. m.

More fuel was given the plane at Cleveland, and within a few minutes he again hopped off for Newark. He arrived there at 3:50 p. m., making his transcontinental time 11 hours and 15 minutes, compared to the previous record of 12 hours 25 minutes and 3 seconds, made by Capt. Frank Hawks in 1930.

Pausing at Newark only a few minutes for another refueling, Doolittle again took to the air for the return trip to Cleveland.

A prize of $7,500 rewarded him for his victory in the Bendix air trophy race from Burbank to Cleveland, and an added purse of $2,500 was his for the new cross-country performance.

Capt. Hawks in 1930 completed his record-smashing flight at Roosevelt Field, N. Y., but that airport is only six or seven minutes distant from Newark, and Doolittle's whirling trip at an average of 225 miles an hour left a wide margin to account for the difference in their terminals.

"I had good weather except for a few thundershowers," he said. "My motor worked beautifully. My best time was 240 miles an hour, between Kansas City and Cleveland, but as I circled Newark Airport for a landing I was making 250 miles an hour."

A crowd of several hundred persons, three Newsreel trucks and more than a score of camera men lined the edge of Newark Airport as Doolittle's tiny green and orange airplane tore out of the West and taxied up to within a few feet of the spectators.

Both the plane and the pilot showed the effects of the long fligth. The sides of the plane were streaked with oil that had spattered from the motor. Doolittle appeared greatly fatigued. He wore linen knickers, spotted with grease, tennis shoes, a white shirt opened at the neck and a tan windbreaker.

Phones for Fuel.

As soon as the wheels of his plane had stopped he ripped off his headgear and goggles, pulled wads of cotton from his ears and shouted to airport attendants:

"Where's my gas?"

The gasoline he had expected would be awaiting him was not on hand. He appeared considerably disturbed and said:

"Don't you know, I've got to go right back to Cleveland?"

The battery of cameramen and Newsreel photographers was pressing forward and begging that he pose for them. Reporters were trying to interview him. But Maj. Doolittle, temporarily deafened by the roar of his motor and interested only in making preparations for his return hop, paid no attention to them.

Instead, he rushed to the airport office and had a number of telephone calls put through for his fuel. While awaiting its arrival he called for a drink of water, but he refused to eat anything.

However, he finally did eat some chocolate-covered ice cream. He took no time to wash the grease from his face, pushed aside the crowd of reporters and well wishers who pressed close to him and went off to inspect his plane.

Wind No Benefit.

The time of Maj. Doolittle's arrival at 3:50 and his establishment of a transcontinental record was certified by W. D. Ward and Luke Christopher, official timers of the National Aeronautical Asspciation.

Maj. Doolittle explained that he had not been benefited by the wind. He said he encountered as much headwind as tailwind. He had been on the ground less than one hour at Newark when he climbed back into the cockpit. During that time he had been on the go every minute.

As his propeller was being spun he was asked if he thought aviation benefited by air races such as are being held at Cleveland. He replied:

"Anything we can learn from racing tends to help us to build better military and commercial planes."

Before he took off photographers begged him to pose for them. A crowd of small boys had gathered close to the plane. Doolittle turned to them and said:

"These fellows with cameras don't know a good picture when they see one, do they?"

Then he climbed out of the plane, gathered the boys around him and told the cameramen to "shoot."

Doolittle made three refueling stops on the way from Burbank to Newark, taking on 140 gallons of gasoline each time.

Doolittle took off to return to Cleveland at 4:50:30 p. m. (Eastern standard time). Then he left for St. Louis, after flying his own ship for 2,862 miles today, to help Hazlip bring another plane here from St. Louis tomorrow.

To Install New Motors.

Of the eight fliers who streaked across the country from Burbank, Calif., to Cleveland, Doolittle was the only one who continued on to New York. Five of the seven others reached Cleveland safely, one crashed and another was forced down en route. All were competing in the Vincent Bendix, the highlight of the seventh day of the 1931 National air races.

No sooner had Doolittle dropped on to the airport at Newark than Mattie Laird, builder of the Laird Solution plane piloted by Doolittle, announced the ship would be refitted with a new motor to enable him to increase his speed to 300 miles an hour.

Doolittle will fly the plane in the Thompson Trophy race Monday, the climax of the air races.

Aims at Speed Mark.

He will be trying to break the world's record for land planes of 276 miles an hour made by the late Adj. Bonnet, of France.

Harold S. Johnson, of Chicago, finished second in the 2,046-mile Burbank-Cleveland race. Beeler Blevins, of Atlanta, came in third. Capt. Ira Eaker, of Washington, was fourth, and Art Goebel, who won the Dole race to Hawaii, was fifth. James Hall, of New York, was the last to finish.

Walter S. Hunter, of Sparta, Ill., crashed near Terre Haute, Ind. His plane was burned, but he escaped injury.

Another contestant, Lou Reichers, of Arlington, N. Y., ran out of gas and was froced to land at Beatrice, Nebr.

Awards Total $15,000.

The derbyists, finally getting underway early today after several days of postponement because of unfavorable weather, encountered good weather all the way, except for a stretch over northern Indiana and Ohio. There they ran into the tail of a storm.

A pot of $15,000, posted by Vincent Bendix, lured the fliers into the one-day dash. Johnson enriched himself by $4,500 and Blevins by $3,000.

The derby was the main event permitted by the weather on today's air race program. A heavy rain grounded the pilots and forced postponement of the speed dash program.

Two parachute jumpers were injured, however, before the storm broke. John F. Wickham, of Cincinnati, and Buddy Rhodes, of Little Rock, Ark., were thrown heavily to the ground by the wind after making 1,500-foot jumps. Wickham suffered a fractured right leg and Rhodes a sprained back.

2 Autoists Gashed In Triple Collision

Girl in One Car, Man in Another Suffer Cuts Upon Faces.

Miss Elsie James, of 1640 Irving street northwest, and Joseph Branch, of Enfield, N. J., suffered severe lacerations to the face in a triple car collision on the Washington-Richmond highway near the Old Pohick Church.

The injured motorists were taken to the Fort Humphreys Post Hospital by Fairfax County Policeman A. W. Mills and Deputy Sheriff George McCann. Physicians took twelve stitches to close the wounds of Branch and nine to close the facial cuts of Miss James.

According to police, Micc James was a passenger in the car driven by William Richards, of the Irving street address. They claim that the Richards car crashed into the car driven by H. A. Branch, brother of the injured man. The two cars skidded and sideswiped a car driven by Orval Carr, of 1446 Fairmont street northwest. All cars were badly damaged. Richards was taken before Justice of the Peace Harry Shepherd at Accotink, charged with reckless driving. He was fined $10 and costs.

Wider Plan Sought For Sligo Parkway

Public Hearing Will Be Held September 16 at Silver Spring, Md.

A public hearing on the proposal to enlarge the scope of the Sligo Creek Parkway plan will be held September 16 at 8 p. m. in the Silver Spring county building, Irving C. Root, chief engineer of the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission, announced yesterday.

It is proposed to widen the scope of the present plan of the parkway so as to include some land which is not exactly in the creek valley but which is contiguous, in order that the parkway may have a more satisfactory character. The Sligo Creek Valley is extremely narrow and, in conformity with the expressed desire of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, it is desired to widen the parkway so as to provide a more serviceable tract.

The land to be taken in if the commission decides to enlarge its plan is between Blair and Colesville roads.

Line Will Take Power To Laurel and Savage

The new line will be run by the Consolidated Gas, Electric Light & Power Co. on the existing poles. The party also will survey the Massachusetts avenue extension of 1 mile into Maryland to a underpass which is to be constructed this year. Montgomery County will pay for this work out of its western suburban district road fund. The State Roads Commission has approved this project, but is still studying the Wisconsin avenue project as State funds are asked for part of this improvement.

DOUBLE FILING HELD USELESS CONFUSION

Arlington Board Candidate Tells Why He Didn't Enter for Supervisor, Too.

F. Freeland Chew, one of the first candidates to file for membership on the Arlington County board, in explaining his position relative to not filing for the office of supervisor along with others who filed double, last night issued the following statement:

"The political situation in the county has reached a point where the people who must express their choice on November 3 are entitled to some consideration, and it is unfortunate that candidates should have elected to file for two offices, which at best only tends to confuse the voters and makes the task of marking their ballots harder. This could have been avoided had th ose candidates who so filed either made a study of the act of the General Assembly of Virginia, under which they hope to be elected to office, and formed an opinion of their own, or else had stood firm upon their convictions and filed for one office or the other.

"Knowing that the author of the law, Mr. Hugh Reid, had, at the time the bill was initiated, consulted with the best authorities on constitutional law in the State as to its legality, and likewise knowing that the governor had consulted the attorney general regarding its constitutionality before signing the bill, I reached my own conclusion and was willing to back my judgment by filing for the only office which, on the very face of the statute and pursuant to the provisions of the State constitution, at present exists, and the one to which I desire to be elected. Any other procedure on my part would only have added confusion to confusion and been an open admission that I either had no knowledge of what it was I wanted or else had not the courage of my conviction.

"Only the Supreme Court can set aside the election of county board on the grounds that the act of the Assembly is unconstitutional and the fact that names of candidates for the office of supervisor also appeared on the ballot would have no bearing on the final outcome, for the law provides that in that even the judge of the Circuit Court shall appoint three supervisors from our three respective districts."

BALLOT NOT TO LIST 23 OFFICE-SEEKERS

Electoral Board Refuses to Recognize District Candidates in Arlington.

Names of 23 persons filing for district offices in Arlington County, including members of the board of supervisors, overseers of the poor and constables, will not appear on the next county ballot, the county electoral board announced last night.

The statement was made after members declared it their opinion the act of the General Assembly of Virginia changing the form of government in the county, abolishing magisterial districts is constitutional. The county last year voted for the change by a large majority.

Only specific court orders will alter the decision of the board to leave the names off the ballot, the announcement stated. It also declared that Charles B. Green, who filed as candidate for the office of county commissioner of revenue, is disqualified because he is a resident of the District of Columbia.

Capt. Crandal Mackey was prompt to take issue with the board, holding it "only a ministerial body" that can not pass on the law.

"There is no member of the electoral board whose opinion is worth anything on the question," he said. "The only lawyer member of the board will not say he has ever looked into the question outside of reading the section of the constitution."

Those whose names will not appear on the ballot, unless a court order is secured are:

For board of supervisors—From Arlington district, Mrs. Catharine M. Rogers, I. N. Rich, E. C. Hall, Clarence Croft, H. S. Coe, Lawrence Michael, J. G. Pepper and Roger L. Daniels; from Jefferson district, Anne L. Allwine, Seth T. Bowen, H. L. Woodward and C. W. Lee; from Washington district, Mary Macky, E. C. Turnburke, G. F. D. Rollings and William C. Hull.

THE POLICE INDICTMENTS.

The indictment of several policemen on the charge of third degree assault upon prisoners was a foregone conclusion. The evidence first unearthed by The Post was of such a shocking character, and so conclusive of third degree brutality, that nothing remained but to identify the culprits. Apparently the Department of Justice and District Attorney Rover have succeeded in this task.

The accused officers will have a fair trial, and should not be adjudged guilty by public opinion unless the verdict holds them guilty. The intense feeling against third degree brutality should not take the form of prejudging individuals who may be innocent. At the same time, extraordinary vigilance should be exercised in the prosecution of these cases, because of the tendency of police officers to stick together when members of the force run afoul of the law. The only safe course for members of the force to pursue in this trial is to tell the whole truth and not to make the mistake of shielding any guilty person merely because he wears the uniform. This uniform can be dishonored only by those who wear it. Unrelenting elimination of the criminal and the unfit is necessary in the Police Department in order to maintain the honor of the force.

The third degree revelations and the frequent petty offenses of policemen, usually new men, emphasize the need of more careful scrutiny of the character of applicants for police jobs. All the conscientious men on the force are subjected to undeserved criticism when black sheep are permitted to enter their ranks. It should be impossible for a thief, drunkard, or thug to become a police officer. Every officer who takes pride in the force is in duty bound to testify against any man who has dishonored the uniform.

AUTO INDUSTRY REVIVES.

The fact that Henry Ford is recalling 50,000 workmen to his service this month has done much toward convincing the country at large that better times are on the way. The entire automobile industry is struggling to shake off the effects of the depression. Reports from Detroit indicate that many companies are preparing to handle a larger volume of business. The fall campaigns of virtually every large concern reflect confidence in an upward business trend.

An advertising campaign of $500,000 has been planned by Oakland. This is the largest project of the kind ever launched by an automobile company at this season. During the eight weeks of September and October a strenuous drive for business will be made. Nash is now conducting a "Guest-Ride Week" on a Nation-wide scale to stimulate buying. Chrysler this month begins a new service policy of guaranteeing replacement of any defective parts without charge for either the labor or material. The warranty covers 90 days or 4,000 miles of driving. Cadillac reports a sustained demand for higher-priced cars. Figures shows that the V-12 has accounted for 28 per cent of the company's sales, shipments since last October having totaled 4,577. Optimism expressed in this industry in the last few weeks has done much to encourage the entire country.

A TWO-FACED POLICY.

European statesmen and industrial leaders have two systems of economic theory. One of them is used when they offer advice to the United States and the other is applied when they consider European affairs. An excellent example of this inconsistency may be seen in the current report of the coordination committee of the European Union Commission.

Wherever European business leaders, industrialists, bankers and economists assemble to discuss affairs of the world the burden of their demand is for reduction of tariffs and cancellation of war debts. Their persistent drive against the "barriers to trade" is aimed directly at the American tariff. The United States is blamed for the depression because the Government protects the domestic market against unfair competition from cheap foreign goods.

The United States' tariff policy was the chief topic of discussion when the industrial leaders of the world met in Washington last May under the auspices of the International Chamber of Commerce. How could the world be expected to regain its equilibrium unless it could use the American market as a dumping ground for its surplus goods? Every plan of recovery that was then mapped out or has since been devised by European economists has been based upon invasion of the American market.

Now come the experts for the European Union Commission with some very different advice for dealing with the depression in Europe. What Europe needs most of all, the committee finds, is a restoration of confidence. Of course, that could not be brought about through radical tariff changes such as are proposed for the United States. Hence, Europe must postpone customs reforms to the indefinite future. The committee sanctions the Briand scheme of "one vast market accessible on equal terms to all or most of the producers of Europe," but it is "a little staggered by the number and variety of the problems" that are raised by this dream of economic Utopia. In effect, the committee says that this is no time to indulge in fanciful aspirations; let the Briand plan be turned over to the economic committee of the League of Nations for further study.

At present there should be no disturbance of tariff laws. It would be extremely difficult, the committee says, to ask the countries struggling desperately with the depression to agree even appreciably to reduce their tariffs. "Pending the return of better conditions" tariffs are recognized as necessary for each country to protect its domestic enterprise.

This attitude is easily understood. The world is burdened with a surplus of goods. Nations without tariff protection are inundated by cheap products from other lands. The depression has done more to send tariffs up than any other factor in recent years.

The strange thing is that Europe's leading economists should recognize the benefits of protection at home and see nothing but calamity in the American protection. This committee report serves only to emphasize the purely selfish motives that are behind every attempt to cure the depression by revision of tariffs. European nations would, of course, welcome a Democratic tariff in the United States, but it is apparent that they have no intention of opening their own markets to Americans.

NO CAUSE FOR REVISION.

The appeal of the National City Bank for revision of war debts and reparations has set in motion a new wail from all the cancellationists on this and the other side of the Atlantic. Bridging over a gap of ten months, during which the economic outlook may be wholly changed, they conjure up apparitions of disaster that are to descend and wipe out civilization when the Hoover moratorium comes to an end.

The National City Bank, notwithstanding its cancellation appeal, admits that general economic conditions are improving. "So far as the ordinary processes of economic readjustment are concerned," its report said, "there is evidence that a great deal of progress is being made. Production is being gradually brought into line with consumption. Prices have been drastically reduced in many lines to levels that ought to encourage buying. Stocks of goods other than certain foods and raw materials are not excessive."

In short, the bank admits that business is on the road to recovery. Yet it intimates that war debts, which are scheduled to be paid over a period of about 60 years, should be revised in accordance with depression conditions. It is apparent that the international bankers and other cancellationists are trying to take advantage of the business slump to shift a disproportionate part of the cost of the war upon the United States.

President Hoover proposed a moratorium for one year to enable European governments to get their breath. Conditions are abnormal, and Germany was unable to meet her obligations without risking a collapse. But the moratorium was merely a postponement. There is not the slightest excuse for using it as the basis for a cancellation movement.

Germany's reparation payments are based on the ability of that country to pay in normal times. So are the former allies' debts to the United States. When normal times are restored payments must continue as before. There has been no disposition to push debtor nations to the wall. On the other hand, they have been given every assistance in maintining their equilibrium. It may be expected that due consideration will be given to economic conditions in Europe at the end of the moratorium. Nothing could be gained by precipitating a financial crisis. But to ask that American taxpayers assume the obligations of European powers for the next 60 years because of the current maladjustment is a piece of juggiery that appeals only to international bankers.

On one hand Germany's reparations are pictured as a "grievous burden" that is crushing that country. But when, in the dreams of bankers, they are shifted to the United States they at once become inconsequential, in spite of the fact that this country piled up a huge deficit last year and may have a still larger one this year. In a situation of this kind the Government must look to the interests of its own citizens. It is hardly to be supposed that Congress would demoralize the world by raising taxes in the country to pay for the war that European nations brought upon themselves.

EDUCATION ADVANCES.

Educational opportunities in the United States have increased to a point where one-half of the boys and girls of the country now receive high school training. According to the findings of the Federal Bureau of Education, the youth of 1931 gets two more years of schooling than did the youth of 1914. Today the student's chances of going to high school are even, while twenty years ago only one out of ten attended. The college rate at the present time is one out of six.

Approximately $2,500,000,000 annually is spent in this country on public education. This sum provides schooling for about 25,000,000 children from kindergarten through high school. In addition large amounts are spent by colleges as well as university post-graduate schools and the many institutions that provide adult education.

There is no State in the Union that does not use a large part of its budget for education, and in no field has America made more worthy progress. The school system has been extended to reach the constantly increasing population. Reforms and improved facilities have raised scholastic standards, especially in rural sections. The modern trend toward regulations which better enable teachers to treat students as individuals and not as a mass is developing education in its highest form.

THE DEMOCRATIC POLL.

Political polls may mean much or little, but at this stage of the contest for the Democratic presidential nomination it would be a mistake to attach too much importance to the results of the survey made by the Outlook and Independent. What Democratic editors think eight months before the convention gives no indication of what the delegates will do when all the forces of political strategy have been brought to play upon them in the preconvention campaigns.

This poll does, however, throw the spotlight on Newton D. Baker. With such men as Mr. Baker, Owen D. Young and Melvin A. Traylor on the list of probable candidates the 1932 nomination is not likely to be a give-away. With Al Smith silent and alert for every opportunity that may turn the eyes of Democracy upon him again, it is very evident that the Democratic convention will be no love feast. Under these circumstances it seems extremely unlikely at this time that Gov. Roosevelt will be able to hurdle the two-thirds rule early in the convention.

Democrats regard 1932 as their year of opportunity because they intend to make political capital out of the depression. No candidate who thinks that he has a chance to win the nomination is likely to give up without a struggle. At present most of the strongest contenders are holding their tongues because they do not want to become victims of a premature boom that might collapse before the convention meets. But the tension is beginning to be felt.

One aspect of the contest will probably be an unusually large number of "favorite sons" who will enter the race with "dark-horse" hopes. This movement will tend to keep votes scattered until the real fight is well under way.

EXPLORING THE UPPER AIR

By Dr. DARWIN O. LYON in the London Times.

We have all sorts of theories concerning the upper reaches of the atmosphere, some based on observation of certain phenomena, others founded on theory alone, but the mere fact that so many of them disagree proves that we really know very little. We are fairly well informed about the density, temperature and composition of the atmosphere for the first ten miles, but beyond this there is great uncertainty. At sea level nitrogen comprises 78 per cent of the atmosphere. We have reason to believe that at a height of about 40 miles the percentage rises to over 90. Of this, however, we are far from certain, though we do know that at this height the "atmosphere," if such we can still call it, does not have a density of even one fifteen-thousandth that it has at sea level.

The sounding balloon has about reached its limit (25 miles). Is there no means left by which we can obtain samples, to say nothing of securing other data, at still greater heights? There is one, and only one, the rocket. For the last seven years I have worked on the problem of constructing rockets that would not only carry delicate apparatus up to great heights and once for all settle such questions as relate to density, temperature and composition, but also throw light on such problems as the origin of ozone, the Aurora Borealis and the Heaviside layer. Above all, additional light on the origin and nature of the cosmic rays was hoped for.

The Heaviside layer is undoubtedly beyond the reach of any balloon, and, though there is no doubt that aeroplanes will be constructed that will be able to travel at heights far exceeding the present record, it is extremely improbable that they will be able to reach a height exceeding twenty miles, unless, of course, they are equipped with rockets. There is no question but that, with our present technique, a rocket carrying recording instruments could be constructed that would ascend to a height of 50 miles or more.

The rocket I am now constructing will be nearly 13 feet long and will weigh, with its registering apparatus but without fuel, about 160 pounds. It will be built of steel and aluminum and be composed of three sections —i. e., of one rocket "within another," so to speak. This method has the advantage that as soon as one section has burnt itself out and thus finished its work it will become detached and drop off, at the same time automatically igniting the charges contained in the section above. This rest of the rocket has then not only the advantage of being lighter, but it has the advantage of already having a considerable velocity when it starts to fire. In the tip of the foremost section will be placed, as before, the apparatus for recording the density and temperature of the atmosphere at the moment the rocket reaches the highest point. Adjacent to this will be the contrivance I have invented for securing a sample of the atmosphere, if atmosphere we may still call it at such a height.

Immediately below this will be a 7-inch gyroscope for holding the rocket true to its course. Packed into the tip of the rocket will be the parachute, by aid of which it is hoped the registering apparatus will descend uninjured. Notwithstanding that the parachute opens almost immediately after the case containing the registering apparatus becomes released from the last section of the rocket—this occurs at the rocket's culminating point—the fall during the first 15 or 20 seconds is extremely rapid because the air at such a height is so tenuous that it offers almost no resistance.

It is extremely seldom that either registering or pilot balloons have ascended higher than twenty miles, and our knowledge of air currents is limited to this height. Beyond this the direction and force of the air currents are, for the most part, unknown and a matter of much dispute. By observing with telescope and theodolite the descending parachute with its attached instruments we shall gain valuable information concerning the direction and force of the wind at heights that are as yet unexplored.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY DEAR LOUISE:

Modern youngsters of the wild-and-loose type are very proud of their brains.

By the time they have mastered the multiplication table, they elect themselves to the intelligentsia and begin to profess a great love of Ideas.

The idea they love most is the one that young people are very smart and old people very dumb.

And since the country is managed by old people, it follows that everything in it is wrong and rotten—laws, customs, standards and all.

To ridicule and malign all things American is to prove yourself, by the new standard, a liberal, an intellectual, a modern and a lover of liberty.

Youth is aways an idealist and a reformer, so the present situation isn't unique, but there is an element of danger in this to-heck-with-America business and I want to give you a word of warning.

If you join the knockers, you become, regardless of good intentions, an ally and comrade of certain foreign-born gentlemen inspired by hate and envy whose life business it is to cripple and belittle all things American.

In the words of the Virginian: "When you say that, smile."

The rightness and decency of criticism depend wholly on the standpoint and the motive of the one who does it.

Any member of the family may ridicule and condemn the furnishings of the living room without offense, for his criticism is inspired by a desire to improve things and he is speaking of his own.

But a guest or a stranger who voices the same criticism is inspired by envy or malice or want of good manners and his every word is offensive.

America has many faults—hideous, shameful, unpardonable faults—and they will not be corrected until those who love the country more than they love money or fame or soft security dare to speak the truth and boldly clamor for reform.

But those whose criticism is inspired by hate are your enemies, eager to do you harm, and have no right to speak until they get outside the country that supports them.

Criticize your own among your own people, but hold your chin high in the presence of the enemy.

It is one thing to criticize your brother's grammar, and quite another to agree with a stranger who calls him a rascal.

Love, DAD.

Pussyfooting over increased Federal taxes may have a speculative political value, but it will not make for the public welfare in the long run, and the party which serves that best eventually will reap the benefit of its action. Secretary Mellon proposes an increase in the excise taxes, because the fluctuations in income make the income tax undependable for long-distance financing and the politicians already are up in arms and trying to hold him off until after the presidential election of 1932. His plan evidently offers opportunity for the demagogues to denounce him for not going after revenue from the higher brackets, but Mr. Mellon visualizes very plainly the uncertainty of obtaining sufficient revenue from that source. The Treasury already has a deficit of something like a billion dollars and this doubtless will be heavily increased, despite all the efforts of the administration to head off extravagant appropriations for agriculture and veterans' relief and other projects which are supposed to be productive of useful votes in political campaigns.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Employed Workers Should Buy Necessities in Order to Stimulate Demand and Put Idle to Work.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I want to congratulate you on the editorial in The Post of September 2, entitled "Buy What You Need." It is one of the most sensible editorials I have read on the world-wide depression since it started.

The census of last year reports 48,000,000 people gainfully employed in this country. Out of that number conservative people estimate that 5,100,000 are out of employment at the present time. That would leave about 43,000,000 gainfully employed.

Many of the 43,000,000 have not suffered any reduction in wages. The income of those whose wages have been reduced will, to a great extent, be taken care of by the reduction in the cost of living.

If the 43,000,000 gainfully employed would begin buying normally the things they need while prices are low (instead of doing without the necessities of life and hoarding their money in savings banks, which are so full of money today that the banks have been forced to reduce the rate of interest) merchants would soon empty their shelves of merchandise; they would be forced to go to the wholesaler; the wholesaler to the factory; and in a short time the factories of the country would be calling in their former employes, or others, and would be operating as of old. The unemployment would soon be a thing of the past and the calamity howlers would cease from troubling.

We can understand how difficult it would be for employers of labor to say to their employes, "We are going to keep you and pay you, regardless of what may happen." But those that are employed ought to appreciate the fact that they have been, and are still employed (though many of their employers are operating at a loss) and for that reason should begin buying the necessities of life to try to help those not so fortunate to find jobs.

I wish your editorial, or similar ones, could be read all over the world. Why can't everybody use common sense in trying to lead the way out of our present difficulties?

Correspondents Differ on Advisability of Finding a New Name for "Capitalist" Nations.

Here are extracts from three letters answering a Post Haste request for suggestions of a word more suitable than "capitalism" to designate the economic system existing in the United States:

You ask what word can be suggested to take the place of "capitalism," due to the stigma which the radicals have attached to it. It is my opinion that any word unnaturally used, or a coined word, would defeat your purpose. For example, the word "scoflaw," coined for a similar purpose, became a tool for the opposition. I would suggest, therefore, that you use such a phrase as "private property system" to describe our method of government. It is accurate without being strained. I fear a clever or unusual word would be more disastrous than the old term. —John H. Austin.

You say that "capitalism" has had a stigma attached to it by the Bolsheviks. Naturally it would not have been done by the capitalists themselves. You may think it is unwarranted, but if you had spent as much time as I have among men tramping all day searching for work, you would hardly consider any stigma undeserved. A system that allows men to work long hours while others are idle, that permits some to go hungry and cold while food and clothing are too abundant, must be wrong.—R. P. D.

It seems to me, as the primary characteristic of capitalism is that the individual is paid in proportion to his accomplishment, a new name should convey this idea of the American system. Certainly, we can't feel there is any chance of personal advancement in the Russian plan. I suggest for names "effort reward" or "personal opportunity."—Mrs. Mary L. P. Sahde.

Another Government Worker Asks Married Women to Relinquish Jobs for Men Who Are Unemployed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: During the present emergency created by unemployment the tendency to cut down wages must be fought strenuously. Let the good work of creating more jobs proceed. It is obviously a splendid practical remedy.

Now is the time to consider the more equitable distribution of existing jobs. There are too many homes in which both husband and wife work and have an income and too many homes in which neither husband and wife has work. This is particularly true in the Government service. For example, in the section in which the writer works there are thirteen women employed and six of them have husbands with good incomes. Two of the husbands are store managers, others are Government employes with salaries up to $3,000 and $4,000. Not one of these wives has children or other dependents. In other words, 46 per cent of the employed women in this section are retaining jobs which by all moral right should go to unemployed women or men, people who perhaps are hungry or homeless. I believe this figure is about average, for I have heard of other sections in which the percentage of married women is even higher. THINKER.

NEW BRITISH CHIEFS TO AID WORLD TRADE

National Government Plans to Assist in Ending Economic Ills.

London, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—Britain's new national government, although formed for the specific purposes of dealing with domestic problems, will use its influence wherever possible to put an end to the world-wide industrial depression.

This was the policy outlined today by the Marquis of Reading, 71-year-old secretary for foreign affairs, who interrupted his honeymoon to return to London and take the post which Arthur Henderson left when the Labor government fell two weeks ago.

The new government is dominated in its outlook on foreign affairs by world financial and economic problems, Lord Reading said.

It does not intend to inaugurate new lines of international cooperation, such as suggesting new conferences, but any attempt to solve world problems as yet unsettled will be viewed by the British government with a sympathetic desire to be helpful, the foreign secretary explained.

Prime Minister MacDonald's emergency regime will face Parliament next week with a declaration for continued whole-hearted support of the League of Nations and the forthcoming disarmament conference.

With the appointment of Lord Peel as lord privy seal and several minor ministerial appointments, the list of 54 government posts was completed today.

The completed ministry has a distinctly Conservative character, with 22 Conservative party appointments to 12 Liberal and 10 Labor. The "big ten" of the cabinet continue to hold all power of decisions in their hands and this body maintains its ratio of 4-4-2 among Laborites, Conservatives and Liberals.

Prime Minister MacDonald, accompanied by his daughter Ishbel, went to Chequers today. There he will have a quiet week-end of work preparatory to the final cabinet session Monday afternoon before Parliament meets Tuesday.

Ludington Asks Probe Of Air Mail Contract

Camden, N. J., Sept. 4 (A.P.).—The Ludington Corporation, owner of the Ludington Line, the Ludington Flying Service and part owner of the Central Airport which recently lost the air mail contract between Philadelphia and Atlantic City, today demanded in a statement congressional investigation of the awarding of air mail contracts.

The statement declared the Ludington Corporation will continue its challenge of the "illegality and impropriety of the recent action of the Postmaster General in awarding a contract for the carriage of the air mail between Atlantic City and New York, Philadelphia and Washington without competitive bidding at an annual cost to the Government of approximately $100,000 when an efficient air mail service could be given to Atlantic City for approximately $15,000.

Solomon in All His Glory Never Had a Brown Derby

By JOHN J. DALY

FEMININE fashions, replete with reflection of picturesque periods in history—the days of the flounce and the flute—are to be counterbalanced by similar splendor in male raiment.

Not that the male of the species is going back to knee breeches, silken stockings and buckled shoon—heaven forbid!—for there are enough sights already in golf togs; but—and this is authentic—the style masters of Fifth avenue have decreed that the male wardrobe must have a motif of splendor.

Fall and winter suits will be made with broad, expansive shoulders tapering to the waist, full, worked-in chest effect, and peg-topped trousers. This, at first blush, would seem like a return to the old collegiate days, when the classes of Oughty-one and Oughty-two, and thereabouts, paraded the campus with sawed-off hat bands gaily bedecked with the colors of dear old alma mater—always a giddy sight! However, the tailors have other ideas. They are going back further than that.

Heretofore, especially in recent years, the male has been somewhat somber in his sartorial accoutrements. Drab colors predominated; elephant-breath blue, ostrich feather black, ale brown—old October Ale brown.

* * * *

IN a little while, a repercussion will be heard which will bring with it the glories of another age. 'Twill be not quite like an explosion in a paint factory, and yet it will have a daub, at least, of color calling to its mate. The Rainbow Division of style is about to capture another front.

The well-dressed man will be more resplendent in his glorious attire, and not subdued. In this, he will follow the lead of other males in the animal kingdom—the puissant peacock, the domineering rooster, cock-o'-the-walk, the magnificent Leo, the bull buffalo. Nature will lead the way from the rococo to au naturel in the art of clothes.

Lighter shades will predominate in flannels, unfinished worsted, and saxonies—revivified sack suits from Saxony.

Top coats of the raglan style, with no belt.

Tie raglan!

There is the touch-off.

* * * *

WHEN the raglan—a garment named after Lord Raglan, who made his reputation in the Crimea—first appeared in this country it was the sensation of the sartors. In fact, it was a sartorial; which is to say, an epic. Its loose, large sleeves were copious as a cape, suggestive somewhat of the throw-ons worn by the swashbucklers and sword bearers of the Seventeenth Century.

This, then, is the keynote of the fall styles. Men of the Twentieth Century, in the grip of the Machine Age, will return in fashion's fancy to the era of knighthood, when a gentleman stepped forth with plumed hat and flowing cape, a rapier by his side, a smile on his lips, beneath the waxed mustachios, and a flip of the finger in the face of fate.

Clothes make the man either a giant or a dwarf, in the world of fashion. Tailors realize this, and are determined to set manhood back on the pedestal.

Only a step from the new styles to the bell-girdles and starched ruffs of the Sir Walter Raleigh period, and my lord shall sit him down in all the splendor of courtly days.

There is only one discordant note: The brown derby is coming back.

Two Feudists Die In Battle at Fair

One Slug From Kentucky Mountaineer's Pistol Wounds Three.

Monticello, Ky., Sept. 4 (A.P.).—A long-standing feud between members of two mountain families flared here last night and Lon Guffey, 35, and Otho Lovelack were killed in a pistol battle at the Wayne County fair grounds.

Deputy Sheriff James Castillo was shot through the left hand by one of the bullets fired by Guffey. The same bullet wounded two bystanders.

Fox Lovelace was killed twelve years ago by a man named Blevins. Blevins died before being tried. Clarence Lovelace was killed eight years ago by Sheriff F. L. Rice, who was acquitted. Lyle Lovelace, 20, was the third of the family slain. After his slaying Guffey was arrested and held for trial in November.

New Parking Bans Ordered by Board

Left-Hand-Turn Rule Also Is Clarified by the Commission.

Two more parking bans were ordered yesterday by the District Commissioners upon recommendation of Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer.

Parking was ordered abolished on the west side of Fourteenth street, between F and G streets, because of the unusually heavy traffic on this narrow thoroughfare. A large portion of the parking space was recently eliminated when a street car loading platform was placed on the street. A similar rule was approved for Twelfth street, between the driveway entrance and exit to the Department of Agriculture, on the west side, also because of the congestion of traffic.

An amendment was made to the left hand turn regulation, drawn up recently, which is scheduled to go into effect September 15, to make it clearly cover uncontrolled as well as controlled intersections. The new left turn requires the motorist to pull up to the center of an intersection and turn left while the forward light is green.

Capital Buds Given Surprise By New Girls

Helen Robbins and Charlotte Mayo Are Announced to Come Out.

Unheralded heretofore, two new debutantes step into the picture for the coming season. They are Miss Helen Robbins, otherwise known as "Sunshine," daughter of the new Chief of the Division of Protocol and Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins, and Miss Charlotte Mayo, daughter of Mrs. Pendleton Mayo, of Georgetown, and Capt. Claude B. Mayo, U. S. N. The list of this year's debutantes has already reached extraordinary proportions, and the addition of these two attractive buds to the group gives promise of a gay season.

Although Mrs. Mayo has not as yet chosen a date for her daughter's presentation, she will form plans later in the season. On her mother's side Miss Mayo claims distinguished connections. She is a great-granddaughter of William L. Marcy, who was Governor of New York and served as Secretary of State and Secretary of War. Also numbered among her forebears is George Pendleton, senator from Ohio.

Miss Robbins will take her place among the official buds of the season, although plans for her debut are still tentative, awaiting the arrival of Mrs. Robbins, who has been spending several months with her family in Buenos Aires. Mr. Robbins, who has been with his wife in Argentina, will arrive in New York Monday. Having been on leave from his post as Minister to El Salvador, he will come at once to Washington to assume his duties as ceremonials officer at the White House.

Mr. and Mrs. Robbins were in Washington the early part of the summer for a visit, and later, with their three children, sailed for South America for a vacation. Mrs. Robbins was a famous Argentine beauty, Irene de Bryun, and her debutante daughter, incidentally, has inherited her good looks. Helen has been in Washington with her parents on many occasions, but only for brief visits, as she has been attending Fermata School. Thus the gayety attending a formal presentation will be new to her and her appearance as a bud of the season is eagerly looked forward to.

FRANCES M'DONALD

TOO MUCH BUSINESS.

DEAR FRANCES McDONALD:

Can you tell me what is wrong with me? I am 30 years old, have a good home, good health and not bad looking, and up to date in clothes, &c., and run a successful business of my own, and drive my own car, and all who know me, speak of me as a pleasant girl and having a good disposition, but never do any of the men seem to notice me. Only the men I have business dealings with, and most of them are married and off and on they will say very nice things to me, but as I tell them if they were single they would never notice me, and of course I do not care to have married men's attention, as I am not that kind. I am not forward and some times think I give too much of my time to the business and not enough to myself. I enjoy life and like all good clean sports and would really like to know just what is wrong with me, and why the men seem to take so little notice of me. Friends have told me I am too fussy, but I would just like to know what your viewpoint would be. Thanking you, I remain, FRANCES.

You are on the right track when you suspect that you are too absorbed in your business. You must force yourself to be a bit more frivolous. Men are terribly afraid of heavy thinkers. Afraid of what a heavy thinker might very well think of them! They are more than a bit jealous, too, of a woman's success in what they still regard as their particular field—business. They have at last become reconciled to the woman stenographer and office worker but still feel that any further venturing on the part of mere woman is a distinct challenge to their supremacy. Poor infants. They may well worry. When woman really realizes her power she will have the world in the palm of her hand and man at her feet. But she is still day-dreaming about white chargers mounted by stern knights and so she is still just the little woman. But man senses the danger of her waking up. And so he frowns darkly upon those who venture after the rewards of trade.

Just a tip. When around men talk nonsense. It keeps them off guard. They go home thinking you cute, and send you flowers. But if you hold forth on the tariff they shrivel and go home wishing they could send you a bomb.

Wear frivolous clothes that are in good taste, wear some attractive color about you, wear fresh flowers when possible, have beautiful hands and let them be seen, and then look at the man. Not like a judge imposing a fine but wonderingly, admiringly, breathlessly. It starts everything off right and then you can sit back from your labors and let them do all the rest. And will he! They love it. "Are you tired—are you happy—and on and on and on."

Business is great, Frances, but oh what you have been missing! Get busy at woman's real job and begin to live!

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

CARDINAL O'CONNELL, of Boston, for the Catholics, the Right Rev. Irving Peake Johnson, Episcopal Bishop of Colorado, for the Protestants, and Rabbi Wise for the Jewish people, a week from tomorrow will inaugurate Columbia's new plan of religious broadcasting, whereby religious broadcasts on a commercial basis were abolished and regular Sunday time periods were placed at the free disposal of the three great classifications of religious belief in America—Protestant, Catholic and Jewish.

Protestant services will generally occupy the Sunday morning periods, beginning at 9 o'clock, the Catholic services will begin at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon periods, at which time they will not conflict with the morning hours devoted to mass in Catholic churches; and most of the Jewish services will also be held at 1:30 p. m., alternating with the Catholic period.

Paul D. P. Spearman, who has just resigned as assistant general counsel of the Federal Radio Commission, will be associated with Littlepage & Littlepage, of Washington.

This is one of the oldest concerns specializing in radio law, Thomas P. Littlepage, sr., senior member of the concern, claiming the distinction of having appeared in the first case ever tried before the Federal Radio Commission, that of Station WBBM, Chicago, against the Zenith Radio Corporation which was seeking the WBBM wave.

Descriptions of the running of the Hopeful Stakes and the Saratoga Cup, two outstanding events of the racing season at Saratoga, will be broadcast this afternoon (WMAL, 3:15 p. m.; WRC, 3:30 p. m.).

The premiere of a new series may be heard over the WJZ network tonight, 7:30 p. m. Audrey Marsh, soprano; John Hale, tenor, and an orchestra under the direction of Ben Selvin will be featured, with Louis A. Witten as master of ceremonies.

THOUGH Shakespeare didn't meet the radio, he did broadcast these remarks:

"Ah, stand by," Anthony and Cleopatra; "Take up some other station," Coriolanus, and "His lecture will be done ere you have tuned," Taming of the Shrew.

"And my dial goes not true," All's Well That Ends Well; "'Tis no matter how it be in tune, so it makes noise enough," As You Like It, and "And those musicians that shall play to you hang in the air a thousand leagues from hence," Henry IV, "The Ink Spot."

OPPOSITION to granting the application of Columbia to put in a booster station here to supplant WMAL and bring their full WABC programs directly into the Capital is voiced by the Associated Broadcasters of America. This policy, it believes, might result in a monopoly of broadcast communications and a number of stations would be forced out of existence.

Also rumors about town are that M. A. Leese, owner of Station WMAL, is not so happy over his situation as the blurb given out to the press by Columbia earlier in the week would have the public believe.

Mr. Leese is said to feel that Columbia has left him "holding the bag." On the other hand it is contended that repeated offers were made by the company to buy WMAL.

"Up to the present time the broadcast chains have functioned along lines similar to the press associations," the Broadcasters' protest goes on. "If the press associations were to embark on a policy of owning or controlling all newspapers using their dispatches, it would produce a situation too serious to contemplate. For the chains to attempt to own or control all stations using their programs would result in a situation even more dangerous.

"If the Columbia Broadcasting System is permitted to do this in Washington, it is reasonable to suppose that the same thing would be attempted in all other cities of the United States. It is no secret, in fact, that this is exactly what is contemplated and that the erection of the station in Washington is the first step in such a program."

FROM Ballyhoo:

"Hello, Everybody! This is Graham Cracker talking to you direct from the ringside of the Yankee Stadium and what a crowd! What a crowd! The place is packed! I see Al Smith over there. Hey, Al! Say something to the folks, will you? Pardon me, folks, my mistake. The man I thought was Al Smith was Paul Whiteman. There's Jimmy Walker! Hi, Jimmy! Ha! Ha! That wasn't the Mayor after all! It was Legs Diamond! Ha! Ha!"

Dare Interprets the Mode

Paris, Sept. 4.

ACCORDING to the Paris collections we're going to indulge in funny furry fancies in a great big way as soon as the weather gets cool enough to permit it! We have already seen the tendency toward lavishness in suit trimmings and autumn coats, but as the season advances not only will there be lavishness, but whimsy.

The whimsy which will be most often seen is the way furs will be applied to give the smart diagonal and angular lines. Coats with entire fur tops aren't particularly new, but the way these fur tops follow the diagonal, angular movement is very new—and very delightful. Cuffs and collars are diagonal in cut, too, applied at unusual angles, and very often made of two different kinds of pelts, sewed together in diagonal stripping.

One coat that Mamzelle saw at the latest Paris collections was of black "suedina," a black woolen fabric very like duvetyn, with a dull, suede-like surface, with very interesting diagonal incrustations and a diagonal hem line. And the collar was of strips of black lynx—the strips about two inches wide—which alternated, on a decided slant, with two-inch wide strips of snow lynx, that creamy, tawny variety of lynx which is found only in the mountain fastness of faraway India. Stunning? And in spite of the profuse use of the word "diagonal" that simply has to be used to describe the latest line of autumnal garments, when you see the garments, you never get an impression of too much of a muchness!

'N' then, when we hear that we are in all probability going to discard all our old glove notions in favor of gloves with flaring fur gauntlets, we may be able to guess at the scope of cold weather fur novelties.

Women just can't get along without a dressy coat, no matter how they try! There are so many occasions when they're a necessity, not a matter of choice at all! And of all fabrics suitable to be made into dressy coats, black crepes or black satin seem much the loveliest. Not only are they lovely in themselves, but lend themselves to beautiful and unusual treatment. The coat I have sketched for you today, from Philippe et Gaston, is a splendid example of the beauty and adaptability of black crepe marocain. The odd circular incrustations over the hips hold the coat closely, and then fall free in graceful, circular flounces. These sleeves are a very unusual combination of a modified dolman and bell sleeve, and the shawl collar is of soft black fox.

If you decide on black satin or crepe for your dressy coat, don't just let it go at that—this is one type of outer wrap that gains distinction with detail.

• • • •

What would you like to wear beneath your new sheer crepe frock? A slip, of course. 'N' what beneath your georgette that's made up on a fitted bodice? A petticoat, naturally! 'N' what with the chiffon blouse that you wear with your new, ever so full velvet skirt? Why, just a camisole! But those three things sound dreadfully expressive (and I can't help wondering where you'd buy a camisole at any price, useful as it is) until you know that by sending your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post you will get directions for making one costume slip that is formed of a clever camisole and a delightful underskirt!

What Today Means to You

"VIRGO."

IF September 5 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:15 a. m. to 11:30 a. m., from 2:35 p. m. to 4:45 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger hours are from noon to 2:15 p. m. and from 6 p. m. to 8 p. m.

September 5 is, astrologically speaking, a rather hazardous day, fraught with unlucky influences. All who follow dangerous sports and pusuits stand in peril; many disruptive factors will hinder the formation of friendships and upset the existing ties. Likewise, a bad time for undertaking a long journey.

A child born on this September 5 will possess an orderly and a methodical mind coupled with much strength of character. It will, perhaps in early years, lack initiative and enterprise. However, this condition will alter itself in adulthood. It will be very loving with a fair amount of personality and charm.

You, if born on September 5, have a very ardent and intense nature. There is too much sentiment and romance in your makeup for you to ever lead a dull and an uninteresting life. Your disposition conduces to popularity, sociability and friendship. You have a strong inclination to worship those whom you love, and you place your loved ones on a pedestal, from which they, with their human fallacies, are bound to fall, accosional moments of becoming a You will have occasional moments of becoming a man or a woman hater, as the case may be.

Your active and emotional nature will fit you for any occupation which calls for imagination, love of beauty and those faculties that work through music, acting, writing or painting. Your horoscope denotes a certain amount of material success, but you are curiously indifferent to money and the position money would enable you to occupy. You love your work, and are content with sincere recognition and praise. You are a very truthful and delicate character, and dislike any forms of arrogance and ostentatiousness. You do not like to put yourself in the limelight, and your modesty is one of your greatest charms. You can, however, use force and determination if the occasion arises, and in times of necessity possess much physical courage and mental fortitude.

You are naturally a great home lover, and you will prove to be an ideal mate, understanding and kind at all times.

Successful people born September 5: Cornelius Vanderbilt, capitalist. Joseph Bucklin Bishop, writer. Myron W. Whitney, singer. John G. Carlisle, statesman. Edward H. House, author and journalist. Amy M. Cheney Beach, composer.

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me why my gladioli have dried up this year just as they were setting their buds. I gave away some of my bulbs and they have all bloomed beautifully.

HERMAN H. E.

Gladioli require a sunny location and a sandy soil, though they will grow in a heavy soil, provided there is perfect drainage. Well-rotted stable manure is the best form of fertilizer, and where convenient it should be spread over the land in the fall and dug in the following spring. Sheep manure is an excellent substitute which may be applied in the spring. Perhaps you have not given the bulbs sufficient water. There is also the possibility that you used too much of the fertilizer which you mentioned.

Please tell me why a grape vine 3 years old fails to bear fruit.

READER.

It is hard to answer your letter, as you have told me nothing about the vine except its age. It may be a case of poor soil, lack of moisture or improper pruning.

I have a snake plant which I purchased from a reliable florist four weeks ago. So far it has not sent up one new leaf. What do you suggest?

E. R.

It may be several months before the plant sends up new leaves. The sansevieria is not an especially rapid grower; at least, it does not develop leaves in a month. Keep it in a rather sunny place and water it three times a week.

Please tell me the name of the flower I am inclosing. SANDY.

Monarda (Bee Balm or Bergamot). This is the plant that is said to entice humming birds. Bergamot is easily divided and new plants start readily. This should be done in the spring. Plants can also be raised from seed.

Please tell me the name of the shrub from which the inclosed leaf was taken. I got the bush in the woods. MRS. B. B.

Am sorry, but I can not identify the plant. It is likely a wildling.

Please tell me whether I can successfully, without a greenhouse, start a cutting from a gardenia plant. NO SIGNATURE.

I doubt it. If you care to try, use good soil and after the cutting roots, keep the young plant in the sun. While rooting keep it in the shade.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By ELY CULBERTSON

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

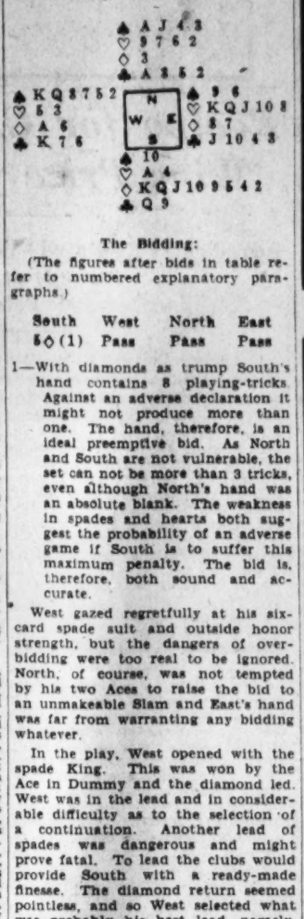
WINNING BY FORCE.

SQUEEZE plays, or rather the opportunity for squeeze plays, occur frequently at the Bridge table. There is scarcely a session of Bridge of three or four hours' duration in which through the use of a squeeze a contract otherwise unobtainable could not have been made. The squeeze play, as the term is used in Bridge, defines the forcing of the discard of a winning card by one or both opponents. Sometimes the situation arises in which winning cards can be forced out of both adverse hands. At other times it is only necessary to apply the pressure against one adversary. Such plays as these occur, of course, through the running of a long suit, generally the trump suit, if there is a trump, or an established suit at notrump. It is conservative to say that half of the time, even among the stronger Contract players, the opportunity to use this play occurs more than twice as frequently as does the recognition of the fact by players. The squeeze situation generally must be recognized long in advance of the actual play itself and the groundwork properly laid for its application.

Today's hand aptly illustrates a simple pressure squeeze whereby through discarding the opponents were rendered helpless and forced to concede to the Declarer a Contract that on its face might appear unmakeable.

East and West vulnerable. North and South not vulnerable. South Dealer.



The Bidding:

(The figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
5◇ (1)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—With diamonds as trump South's hand contains 8 playing-tricks. Against an adverse declaration it might not produce more than one. The hand, therefore, is an ideal preemptive bid. As North and South are not vulnerable, the set can not be more than 3 tricks, even although North's hand was an absolute blank. The weakness in spades and hearts both suggest the probability of an adverse game if South is to suffer this maximum penalty. The bid is, therefore, both sound and accurate.

West gazed regretfully at his six-card spade suit and outside honor strength, but the dangers of overbidding were too real to be ignored. North, of course, was not tempted by his two Aces to raise the bid to an unmakeable Slam and East's hand was far from warranting any bidding whatever.

In the play, West opened with the spade King. This was won by the Ace in Dummy and the diamond led. West was in the lead and in considerable difficulty as to the selection of a continuation. Another lead of spades was dangerous and might prove fatal. To lead the clubs would provide South with a ready-made finesse. The diamond return seemed pointless, and so West selected what was probably his best lead, namely, a heart. This South won with the Ace and then proceeded to play seven rounds of diamonds. Both East and West followed once, but then each was forced to seek discards. West parted with four spades, his remaining heart and one club. East gave up one spade, three hearts and two clubs. The Dummy had discarded three hearts, two spades and two clubs. West, with the club Ace as spade Knave, with the club Ace as an entry, had been compelled to retain the spade Queen. On the eleventh round of play the four hands were as follows:

South played the heart four. West was squeezed. North discarded after him, so he was compelled to unguard the club King. North now discarded the spade Knave and East won with the heart Queen, and was compelled to lead a club. South played the Ten and West's now unguarded King fell to Dummy's Ace and the game-making trick was made with the club Queen. Thus, through the application of the squeeze a game was made that less accurate play would have sacrificed on the altar of what might have been.

TODAY'S POINTER.

The first game of a rubber is worth to either side about 400 points. If you have won the first game and opponents have not yet won a game, the second game is worth about 500 points. When both sides have won a game, the value of the third or rubber game to either side is about 800 points. A part score of 40 or more is worth about 160 points. An understanding of these values will guide you in determining whether to continue with your own bid or inflict a penalty on your opponents.

RAILROAD INCOMES NET $295,085,044

Yield for First Seven Months Is 2.19 Per Cent; Loss Over Last Year.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Announcement was made yesterday by the Bureau of Railway Economics, with headquarters in the Transportation Building, that class 1 railroads of the United States had a net railway operating income of $295,085,044, for the first seven months of this year, which was at an annual rate of return of 2.19 per cent on their property investment, according to reports filed with the bureau. In the first seven months of 1930, their net railway operating income was $460,448,586, or 3.48 per cent on property investment.

Property investment is the value of road and equipment as shown by the books of the railways, including materials, supplies and cash. The net railway operating income is what is left after the payment of operating expenses, taxes and equipment rentals, but before interest and other fixed charges are paid.

This compilation as to earnings for the first seven months of 1931 is based on reports from 171 class 1 railroads representing a total of 242,905 miles.

Operating Revenues Drop.

Gross operating revenues for the first seven months of 1931 totaled $2,564,583,852, compared with $3,149,353,490 for the same period in 1930, or a decrease of 18.6 per cent. Operating expenses for the first seven months of 1931 amounted to $1,996,901,513, compared with $2,405,567,388 for the same period one year ago or a decrease of 17 per cent.

Class I railroads in the first seven months of 1931 paid $193,544,950 in taxes, compared with $211,632,286 for the same period in 1930, a decrease of 8.5 per cent. For the month of July alone, the tax bill of these railroads was $28,806,324, a decrease of $2,527,373 under July the previous year.

Thirty-five class I railroads operated at a loss in the first seven months of 1931, of which eleven were in the Eastern, six in the Southern and eighteen in the Western district. Class I railroads for the month of July alone had a net railway operating income of $56,534,903, which, for that month, was at the annual rate of return of 2.37 per cent on their property investment. In July, 1930, their net railway operating income was $83,069,375 or 3.55 per cent.

July Revenues Less.

Gross operating revenues for the month of July amounted to $377,146,417, compared with $457,097,548 in July 1930, a decrease of 17.5 per cent. Operating expenses in July totaled $280,127,321, compared with $331,618,988 for the same month in 1930, a decrease of 15.5 per cent.

Personnel of the finance committee of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, to serve for the present administrative year, was announced yesterday by President Aubrey O. Dooley of the chapter as the following: Chairman, Frank M. Perley, American Security & Trust Co.; members, T. Hunton Leith, Security Savings & Commercial Bank; I. J. Roberts, Riggs National Bank; Robert A. Sisson, Washington Savings Bank; James A. Soper, Lincoln National Bank.

Mr. Perley, the chairman, has been associated with American Security & Trust Co. since 1918. He joined the chapter in 1920 and served as chief consul in 1927-28. He has served on practically all committees of the chapter and was its second vice president and chairman of its membership committee in 1928-29. He was first vice president and chairman of its educational committee in 1929-30 and was president of the chapter in 1930-31. Mr. Perley is an institute standard certificate holder, a graduate of Central High School and of Georgetown Law School in 1925, having a bachelor of laws degree. He was admitted to the District bar the same year.

He is also a member of the Washington Board of Trade and active on its membership committee.

Committee on Budget.

This committee has the preparation and supervision of the annual budget which amounts to approximately $20,000. With some fourteen different committees expending money throughout the year, it can readily be seen that close control is required to guard against a deficit.

A more careful supervision is planned this year than has ever been attempted before and it is expected that considerable savings will be effected.

American Ice Co. reports that its production of ice for air cooling and conditioning purposes amounted to 1,250,000 pounds in the month of July. While this volume is only a fraction of the company's total production, this is the first year in which ice has been used for air cooling, hence the figure is significant as indicating the large demand for ice which will follow more general adoption of air cooling in theaters, restaurants, churches, residences and other places.

New Tax on Tobacco Expected in London

London, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—Restrictions on the clearance of tobacco stocks from bond were placed today on all tobacco firms. The action was interpreted as an indication that a new tobacco tax will be included in the emergency budget to be presented next week at the special session of Parliament.

London tea merchants are taking precautions against a possible tax on that commodity by making heavy withdrawals from warehouses.

Tea paid a tax in Great Britain from the days of Queen Elizabeth up to 1929, when Winston Churchill in his last budget removed the duty, then four pence a pound.

ABSENT MINISTERS FAST RETURNING

Some Prominent Pastors, However, Away on Long Vacations.

One by one the absent ministers of Washington are returning to their congregations and tomorrow will see several of them back in their pulpits. Some have taken long vacations, extending pretty much over the entire summer, and others have been gone for a month or six weeks, only.

Among the more prominent absentees are Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, minister of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, who has spent the summer in Europe gathering material for a series of sermons and lectures as well as recuperating from a hard year's work; Dr. Z. B. Phillips, rector of the Church of the Epiphany, who has been quietly resting in New England; Dr. Albert J. Macartney, minister of the Covenent-First Presbyterian Church, who went to the Holy Land with his brother, Dr. Clarence S. Macartney; Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen, pastor of Luther Place Church, who took a post-graduate course at Columbia University; Dr. Robert Johnston, rector of St. John's, who spent part of the summer in the mountains of the East and then went to Paris to officiate at a wedding; and Dr. W. A. Shelton, pastor of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, who is now motoring through the West.

Jesus Took Vacations.

Virtually every minister in Washington takes a summer vacation. Why should they not? Jesus did. He often grew weary with his heavy labors and went into the mountains to rest and pray. The labors of a busy city pastor are so exacting that they must have surcease from them ever so often if they would not break down in some of their parts.

Of those who have been absent for some time it is noted that the following have returned: Dr. John C. Palmer, minister of Washington Heights Presbyterian Church, who, with his son John, motored through the West to Yellowstone National Park; Dr. Allen A. Stockdale, minister of the First Congregational Church, who spent a quiet time at his cottage in Greensboro, Vt.; the Rev. George E. Schnabel, pastor of Albright Evangelical Church, who visited the Holy Land; Dr. Andrew Reid Bird, minister of the Church of the Pilgrims, who motored through New England with his family; Dr. James H. Taylor, minister of Central Presbyterian Church, who being a true Carolinian, and an antiquarian as well, spent the hot months visiting old Colonial Presbyterian churches in the Carolinas; the Rev. Robert Louis Wood, pastor of Petworth Methodist Church, who, though a native of Winchester, Va., has never seen the South and has been motoring through the great Smoky Mountains, and Dr. John Compton Ball, pastor of Metropolitan Baptist Church, who spent two months at Lake Mohonk, N. Y.

Others Away in Summer.

This list by no means comprises all those who have been absent from their pulpits. The Rev. Frank S. Niles, minister of Georgetown Presbyterian Church; Dr. H. W. Burgan, pastor of Hamline Methodist Church; Dr. A. J. Porter, pastor of the First Baptist Church; Dr. Bernard Braskamp, minister of Gunton Temple Presbyterian Church; the Rev. Godfrey Chobot, minister of the Sixth Presbyterian Church, and a host of others were absent in places which were not made known, and all are now back, glad their vacations are over and happy to return to their well beloved flocks. D. R. B.

The Rev. S. Carroll Coale, pastor of Brightwood Park Methodist Church, will be in his pulpit tomorrow at both services.

Dr. Andrew Reid Bird, minister of the Church of the Pilgrims, will return today from a summer spent touring New England with his family. He writes that he has had a most interesting outing and has been invigorated by it. He will preach twice on Sunday.

EPISCOPAL WOMEN TO HAVE SERVICE

District Thank Offering to Be Presented at Ascension Church Tomorrow.

Out of the African jungles, the frozen wastes of the North, the swarming market places of the East will come bishops and missionaries to attend the fiftieth triennial convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church in Denver, Colo., September 16 to October 1. One of the impressive features will be the presentation of over $1,000,000 to missionaries by the 500,000 women members of the church.

The huge gift will be received in a gold alms-basin which was presented to the church by the members of the denomination in Oxford University in memory of Bishop Seabury, the first American bishop. The collection is known as the united thank offering. Each woman member of the church has in her possession a little blue box in which she puts small contributions from time to time, for blessings received (a thank offering).

The first offering was collected in 1889. It amounted to $2,188.64. That sum was used to build a mission church in Alaska and support one missionary. At the last convention held in Washington in 1928 the contribution was $1,101,450.40, which, in addition to providing for the workers in the mission field, provided for the erection of a number of schools and hospitals in all parts of the world.

The final presentation of the united thank offering of the women of the Episcopal Church in the Diocese of Washington will be held at Ascension Church, Massachusetts avenue and Twelfth street northwest, tomorrow at 8:00 p. m. The service will be the sixth held in Washington for this triennium. The Rev. F. Alan Parsons will conduct this service and Bishop Freeman will speak of the united thank offering, with which he is particularly familiar due to his long association with the department of missions.

It is hoped there will be a large attendance.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

THOSE resounding huzzas and all that whoop-de-doo that interrupted your siesta yesterday afternoon a little the other side of 4 o'clock was the welcome accorded Joe E. Brown upon his arrival at Union Station from New York, accompanied by Mrs. Brown, his private secretary and a strained ligament in his off ankle.

Mr. Brown, who begins a week of personal appearances at the Earle today was greeted by John J. Payette, territorial manager for the Warner Brothers, the executive staff of the local Warner organization, members of the press, news photographers and a large assemblage of avid idolators, and then was whisked with his entourage to a sumptuous suite in the Shoreham Hotel, where open house was held for as many as could muster some more substantial reason than mere curiosity for being present.

Nice restful time these visiting stars have!

But about that damaged ankle. It was sustained during Mr. Brown's engagement in Newark, while he was engaging in a lot of comical monkey business with members of the Bee-hee-Rubyat troupe of Arabian acrobats—seen not so long ago at the Earle, by the way—whowere on the same bill and put a little too much enthusiasm and elbow grease into their clowning, thus making the famous comedian the victim of what might with complete propriety be referred to as a monkey wrench!

And how have YOU been?

If some of our producing managers could be prevailed upon to share the concern of the press agents and publicists over the present outlook in the theater there might be vastly more hope for the success of the widely circularized S. O. S.—Save Our Stage—campaign than there is.

It must be just a trifle disheartening to the membership of the T. P. R. O. A., who are sponsoring the S. O. S. drive, to contemplate the disturbing spectacle of two such important factors in the amusement world as the Shuberts and the Erlanger offices engaged in a cutthroat battle that partakes of much the same general flavor as an old-time circus war, when tents were burned down and eyes gouged out.

It all centers in the unexpected triumph of the Milton Aborn revival of Gilbert and Sullivan's best known and best loved operettas. Mr. Aborn's suggestion that something of the kind might prove a source of unexpected revenue, as I understand it, was scoffed at raucously by most of the Broadway wiseacres—including the Messrs. Shubert—until it had been proved an inspired bit of prescience in the Erlanger Theater.

Now a second company, under rival auspices, is dogging the Aborn organization around the East in a desperate and not wholly unsuccessful effort to beat it to the punch and the boxoffice "gravy" in such metropolitan centers as seem ripe for a Gilbert and Sullivan cleanup—as what one does not. The matter has been given serious editorial attention in the leading daily journals of Boston, New York and other obscure villages along the Eastern seaboard.

Perhaps it has not been made sufficiently clear that S. O. S. is supposed to mean "Save Our Stage," not "Steal Others' Stuff!"

Under present arrangements, I believe, the Gilbert and Sullivan revivals by the Civic Light Opera Company, Milton Aborn, director, are booked for the Capital in January—provided, of course, that it does not prove to be a war of extermination and they are ALL killed off.

Twenty-five companies representing franchise holders in the Columbia Burlesque Circuit are this week doing their bit to alleviate the unemployment situation by traveling to their respective opening points on the "wheel" to begin the new season on Labor Day—which in Washington is moved up to tomorrow afternoon by Sam Raynor and his "Gang."

Embraced in these organizations are more than 1,000 men and women, including principal players, chorus girls, stage hands and musical directors.

The Columbia Circuit, of which I. H. Herk is president and general manager, includes the principal cities from Buffalo to Washington and from Boston to St. Louis, in each of which a full week is played with return spring engagements in many, bringing the complete season up to about 38 weeks.

Harry W. Crull, general manager of the Fox, was chuckling to himself when I wedged my way in to catch the stage show yesterday afternoon. It seems he had just received word from Detroit that Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell in "Merely Mary Ann" had attracted 3,500 patrons, in round numbers, the first hour it was on view in the Michigan metrolops.

In its first hour at the local Fox yesterday, "Huckleberry Finn," with Junior Durkin, Jackie Coogan, Mitzi Green and Jackie Searl, had drawn slightly over 3,800—400 more than the seating capacity of the theater.

As I say, Mr. Crull was chuckling. Or maybe it was chortling.

"Merely Mary Ann," unless it was you who just got on the elevator, opens on F street next Thursday night at a special advance showing for which the delegates will assemble at 11:30.

And since Monday is a holiday, you had better get the orange juice and White Rock tonight!

Istanbul Storm Kills Four.

Istanbul, Turkey, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—Four persons were killed, several were injured and a number of houses were destroyed in a violent storm which lasted 40 minutes, early today. A heavy rain flooded streets, tied up transportation and interrupted communications several hours.

75 See Nevada Slayer Put to Death by Gas

Carson City, Nev., Sept. 4 (U.P.).—Luis Cejas, murderer, smiled grimly in Nevada's tiny cubicle of a death house today. Some 75 persons crowded about the building, their eyes pressed to the double-paned windows.

The sheriff pulled a trip-cord. It tumbled fifteen capsules of cyanide into a bucket of water and sulphuric acid. The mixture fumed. The scent of almonds permeated the room. The smile left Ceja's face. He lost consciousness; was pronounced dead in 25 minutes.

Two Indicted in Killing Of Bank-Theft Suspect

Houston, Tex., Sept. 4 (U.P.).—Charges of murder were preferred late today against two men in connection with the death of John Cherris, former convict and indicted bank robber, whose body, bullet-riddled and weighted with wagon hubs, was found in the Brazos River near here. Cherris had been charged with robbing a Memphis, Tenn., bank.

Names of the men charged were not revealed. The charge came after A. J. Jones, brother of C. A. Jones, another gangster victim, had appeared before the Harris grand jury.

THERE WERE THREE WOMEN IN THE LIFE OF THIS BOY—

This Boy

Who loved neither wisely nor well,
Who reached after romance with greedy hands,
Who judged the world by surface values,
Who took what he wanted — and found that wasn't enough . . .

ROBERTA ALDEN

Who loved with complete abandon of self,
Who gave without counting the cost,
Who was so young, and so simple, and so—inexperienced . . .

Was it her fault that her love stood for rooming houses, and furtive kisses, secret meetings, and poverty?

THE RIGHT WOMAN WAS SONDRA FINCHLEY

Sondra who was moonlight and gold, Who was the scent of gardenias, Who was dance music, And satin, And high powered cars . . . Sondra who was illusion, And splendor!

It was worth doing anything to win her.

THE THIRD WOMAN WAS HIS MOTHER

Who was the first, And the last—Who gave him the gift of life, But who, though loving him, Could not give him luxury, Or beauty, Or a fine soul, Or even high ideals . . .

But—at the end—she gave him a greater gift—She gave him the courage he lacked.

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

MR. PATSY DONOVAN, generalissimo of the Mohawk Club's stable of box fighters, informs this department by letter than the Fort Washington boxing officials have pulled the switch on him. In his own words, he has been sidetracked, given the run-around.

Mr. Donovan takes up the cudgel for his battler Frankie De Angelo, who was left out in the cold in negotiations for the feature fight at the Fort two weeks hence, when Billy Landers, of Norfolk, will meet Midget Wolgast, recognized by the New York Boxing Commission as the flyweight champion of the world.

The bout belongs to his man De Angelo, Donovan avers. It isn't the De Angelo-Wolgast fight that Donovan wants, but a return match between Landers and De Angelo in justice to his boy, who helped build up the sport at Fort Washington, as he says.

Listen to Donovan

Listen to Donovan:

"Here's a kick, and I think it's a good one. Billy Landers and Frankie De Angelo fought the best bout seen at Fort Washington in many a day, with Landers getting a questionable decision over my boy. The fans showed their disapproval with boos and the newspapers disagreed with the decision. The Washington Post giving the edge to De Angelo.

"Immediately after the fight Frankie Mann, the promoter, suggested that Landers fight Tramberia, of Baltimore, and De Angelo meet the winner. Landers licked Tramberia and De Angelo is now ready for his return shot with Landers.

"Well and good, but Frankie Mann is making overtures to Midget Wolgast to bring him to the Fort for a fight with Landers, and is turning a deaf ear to my pleas on behalf of De Angelo.

"If Fort Washington was Landers' home town, I would have no objection to the Landers-Wolgast fight, but when my own boy is left out in the cold in his own territory then it's time to shout.

Wary of Wolgast

"Just how Mann or anyone else connected with the management of the Fort can figure that Wolgast and Landers will outdraw a local 'natural' I can't understand, unless I have spent the last twenty years in the fight game for nothing. Wolgast will cost the Fort more than DeAngelo, and will draw no more than the capacity which DeAngelo has drawn.

"Then there is still the chance that Wolgast will pull that one-night stand stuff, whereas it is a certainty that DeAngelo and Landers will be in there trying to knock the lights out of each other.

"It looks to me like a repetition of last year. Remember how we built up the game with honest endeavors of local boys? Then at the end of the season the nationally-known boys took the cream and left the bad taste in the fans' mouths. Yes, I mean the Jackie Portney vs. Augie Pisano and Honey Boy Finnigan vs. George Balduc affairs. You remember what they were.

"I guess I'm a chronic kicker, but I like free speech.

"PATSY DONOVAN."

JOHNSON AND WELLS UNABLE TO PROTECT YANKS' 4-RUN LEAD

Myer Ties Game With Double in 8th, Wins by Single in 10th.

Marberry Is Batted Out in Fourth in Two-Run Rally.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

FINISHING like a Man o' War or a Sun Beau, the Nationals, after hopelessly trailing for half of the game yesterday, put on a spurt and literally ran over the Yankees in the home stretch, turning what appeared to be an ignominious defeat into a brilliant 5-to-4 ten-inning victory. Second Baseman Buddy Myer was the boy who did the riding, for it was a lusty double off his bat which drove home two runs to tie the score in the eighth, while he flailed a clean single in the tenth to score the run which broke the deadlock.

Bluege opened this extra inning with a drive to left which netted two bases on a mighty close play at second. Here, for some unknown reason, McCarthy ordered Lefty Ed Wells, who had replaced Henry Johnson in the eighth, to intentionally pass Kuhel, who had fanned his last two times up. Spencer could help none, fouling to Sewell, and Jack Hayes then rolled to Lazzeri. Lazzeri had a double play in mind, but Kuhel cleverly blocked this by roughing Lary at second, so that only he was nipped.

Myer Breaks Up Game With Single.

This let Bluege advance to third and Hayes reach first in safety. The latter was allowed to take second unmolested and then Myer came through with his second timely clout of the day—a clean liner over Lazzeri's head, which would have scored Hayes, too, had another run been needed.

The triumph enabled the Nationals to almost doubltth eir margin over the New Yorkers in the hectic second-place battle, putting the Washington Club two and a half games in front. Incidentally, this was the fifteenth overtime affair in which the Yankees had figured this season, and their tenth overtime loss, they having won four and tied one of the other five.

A gathering of about 15,000, mostly ladies' day guests, was on hand and during the first part of the contest the fans had little excuse for enthusiasm, for the Yankees covered the Nats like a tent. Johnson and Fred Marberry were the starters and the former looked like the best pitcher in the world until the sixth.

Entering this frame, the Nats had but two scratch hits to show for their attack, while the Yanks had piled up four runs while pounding Marberry off the peak. Two had been garnered in the first on Combs' scratch single, Ruth's triple—which looked like it might clear the barrier in deep center when it left the bat—and Gehrig's single.

Yanks Become 4 Up In Fourth.

Rounds two and three did Marberry no harm, but he walked Lary opening the fourth and then followed Dickey's triple, Lazzeri's single and Marberry's exit. This latter development brought Irving Hadley into action and marked the finish of the Yank advance for the day. Neither Hadley, Alvin Crowder nor Carl Fischer granted any more runs.

As already mentioned, Johnson had been a complete puzzle to the Nats, so there was little excitement when Manush opened the sixth by beating out a bunt. When Cronin did likewise, the fans began to sit up and take notice and pandemonium reigned when Johnson walked West and Bluege, forcing one run over and leaving the sacks still filled with none dead.

This brought Kuhel up and he tapped one toward first which eluded Gehrig and went to right field for an apparent triple, knotting the string. Umpire Hildebrand called it a foul, which it looked to be from the press box, and then came some plain and fancy arguing on the part of the entire Nat cast. Of course, it gained nothing and Kuhel then fanned. Spencer, next up, flied deep enough to center to permit Cronin to register after the catch and the rally ended when Joe Judge, up for Hadley, rolled to Gehrig.

Two Strollers Score on Myer's Double.

Two Nats were left in the seventh, and in the eighth Johnson heard the shower call. After disposing of the first two, he walked Spencer and Pinchhitter Dave Harris and then gave Myer one too much to his liking, which resulted in a liner-double to left-center, which even the umpires admitted tied the string this time. Wells appeared here and forced Rice to roll out.

This battihg change brought Fischer into action on the home hill and he suddenly found himself in hot water when, with one out, Sewell singled and took second on a wild pitch. After Ruth had popped to

SOUTHPAWS FACE YANKS TODAY

INDICATIONS are that it will be a left-handed day at Griffith Stadium this afternoon when the Nationals and Yankees engage in a double-header, which starts at 1:30 o'clock, for the managers of both teams plan to call on southpaw pitchers.

For the Nationals it will be Lloyd Brown and either Bob Burke or Carl Fischer, with the latter getting the call if he wants it. The decision is his own to make in view of the fact that he hurled two innings yesterday. McCarthy plans to turn over his mound assignments to the youngster, Vernon Gomez, and the old-timer, Herb Pennock.

With yesterday's game credited on the right side of the ledger, the Nats are now two and a half games in front in their second-place fight with the Yankees, so can not be overtaken today even should they lose both contests—and Manager Johnson is willing to give a written guarantee that such a thing as this will not happen.

President Clark Griffith announced last night that he filed notices of recall with League President William Harridge of all his optioned players. Those concerned are Pitchers Ad Liska, Walter Masters and Lynn Griffith, now at Chatanooga, and Carlos Moore, at Shreveport; Infielders Jim McLeod, at York, and Baxter Jordan, at Newark, and Outfielders Tom Clark and Dave Banks, at Youngstown, and Alvin (Jake) Powell, at Binghamton.

TwentyGrand Choice Over Sun Beau

Heroes of Turf Clash Today at Saratoga in $5,000 Race.

Personality Horses Overshadow Stake for $50,000.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.
Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Two great race horses, invested with almost as much personality as two great prize fighters in a championship fight, will go to the post at Saratoga Saturday afternoon to run a long race for a small prize and a great honor. For once, any way, a contest between famous, game steeds will surpass the money at stake in the public interest. It has been said that if some one should hang up a purse of $1,000,000 for a race between a herd of dairy cows, the customers would swell the walls of Belmont Park to watch them go.

But in the present case, Sun Beau and Twenty Grand, running for a comparatively trivial sum of money, will outdraw a field of 2-year-olds running in the $50,000 Hopeful on the same program. It is frankly admitted that Sun Beau and Twenty Grand in the Saratoga Cup at 1¼ miles are the lure which will have most to do with a migration of some 20,000 people to the Saratoga track. The Cup is a race for only $5,000 added.

Little Heed Paid Other Starters.

Four horses are expected to race in the main event, Sun Beau, the champion handicap horse, with a record of $355,044 in earnings; Twenty Grand, the 3-year-old champion; Sir Ashley and Quarterdeck. But, as on the occasion of that startling affair of a year ago, when Gallant Fox raced Whichone and both were beaten by a nonentity named Jim Dandy, at 100 to 1, nobody is paying any heed to the other two.

However, the bookmakers are more cautious this time, for Sir Ashley was quoted at only 20 to 1, and Quarterdeck at a conservative 30, very modest offerings, considering that they were conceded to have no more chance than the Red Sox at the present writing in the contest for the American League pennant.

Sun Beau Obscure As 2-Year-Old.

Sun Beau at the age of 6 is a horse that came into his winnings and his public recognition comparatively late in life. Like Tommy Gibbons of the prize ring. He was not a promising steed at 2 years old, and when he was 3 he was barely among those present in the big, stylish races such as the Preakness, the Kentucky Derby, and the Belmont.

But often a great 3-year-old runs himself right out of competition and into retirement lest his reputation suffer from subsequent defeats and he goes to the farm more or less forgotten. Sun Beau kept on racing and when he was 5 he won nine races and $105,000 in nineteen starts. And this year, at 6 he has won eight of eleven races and added to his earnings until the world record is his. In fact, he might have won $100,000 more at Agua Caliente last year but for a ride that was described in language that has no place in a paper which goes into the American home.

All Look Alike To Inexpert Eye.

All race horses look pretty much alike to the inexpert eye of the layman and it is doubtful that with the numbers off none of the casual rooters who are so all-of-a-bubble with excitement over this horse race at Saratoga Saturday could tell the two apart or pick them out of a herd. But the people learned to know Dempsey by reading about him, and they have not had to swing on the gate of Sun Beau's stall or Twenty Grand's to learn to regard these

Briton Reigns Favorite in U.S. Tennis

Vines Seen as Stale; Lott Called Chief American Hope.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—With Ellsworth Vines admittedly "overtennised" and others of America's first line of defense failing to show consistent form in recent matches, the foreign threat looms large in the golden jubilee men's singles championships starting tomorrow at Forest Hills.

If there is an outsanding favorite on the eve of the tournament, it probably is Fred Perry, the dashing young English Davis Cup star. His straight-set victory over Vines in their international team match at Germantown this week stamps Perry a real threat for the crown now held by left-handed Johnny Doeg.

Two weeks ago, Vines was a pronounced favorite to romp off with the big cup. He had beaten Perry, Doeg and other topnotchers with monotonous regularity. But his strenuous campaign has told on him and he patently is not the player he was in midsummer. The consensus now is that Frank Shields, George Lott, Johnny Doeg, Sidney Wood or one of the oher American stars will have the task of turning back Perry—if the Briton is to be stopped.

Lott Revives U. S. Hopes.

Lott, who has enjoyed only indifferent success this season, brought renewed hope to the domestic contingent today by turning back George Patrick Hughes, teammate of Perry, to give America its first victory in the round robin meet at Germantown.

Perry is one of three foreign seeded stars who will see action in tomorrow's opening round. He will encounter Julius Seligson of New York, former intercollegiate champion, in the day's third match on the Stadium courts. Jack Wright, of Canada, fifth on the foreign seeded list, meets R. Morris Williams, former champion and American Davis Cup player, in another of the day's feature tilts. Marcel Rainville, of Canada, seeded No. 6 among the invaders, drew M. Buxby for his first opponent.

Doeg Plays Werner In Debut.

Johnny Doeg opens the defense of his title in the day's initial match on the stadium court against Keith Werner, of Boston. Clifford Sutter, of New Orleans, seeded No. 6 on the American list, engages Lester Stoefen, of Los Angeles, while Frank Shields, this country's No. 2, meets F. Sendel.

Outside of the six feature matches, the first day's play will be devoted mainly to cutting down the huge field for the second round of play on Monday. The players will be idle Sunday, affording a welcome day of rest for several players who have had a strenuous week at Germantown and Brookline.

Two matches between unseeded stars have been reserved for the grandstand courts tomorrow. In the first Wilbur F. Coen, jr., one of Bill Tilden's former proteges, meets E. W. Feibleman, of New York. Bruce Barnes, of Austin, Tex., tackles Arnold Jones, of Providence, R. I., in the other. In all, twenty matches are down for settlement the first day.

Lott and Vines Score In International Play

Philadelphia, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—George Lott, jr., of Philadelphia, and Ellsworth Vines, of Pasadena, Calif., flashed reversal of form today to win three matches for the United States in the final of the three-day international tennis series and thus save America from being blanked.

The victories gave the United States three points, only one behind England, the winners. France finished with two.

The United States, blanked during the first two days, scored its first point of the series when Lott defeated George P. "Patsy" Hughes, of England, in straight sets, 6—4, 8—6.

Vines defeated by Frederick Perry, of England, in straight sets Tuesday, followed Lott with a 6—3, 4—6, 6—2, won over Christian Boussus, of France.

Vines and Lott returned to the courts a short time later to defeat Perry and Hughes in a doubles match, 6—4, 6—4.

Vines, who appeared tired in his Tuesday games, showed almost an opposite brand of tennis today in his singles and doubles matches, although he committed a number of errors. In his third set with Boussus, for the first time in his play, Vines found his deadly backhand and volcanic serves. In the doubles, he played like a champion.

VETERAN ELIMINATES HOWELL, 2 AND 1, AS M'CARTHY LOSES AFTER FUTILE RALLY, 3 AND 2

Richmond Boy Fails to Hold One-Hole Lead at Midway.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY.

BEVERLEY COUNTRY CLUB, Chicago, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—Another golf championship was within reach of Francis Ouimet, Boston veteran, after today's 36-hole semifinals in the thirty-fifth national amateur golf tournament.

This one-time national open and amateur champion, who has not won a major crown in ten years, continued his climb back to the golfing heights by eliminating Billy Howell, slender Richmond, Va., youth in a spectacular match, 2 and 1.

Ouimet's opponent in the 36-hole final tomorrow over Beverly's tightly trapped and treacherous course will be Jack Westland, the young Chicago broker with the cool nerves who defeated Maurice J. McCarthy, jr., New York, 3 and 2.

Is Finalist for Third Time.

It will be the third time Ouimet, whose spectacles give him the scholarly air of a college professor, has played for the amateur title. He won it in 1914 and lost to Chick Evans in the 1920 final.

Championships are an old story for Ouimet, who has played in nineteen of them, but it is a new experience for slim little Westland, who has qualified in only one national amateur prior to this one.

Ouimet's path to the final has been an easy one until today, when young Howell, Washington and Lee undergraduate, who is playing in his first national tournament, extended the Boston veteran from the first tee until Ouimet sank a 20-foot putt for a birdie 2 on the thirty-fifth green.

At the end of the morning round of 18 holes young Howell was 1 up after the lead had see-sawed back and forth five times.

Ouimet Forced To Rally.

In his three previous matches against youngsters Ouimet had put them to rout early by his steady, methodical play, but Howell refused to be awed by the veteran's record and experience. Instead, it was Ouimet who was fighting from behind during most of the morning round.

Ouimet's long putts turned the tide of victory for him. After the match Howell said: "I could see the match wouldn't last much longer when Ouimet regained his putting stroke and touch in the afternoon. Each ball came closer and closer to the cup until we reached the thirty-first green, where he canned a 10-footer, the first of a series of long putts which spelled defeat for me."

Although the Westland-McCarthy match was played to a gallery of less than 1,000, it provided a series of thrills which culminated when McCarthy, son of a professional golfer, staged a gallant comeback against hopeless odds during the afternoon.

Both played their first nine in the morning in 37's, one over par, and rounded the turn all even. McCarthy's game went to pieces on the second nine and he took a 43, eight over par, and finished the morning round 2 down.

Westland was invincible going out in the afternoon. Over the same nine holes on which he shot a 33, three under par in the first day's qualifying round, Westland won five out of the first seven holes, and took a commanding lead of 7 up at the end of twenty-five holes.

McCarthy won the twenty-sixth and they halved the twenty-seventh and twenty-eighth. Six down and eight to play, McCarthy threw caution to the winds and, with a series of daring shots that Westland could not match, won four of the next five holes and cut Westland's lead to 3 up and 3 to play. On the thirty-fourth green McCarthy missed an 18-inch putt which would have won the hole for him. Instead he halved the hole and Westland won the match 3 and 2.

Ouimet and Westland Face 36-Hole Match for Crown

for the day, with a 72 but skidded to an 84 on Tuesday and qualified only by the margin of a single stroke.

Safely past this barrier, he displayed extraordinary match-play skill. His golf today was the soundest in either semifinal as he took the measure of the stalwart sharpshooter from New York. He negotiated the first round today in 78 despite a weird 7 on the home hole, and went to lunch 2 up.

From the outset of the afternoon round, Westland turned the match unexpectedly into a rout. He took five of the first seven holes to become 7 up with only 11 to go. He was out in 37, only one over par, and six up as McCarthy sought desperately to regain control.

The twenty-fourth was a typical heart-breaker for McCarthy as well as typical of Westland's coolness and control. "Mac" exploded brilliantly from a trap on this 187-yarder, dead for his 3, only to have Jack roll in a 20-footer for a winning deuce.

McCarthy Stages Short Rally.

McCarthy had whittled his rival's lead to five holes as they shot the water hole, the thirtieth, of the match. Maurice got a big hand as he hit within five feet of the pin. Jack's ball landed barely a foot farther from the cup, whereupon he sank the putt for another deuce and McCarthy missed.

Six down then and six to go, the New Yorker still proved himself a fighter. As Westland took a turn at getting mixed up with the traps, McCarthy reeled off three straight winning holes. He won the thirty-third despite hitting a tree and being in a trap. At the thirty-fourth Maurice had two putts for a win but he missed the last one, from three feet. Westland got a half and it was all over.

Howell Impressive in First Round.

Howell, playing with a coolness that belied his youth and competitive inexperience, looked like a winner as he outsteadied, outdrove and outputted the veteran Ouimet in the morning round. Billy was only one up at lunch, with a medal score of 79 to Ouimet's 80, but he had led most of the way and was playing sounder golf. Francis missed two putts of less than three feet for wins and was in seven traps, due to a marked tendency to hook his approach shots.

Starting the final round, a third straight stymie at the nineteenth put Howell two up, whereupon for no apparent reason his control "cracked." The youngster dropped four of the next five holes as he wandered into all sorts of trouble. With par golf on four straight holes, Ouimet was two up and looked to have the situation well in hand until Billy put on the first of two courageous comebacks.

Howell Squares Match On 26th Hole.

Howell was lucky to get back the twenty-fifth, where Ouimet stymied himself after apparently having the hole clinched, but Billy holed an 8-footer for a birdie at the twenty-sixth and squared the match. After dropping the twenty-seventh he negotiated a three-quarter stymie, caroming off Ouimet's ball to win the twenty-eighth and again deadlock the battle. When the youngster holed a 10-footer for a deuce on the thirtieth to go 1 up, the big gallery let loose with a wild demonstration.

Howell was the favorite of the fans all day, because of his youth and fighting qualities, but he couldn't keep pace with Ouimet's dazzling final spurt to victory. The veteran holed a 22-footer for a birdie 3 on the thirty-first to square the match once more; got down a 10-footer to regain the lead at the thirty-third and settled the match with a sensational 20-foot putt for a deuce on the thirty-fifth.

Howell Goes Down With His Colors Flying.

The blonde 128-pound "boy wonder" from Virginia reached the end of a sensational streak of golf, but went down to defeat with all colors flying. Ouimet shot the last six holes in two strokes under par, 3-3-4-4-4-2, against Billy's par golf of 2-4-4-5-4-3. There was no discredit in being beaten under such circumstances, especially as Howell's final shot, though wasted, was one of the finest of the day.

Ouimet fired his tee shot 20 feet to the right of the 220-yard thirty-fifth. Howell pushed his iron to a trap at the side of the green. With everything at stake, Billy exploded magnificently. The ball went on a line for the hole, hopped at its edge and bounced 3 feet past. It was a superb shot that sent the gallery into wild applause, but Francis dealt the finishing blow by sinking his putt and the big show was all over for "Billy the Kid."

Wood Pits Miss America Against Don's Craft Today

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 4 (A.P.).—Back in 1903, a power boat called Napier I achieved a speed of 19.53 miles an hour at Queenstown, England, and won the Harmsworth Trophy, emblematic of the world speedboat championship.

Tomorrow, on the Detroit River course, Kaye Don, youthful appearing British speed ace, and Gar Wood, veteran of more than a decade of Harmsworth competition, will drive their mighty hydroplanes at a speed expected to exceed 100 miles an hour, in the seventeenth renewal of the classic. It will be the first of two, and possibly three, 30 nautical mile heats to determine the 1931 winner. The second heat has been scheduled for Monday, with a third, if necessary, the following day.

For more than a decade Gar Wood has successfully turned back every foreign effort to take from him the bronze plaque he won in England in 1920. Apparently realizing that Don has brought the most formidable challenger ever made against his power boating supremacy, Wood has installed superchargers on his Miss America IX, with its two twelve-cylinder motors.

The British challenger, with a world straightaway speed record of 110.223 miles an hour in his Miss England II, has carefully groomed the craft for tomorrow's race. He has conceded Wood's advantage in familiarity with the course and its turns. He believes, however, that, barring mishap, he may be able to balance the advantage by a tremendous speed on the straightaways.

The Harmsworth course, a gourd-shaped affair, lies between Belle Isle and the Detroit mainland and the upper end of the river. It differs from the more familiar Gold Cup course, in that the turns are made to the right instead of the left. There are three pronounced turns and one wide swing. Wood has been over it in nine races in defense of the trophy and scores of times in practice. Don has been over it only a few times in practice spins during the fortnight since his boat arrived here.

Both Wood and Don pronounced their boats in perfect condition tonight. They were apparently most concerned on the eve of the race with weather probabilities and in the work the regatta committee has done to keep the course clear of stray bottles and driftwood, which provide as much of a hazard to the 100-mile-an-hour hydroplanes as carburetors, spark plugs, pistons or other mechanical parts.

For the first time in the history of the Harmsworth race, one of the judges will follow the boats in an airplane, over the course to check the turns around each marking buoy.

The attempt of Horace Dodge to qualify his Miss Syndicate III for the Harmsworth races by beating the time of Wood's slowest boat—slightly more than 72 miles an hour—was delayed late today until dawn tomorrow.

The course over which the trial was to be made was partially blocked when the yacht Delphine, owned by Dodge's mother, Mrs. Hugh Dillman, went aground.

Jim Corbett, 64, Ill in Hospital, 39 Years After Beating Sullivan

The 64-year-old "Gentleman Jim," one of the physical marvels of his time, was admitted to a room in the big medical center today for a period of observation. There is something wrong inside, say the doctors, but there is no immediate prospect of an operation. He was "resting easy" tonight.

It was just 39 years ago, come Monday, that Corbett, the pompadoured bank clerk from the West, confounded the fistic world by beating the great John L. Sullivan down at New Orleans. His victory over the rough-and-ready champion inaugurated a new era in boxing, made possible, in fact, the glittering spectacles of the past decade.

For a time after he gained the title, Corbett was none too popular with the old-time boxing fans. They called him "Jim, the Dude," and thought he was a little too foppish both in dress and manners to make a

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—There was no tail-end of the Cincinnati Reds batting order today. Every man in the line-up got at least one hit and one run during the Red parade staged at the expense of the Chicago Cubs.

Douthit led the procession with four safeties, with Roush and Hendrick connecting for three each. Hendrick rapped out two two-baggers and Roush hit one for three bases. Crabtree, Cuccinnelo, Durocher, Sukeforth, and Lucas had two safeties each. Cuccinnelo taking a two-bagger and a three-sack blow. Beck's two-bagger was his lone hit.

In the run column, Roush scored three, Lucas two, and the remainder of the batting order scored one each.

BENISH WAY NEVER HEADED IN FEATURE AT MARLBORO

Regina H. in Front From Start to Win Second Race.

Special to The Washington Post.

MARLBORO RACE TRACK, Sept. 4.—A crowd of 7,000, which took advantage of perfect racing weather, saw Benish Way, owned by George Brenton, of Manassas, Va., win the six-and-one-half furlongs of the third, looked upon as the outstanding event of the fourth day's racing of the Southern Maryland Agricultural Fair Association's fall meeting.

Johnny Pierce, who has been riding in fine form at this meeting, broke the 5-year-old son of Theo Cook and Kiva on top and made every post a winning one for the favorite. It was Benish Way's second score of the meeting. Trailing the Virginia owned thoroughbred to the wire came E. L. Brimmer's Sandy San, with James C. Cremen's Mina F. heading the other four starters.

Chinkee, Odds-On, Easy Winner.

The form players got a running start when Mrs. W. E. Martin's Chinkee, backed into odds-on favoritism, justified that confidence by leading eight other 2-year-olds home in the day's five-and-one-half furlong opener. Chinkee had too be much the best for he was off slowly swung wide at the stretch turn, but came very fast to win going away from W. L. Van Allen's Spunky. The latter easily bested J. D. Baker's Hagerstown.

Only seven horses started in the five-and-one-half furlongs of the second. The winner turned up in J. Gengler's Regina H., who went to the front soon after the rise of the webbing and made every post a winning one. Trailing Regina H. to the wire came Clock Golf and West Drift.

Form players who have been having rough sledding at this meeting took it on the chin again in the fourth when Stylish Mack, the odds on favorite, ran a bad race to be third back of Mrs. B. F. Christmas' Hobcaw, the winner, and Muskoday.

Hobcaw crossed his field at the first turn causing Junius and Vigor to go down, but Jockeys Emil Martinez, astride Vigor, and Johnny Shanks, who piloted Junius, escaped injuries.

Owner James C. Cremen, who was taken ill yesterday, shipped his horses to Pimlico, which forced the stewards to scratch Princess Henry from today's fourth race.

Wandering Gold Favored By Start.

A weird start, which found two horses left, but which favored James Arthur's Wandering Gold, enabled the gelding to win the mile and one-sixteenth of the fifth.

Off in the lead, Wandering Gold had no trouble winning from Primlin, with Patricia Agnes third. Bye and Bye and Sweet Air had absolutely no chance with the poor start.

George Lerian's Jealous Fool outran her field from the break and won the mile and one-sixteenth of the sixth.

The race saw the second accident of the day occur when Coolebar's saddle slipped within a few feet of the wire while running sixth. Jockey Paul Haines suffered a lacerated scalp and wrenched shoulder.

Jealous Fool ran a game race to win, for after being headed for a short space on the back stretch she came again to outfinish Frances Cooper, the favorite. Third money went to Princess Ma.

The stewards suspended Jockey H. Lauch for the remainder of the meeting for rough riding in the sixth race. His case has been referred to the Maryland Racing Commission.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

THE boots Jacob Miller has worn so long that he almost feels they are a part of him were purchased in 1860—71 years ago. Miller, now 93 years of age, has worn the boots off and on—mostly on—for the greater part of his life. Yet they still have the very same soles and the self-same heels that were put on, before Lincoln became President, by John Hausworth, of Mifflinburg, Pennsylvania, who should be in the bootmakers' hall of fame.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BENISH WAY, $3.70, $3.00, $2.70; SANDY SAN, $4.90, $3.50; MINA F., $3.50.

BENISH WAY, much the best, went to the top soon after the start and won as his rider pleased. SANDY SAN, away slowly, was taken the overland route to close fast through the stretch. MINA F., used up forcing the pace, stopped the final eighth. POMFRET, propped at the barrier, showed plenty of early foot, but was taken in hand when beaten.

FOURTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:49. Off at 3:50. Winner, Mrs. B. F. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HOBCAW, $18.90, $3.60, $3.90; MUSKODAY, $6.10, $3.10; STYLISH MACK $2.60.

HOBCAW crossed his field at the first turn and, after piling it up, opened a long lead. However, he just lasted to stave off MUSKODAY'S belated rush. Latter, well up from the start, had no excuses. STYLISH MACK, in tight quarters and unable to find racing room until well into the stretch, closed fast. JUNIUS and VIGOR were knocked down in the jam at the first turn, but their riders were uninjured.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $600; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:34. Off at 4:36. Winner, J. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WANDERING GOLD, $5.30, $3.80, $3.00; PRIMLIN, $6.80, $6.90; PATRICIA AGNES, $5.60.

WANDERING GOLD, benefitted by a poor start, which found BYE AND BYE and SWEET AIR having no chance, rushed into the lead and led throughout. PRIMLIN, also favored by the break, was within striking distance of the winner, but tired in the run through the stretch. PATRICIA AGNES, used up forcing the pace, had nothing left at the end. The others had scant chance with the break.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $600; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:13. Off at 5:14. Winner, G. JEALOUS FOOL rushed to the top at the break and led for seven-eighths, when he was headed by FRANCES COOPER. Former came again in the stretch to win going away. FRANCES COOPER, slow to begin, made her bid on the back strech but, after getting to the top, faltered. PRINCESS MA, well up from the start, had no excuses. COOLEBAR'S saddle slipped within sight of the wire while running sixth and she lost her rider. Latter escaped with slight shaking up.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $600. For 3-year-olds and upward. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:45. Off at 5:47. Winner, C. W. High's ch. g. TENANT, took command after a half mile, opened on his field to win galloping. HAT BRUSH, off slowly, was allowed to settle in his stride, made his move at the seven-eighths mark, but was not good enough. TANGIER ran an even race. CAROLER broke slowly, was rushed to the top in the first quarter, but tired badly thereafter.

"SKIP" GARTLAND'S hit in the eighth inning scoring Lew Hollis, enabled Government Printing Office to make a successful debut in the week-day championship series on the South Ellipse before a crowd of 2,000 fans yesterday. The final score was 6 to 5. It was a hard-fought game with the teams battling on even terms until the seventh frame, when the Printers broke out in front and remained there.

Constructioneers, representative of the Industrial League, broke the ice in the second inning when Booker walked, stole second and came home when Gartland missed Ault's roller. G. P. O. went its rival two better in its half of the third, scoring all three runs after two were out.

Catcher's Balk Costly to Constructioneers.

In this inning Al Schneider bunted safely and reached third on two sacrifices. He was then caught off third, but was waved home by the umpire because of a balk by Catcher "Toby" Ault. Lew Hollis brought in Ben Schneider, who went to first on the balk, and Mosedale, who walked, with a lusty two-bagger to right field.

Constructioneers knotted the count in the fourth and held on until the seventh, when the eventual winners again assumed the lead with a two-run rally. The Industrial League champs came within one run of overcoming their opponents in the eighth, but they threw an even greater fright into the ranks of the Printers in the ninth when they connected for four safe hits off Bob Lyons, but scored only one run because of reckless base running. Snyder, Ortel, Turner and Bowie hit safely in this inning, but the first two were caught attempting to take two bases on one-base hits.

Constructioneers. Eldebrookes Battle Tuesday.

The series will be resumed Tuesday with Eldebrooke and Constructioneers crossing bats on the South Ellipse at 4:15 p. m. Seats have been erected at the diamond and 25 cents per person is charged. This money will go into a fund to be created by the Welfare and Recreation Association to aid sports in the District.

MYER BATTING HERO IN 10-INNING GAME

Myer, Gehrig was intentionally walked, putting it up to Chapman, and he ended things by lofting to Rice. The Nats went down in order in their half.

With one out in the tenth, Dickey singled, and after Hoag replaced him as a base-runner, Lazzeri rolled to Cronin, who, with the aid of Myer and Kuhel, turned in the Nats' third twin-killing of the game. What happened in the home half of this frame already has been broadcast.

In addition to his two "big" hits, Myer also was credited with another, sharing stick honors of the game with Joe Sewell, who had the same number of safeties. Cronin, for the Nats, and Gehrig, Combs and Dickey, were runners-up, with two each.

MACKS BEAT RED SOX TWICE

Grove Wins 27th as Foxx Homers in 1st; Hoyt Stars in 2d.

BOSTON, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—Jimmy Foxx's twenty-fifth homer after Moore had doubled gave Lefty Grove his twenty-seventh pitching victory of the season today as Connie Mack's world champions took a double-header from the Red Sox. The scores were 2 to 0 and 6 to 1.

Foxx's homer was a long drive over the left-field fence. Grove allowed but three hits in the opener and not a Bostonian reached third.

Waite Hoyt also chalked up another win for himself in the second game by holding the Sox to seven hits. The one Boston run was unearned and followed an error by Foxx, who played third in this game. Four of Boston's hits were successful bunts, mainly directed at Foxx.

Error Enables Bucs To Check Cards, 3 to 1

Pittsburgh, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—A misjudged fly and a base on balls enabled Pittsburgh to make it two straight over St. Louis today, 3 to 1.

With the score tied at 1 to 1 in the eighth, Martin, St. Louis center fielder, failed to gather in Traynor's fly and the hit went for a single, enabling Lloyd Waner to score. The locals added a second tally in the same frame when Bill Hallahan passed Piet to force Jensen across the plate.

Hallahan and Meine allowed six hits each.

EQUINE HEROES RACE AT SARATOGA TODAY

steeds almost as feelingly as though they had fed them sugar by hand.

Sun Beau comes from Binghampton, N. Y., the property, or more properly a pet of a man named Willis Sharpe Kilmer, whose fortune descends from that time when people in this country, and especially the farmers, took patent medicines for chills and misery, toothache and bee-sting. This Kilmer seems a little more fond of his horses, personally, than some of the other busy rich men in the game and his old champion gelding, Exterminator, now roams the pastures on his farm, retired and as happy as a horse can be whose only pleasure was to run. He was an old one, too, when he was finally taken off the tracks and the public had come to know him, with an affection which few human characters ever earn, as "Old Poison, Old Slim, and Old Bones."

Twenty Grand Gained Fame in Derby.

Twenty Grand made most of his reputation when he slid up from a position last but one in the Kentucky Derby last spring to glide past the field and win so easily for him that the people present felt very foolish to think that they had ever had the slightest doubt of the outcome. Then he won the Belmont, the Dwyer and some others and the only horse who has beaten him this year is Mate, who did that twice. Mate really ought to be running in the Saratoga to round out the contest and confirm the verdict, but he hurt a leg.

But notwithstanding Mate's two victories, Twenty Grand is generally acknowledged as the champion 3-year-old and at the long distance, a mile and three-quarters, the gamblers have made him the favorite over Sun Beau. His price was 3 to 5 and Sun Beau's 8 to 5.

Twenty Grand has had two weeks' rest for the Saratoga Cup, whereas old Sun Beau took a little trip to Chicago last week-end and won the Lincoln Fields Handicap on Saturday. But he likes to run and seems to take his train rides as easily as a traveling drummer, so that excursion probably can not be weighed against his chances.

McAtee Substituted For Kurtsinger.

Charlie Kurtsinger, a blonde kid who grew up not far from the Louisville track and rode Twenty Grand to victory in the derby, with the home folks yelling their heads off, would be on him again at Saratoga if he had not hurt a shoulder a little while ago. But the boy is lame in one arm still and just on the chance that he might need all his muscles in the big race, Pony McAtee has been substituted. Charley Phillips will ride Sun Beau.

Up to now Twenty Grand has won about $200,000, so there is no question of their coming anywhere near even in earnings in this race and the pure sporting challenge of the race is emphasized again.

And now that all attention has been concentrated on the two champions, it would be most upsetting if Sir Ashley or Quarter Deck should find the going especially pleasant and win the horse race at a long price. Neither Sun Beau nor Twenty Grand is supposed to be very fond of a heavy track, and the Saratoga track was heavy Friday afternoon, in a country where the rains splash down out of the mountains without warning. In fact, Sun Beau might be withdrawn to wait for a fairer day in the event of more rain, but Twenty Grand is expected to run regardless.

Before the race it seems very ignorant to mention Sir Ashley or Quarter Deck, but it was even more embarrassing to mention Jim Dandy up to the minute when he went to the post against the Fox and Whichone. Then those two ran one another to ruin in a personal race, and the hundred-to-one shot ambled by in the home stretch as Whichone hobbled on a gone leg and Gallant Fox slowed down all in.

D. C. NETMEN FARE WELL IN W. VA.

Mitchell Picked to Retain Title in Morgantown Event.

Special to The Washington Post.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Sept. 4. District of Columbia tennis players dominated the field here today as play got under way in the third annual Morgantown Country Club invitation tournament. There were 81 players listed for the start, and the field is filled with capable net artists from Maryland, Virginia, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Dooly Mitchell heads the list of Washington net stars and he easily won his second round match late today by polishing off Charles Hodges, tourney chairman, 6—0, 6—0. Mitchell was last year's champion and is picked to repeat, although he will have stiff opposition.

Buchanan Wins Two Matches.

Bill Buchanan, of Washington, defeated Robert Woodhull, of Morgantown, 6—0, 6—4, and Joseph Rutley, another D. C. player, won his first round match by default. M. G. Martinez, of Washington, lost by default.

A. O. White, Washington, defeated Kenneth Whoolery, Fairmont, 6—2, 6—1, and Buchanan took his second round battle from Edgar Stewart, Morgantown, 6—2, 6—0. Alan Staubly, Washington, playing neat tennis, won from Clarence Fiers, Pittsburgh, 6—0, 6—1. Anthony Latona, Washington, turned back Hale Posten, Morgantown, 6—0, 6—0. Barney Welsh, Rockville, Md., and Randolph Shields, Winchester, Va., won easily.

Home Run by Walker Beats Sox for Tigers

Chicago, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—Gerald Walker's home run in the sixth inning with two men on base proved to be the Detroit Tigers' winning margin over the White Sox here today. Detroit won the game, 4 to 3, to make it two in a row over the Pale Hose.

LEGION POST AWARDED WILSON

Alexandria Coach to Succeed Anderson, of Danville.

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Sept. 4.—J. "Prex" Wilson today was appointed as athletic officer of the State American Legion by Commander Finch.

Notification of Wilson's appointment was received by the legion officials in this city today. It was also recommended that the State baseball junior championship be held here in 1932.

Wilson has long been active in athletic circles here. He is athletic director at George Mason High School and has coached teams here to State championships.

The past year Wilson has been director of the city recreation department and has made an excellent record. Tennis, baseball, horseshoe and swimming meets were held with much success under his direction.

He succeed E. R. Anderson, of Danville, who was leader of this legion department the previous year.

War Blue Poloists Beat Marshall Four

The War Department Blues yesterday avenged a defeat of several days ago when they defeated the Marshall, Va., Civilians, 11 to 6. Wednesday, the Virginians easily stopped the local malletmen but even aided with the three-goal handicap that was conceded them they could not stop the determined Blue riders in the contest yesterday.

Having more assistance on the defense than in Wednesday's game, Maj. Devers had more opportunity to convert a few of the Blue passes into goals. Maj. Fuller, at No. 1, also wielded an accurate mallet.

In the Marshall victory, Devers was called upon to cover two positions and consequently failed to play his usual impressive game. In the Blue victory this was not the case, as every member of the squad coordinated perfectly.

Orioles, Wonder Boys In Insect Game Today

The Washington Orioles and Wonder Boys will play the second game of their series for the insect championship of The Post's Capital City League this morning at 11 o'clock on Camp Meigs diamond. Boggs, who twirled the Orioles to victory in the opening fray, probably will toe the mound again today. He will be opposed by Chalfonte.

On paper the Orioles have a good chance of winning the series and The Post's gold baseballs today. "Rip" Mills' charges have not lost a game since the first half of the regular schedule, chalking up two victories over the Wonders in that time.

Diamond Dust

NO matter how hard you try, it is impossible to please all of the sports patrons all of the time. Take the case of Al Schneider, first string catcher of the G. P. O. team, which made a succesful debut in the week-day championship series yesterday. Al's throwing arm first began to trouble him last season, and when the current season rolled around the ailing wing was still sore.

But Schneider's love for the game prompted him to keep in harness and he has played the entire season despite the ailing arm. In yesterday's game with Constructioneers, Al played with the arm tightly bound. He had to as the Printers' two other backstoppers are on the injured list. He played the entire game, saving his arm as much as possible, even to the extent of having a teammate warm up the pitcher before the start of each inning, and it was Schneider who started the ball rolling in the third inning when G. P. O. scored three runs.

So rather than the taunts the crowd throws in his direction, Al deserves a big hand. It takes grit to play with such a handicap, and, in addition, he is one of the brainiest and ablest receivers on the sand lots, aside from that arm.

The Phoenix A. C. will meet Patent Office today and the Union Printers tomorrow at 3 p. m. on their home diamond. A game for Monday is wanted. Call Lincoln 7730-W.

The Cities Service Team will drill today at 1 p. m. on the West Ellipse in preparation for its double-header tomorrow with the National Pale Drys at Camp Meigs.

The Burroughs Insects want a game for tomorrow. Call Potomac 2963.

The Skinker Eagles will cross bats with the Howard A. French nine tomorrow at 4 p. m. at Rockville. Yesterday the Eagles trimmed Olmsted Grill by a 3-to-2 count.

The Washington Athletic Club will play the Clifton (Md.) Nine Sunday, and the Easton Team Monday. The team wil go by automobile to Easton Monday.

Ed Morris requests all members of the Chevy Chase Team to report on the playground today at 2 p. m. for the game with St. Elizabeths Hospital Nine.

Because of a mix-up in the schedule, the Woodmen of the World will not play the Logan Athletic Club tomorrow, meeting Ciro's Villagers instead on the East Ellipse at 3 p. m.

The Anacostia Eagles will clash with the Bethesda Firemen Sunday at 3:30 p. m. on the Cabin John Field.

The Potomac Peewees downed the Lefty Grove Peewees, 10 to 3, yesterday. For games with the winners call Cleveland 6558.

The Colesville Cards will entertain in Chevy Chase Sunday at 3 p. m., on Boniface Field.

The Alexandria Pirates are booking games with football teams in the 135-pound class. Call Manager Hammond at Alexandria 1509-J, between 5 and 6:30 p. m.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Lincoln Fields Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

LINCOLN FIELDS RACE TRACK, Chicago, Ill., Sept. 4.—Ten of the leading sprinters of the handicap division will match strides in the six furlongs of the Crete Handicap, feature event of the program at Lincoln Fields tomorrow. The contest should produce an interesting battle since most of the eligibles are evenly matched. Despite the muddy track condition which will undoubtedly prevail at post time, it is probable that the entire field named overnight will fight it out for the $5,000 added prize.

In this fixture the Peconic Stable's consistent performer, KNIGHT COMMANDER, carrying 116 pounds, equal weight with NO MORE, has shown rare courage over a muddy track and figures to annex the important money. In his last the Whiskaway gelding set the pace over a route, but faltered in the stretch. MY DANDY has plenty of speed and with a four-pound weight advantage will prove a dangerous contender. NO MORE, a fast breaker, may weaken in the mud, but nevertheless should last to gain the show.

FIRST RACE—A limit field of maiden juvenile colts and geldings will face the barrier in the opener at six furlongs. MUELLER appeared short last start, but figures to improve enough to graduate. ADSUM will favor the off track and is selected to gain the place, with the WHIG best of the others.

SECOND RACE—FUDGE, a superior mudder from the Mose Goldblatt string, weakened in his previous outing, but is given the call over his fourteen rivals in the six-furlong dash of the second event. BARON KING is nicely suited by the conditions and is the one to fear. MAECENAS is attaining his best form and should share in the purse.

THIRD RACE—CAT HOP, one of the most consistent juveniles, appears a standout over his seven opponents in the six-furlong sprint of the Stadium, an allowance affair, third number. This Supremus colt scored impressively in his last start against a better field and in this heat should romp to an easy victory. PORTER'S DREAM has finished behind the top one and should force the pace. ZEAN needed his last and figures to improve.

FOURTH RACE—Ten highly regarded sprinters will contest the six-furlong dash of the fourth, under claiming conditions. DOUBLE HEART, from the Mrs. Murray Stable, will have INFINITY to beat for the major award. The latter has shown consistent form in previous outings and figures to furnish stern opposition. RUSTY should go well in this class.

SIXTH RACE—BETON scored so easily in his last that he should repeat against the field opposed to him in the mile and an eighth of the sixth. THE SOUTHERNER is rounding to form and on his best effort may prove troublesome. GALAHAD has been training briskly and should account for the minor share of the purse.

SEVENTH RACE—A large group of 4-year-old-and-up platers will parade to the post in the final event which will be decided over the nine-furlong route. ANNAN appears best of this band and is selected to annex the purse. Last start, the Davison color bearer was beaten a nose after making all his own pace. SPANFLOW will appreciate the long route and his last effort figures to extend the top one. SEARINGTON has been racing well in recent efforts and is expected to finish in the money.

Players' Overconfidence Is Fear of Tech Grid Coach

Hardell Pessimistic as Usual as His Team Goes Through Preliminary Training Grind at Maryland University.

WITH nothing more than calisthenics and a bit of kicking on the program, the work of rounding the 1931 Tech High grid team into condition continued slowly yesterday through a light drizzle at the University of Maryland. Coach Hardell had difficulty in restraining his charges, who will not be permitted to do any heavy work at all until tomorrow or Monday.

Hardell expressed his usual displeasure at the progress of the team. The noted schoolboy grid mentor stated that he is more afraid of the psychological attitude of his team than he is of the physical side of the battle. The regulars from last year feel confident of their chances to win their berths again this year, far more confident than is Hardell of the same fact.

None of the youngsters have been able to show off much in the way of promise. Hardell will get a better line on them when the teams go through running plays, block and otherwise settle down to work.

More sleep and more work is the order of the day from now on with Tech. Curfew has been tightened from 10:30 o'clock to 9 o'clock already. Both morning and afternoon drills are in effect. The boys are quartered in Sylvester Hall.

Hardell is still skeptical over whether George Sachs, all high halfback last year, will be able to play this year. Sachs' leg, in light preliminary practice, has stood up well. The impending heavy work will tell the tale. Carlton Edwards, understudy for Quarterback Dick Nelson last year, will have clinched the signal calling berth this year, if he only rises to the form he showed last year in his brief appearances.

Another husky, who was kept on the sidelines last year in favor of a stellar performer, Steve Hatos, is back in camp and looked upon as certain nominee for half back.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

CAROTINEMIA A DISORDER, NOT A DISEASE.

ANY person who eats yellow foods habitually is likely to turn yellow. (There are vague rumors that in high social circles of Chinese society the young ladies eat orange peel in order to acquire an exquisite yellow complexion.) The first report of a case of yellowness of the skin resulting from eating orange peel came from Japan. Since then, such discoloration from eating yellow vegetables and fruit by yellow races may have been frequent.

But most of the reports of such cases finding their way into the literature have come from lands inhabited by whites. It happens occasionally that a woman will go on a diet of carrots in order to improve her complexion, and will find her skin a golden yellow. Maybe her picture will find its way into a medical journal or a book on diseases of the skin.

The foods most likely to cause the skin to take on a nice yellow tinge are carrots, pumpkins, yellow squash, yellow turnips, parsnips, spinach, lettuce, green and yellow beans, kale, oranges, and eggs. I know of no reason for excluding yellow corn from the list. Yellow butter and butterine may also cause the pigmentation provided they are used in connection with a vegetarian diet. A vegetarian dinner, served with a poached egg may color the skin because of the pigments of the vegetables, and to this the yellow of the egg contributes a part.

The objections to the disorder, if it can be called such, are wholly cosmetic. A yellow skin is not considered ornamental. The pigment does not harm the texture of the skin, nor does the discoloration persist long after the causative food has been discarded from the diet list. On the other hand, carotinemia—for such is the name the disorder goes by—is chiefly important for what it is not. It is not jaundice and it does not signify gall stones, infected gall bladder nor infective jaundice. It is not yellow fever, malaria with jaundice, nor pernicious anemia. It is not any organic disease nor serious disease or condition of any sort.

However, there is sometimes a little connection between carotinemia and diabetes. Diabetics turn yellow on the slightest provocation. They are liable to turn yellow after eating carrots one week, whereas one without diabetes might need to stick to the vegetable a month or more to take on a golden hue. Therefore, when a person has developed carotinemia an examination for diabetes is a proper precaution.

AN ONION A DAY.

C. C. writes:

1. Before going to bed I eat onions every night. Will they make my blood rich and strong?

2. Are onions good for strength of body?

REPLY.

1. No.

2. Onion is a good food, but with no special virtues. Does eating onions at bedtime lead to domestic felicity?

CARBUNCLES AND WARTS.

E. G. writes: What is the cause of a carbuncle? What can be done at home to cure?

REPLY.

Carbuncle belongs to the tumor family. Perhaps it is more nearly related to the tribe of warts than to other members of the family. Nobody knows much about what causes any of the tumors. Some warts are due to mild infections, and the same may be true of carbuncles. Like most warts, carbuncle is usually cured by training. Local dryness and cleanliness are of service in curing both warts and carbuncles.

IT IS NOT POSSIBLE.

M. H. F. writes: I have read of a man being brought back to life after nine hours under water. Is that possible?

REPLY.

It is not. Nothing is gained by prolonged efforts to resuscitate people who have been under water for more than a few minutes. If the upper air passages are cleared, the water is drained by gravity. Heat is applied, and if a few minute of artificial respiration is unavailing further attempts are useless.

The Grecian neckline is extremely flattering in this stunning frock. It lends a complete softness that is utterly chic and feminine.

The flare sleeve flounces contribute dainty aspect to the fitted elbow sleeves.

The waistline rests at the top of the hips.

The clever shaping of the skirt produces a decidely slenderizing effect. The lower part is circular with a nice comfortable fullness at the hem.

STOCKS UNSETTLED WITH LIGHT LOSSES

Utility and Food Issues Join Declines as Market Takes 3-Day Holiday.

New York, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—Wall street went home for a three-day holiday today, leaving the security markets in a state of mild unsettlement.

Numerous principal stocks were about steady, but utility, merchandising and food issues became rather tired and irregularly lower prices prevailed at the close.

Activity diminished to 1,200,762 shares, nearly a million less than yesterday's. Shorts who might have been expected to cover in some volume in view of the fact that the market will not reopen until Tuesday were in no hurry about reducing their commitments, although repurchases from that source cushioned an early decline. There was a mild renewal of pressure in the last hour, but sizable losses for the most part were confined to inactives.

Steels Make New Low.

U. S. Steel made a new low of 82⅜ in the morning, more than recovered its loss and then sagged, finishing ¼ off. American Telephone offered an uninspiring example to the utilities with an extreme break of 3 points which was reduced to 2 net. International Telephone and American & Foreign Power were offered rather actively during the afternoon, perhaps because of South American situations. Western Union was down 4½ net. American Water Works, Canada Dry, Continental Baking preferred, National Biscuit, Macy, Pressed Steel, Car preferred, Midland Steel preferred, Baltimore & Ohio preferred, Lackawanna, the American & Foreign Power preferred and Peoples Gas suffered larger than average declines.

Changes in Bethlehem, American Can, General Motors, General Electric, Westinghouse, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Atchison, Case and Pennsylvania were small, with declines favored. The rail group was much stadier than recently, although New York Central closed at the bottom for a net loss of a point. Union Pacific touched a new low, but returned a gain of 1½.

Estimates on Cotton.

A few more private estimates on the cotton crop had little effect on the market for that staple, although final quotations represented losses of 9 to 11 points. The official Government report comes next Tuesday.

Labor Day arrives without much definite changes in business trends. Some wholesale and retail branches of trade are profiting from seasonal expansion, but evidence of a turn in the heavier industries, such as steel, is mostly lacking. It is perhaps encouraging that as Dun's points out, "The tendency is to resist recessions."

The Berlin Stock Market was much steadier, although London sagged. Sterling closed unchanged after a small recession attributed to the absence of demand. The small amount of the American credit already used is understood to have come from the larger New York City banks, apparently because it was felt inexpedient to draw on consortium members located in the interior. Bankers explained that the draft upon the recent credit did not signify the exhaustion of the $125,000,000 made available to the Bank of England by the Federal Reserve some time ago. It was pointed out that the two funds were separate and could be used independently.

Curb Review

New York, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—Selling pressure lightened in today's curb market, but the list was again rather soggy.

The turnover was only 220,000 shares, about 100,000 less than yesterday's, and most of the more popular trading favorites sagged only moderately, although wide breaks appeared in a few of the thinly traded shares. A few firm spots appeared.

Oils were generally steady, although Humble broke 3 points in a light turnover. Cities Service recovered fractionally, getting above 10 once more, and Indiana and Gulf closed unchanged. Coppers were heavy, Newmont Mining and Mayflower Associates losing about 2 points each. The trace of firmness in the red metal market a few days ago seems to have vanished.

In the utilities Electric Bond & Share lost a point in a large turnover. American Gas & Electric, however, recovered about as much, and United Light A moved up fractionally. European Electric sagged a fraction to a new low, and Consolidated Gas of Baltimore slipped back a couple of points.

In the thinly traded industrials Northwestern Yeast and A. O. Smith dropped about 9 points each, the latter to a new low. Safety Car Heating tumbled 7 points to a new minimum. Aluminum Co. dropped 4 points, then recovered all but 1. Deere declined nearly a point to a new low and completely recovered. Parker Rust Proof rallied more than 3. Phillip Morris was firm in fairly active trading.

National Short Term Securities, weak feature of the last two days, was traded in large volume, moving up a fraction, then slipping back to close unchanged.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—A slight early decline in cotton was followed by rallies of 5 or 10 points on trade buying and covering today, but prices eased again in the late trading.

December contracts, after selling up from 6.94 to 7.00, broke to 6.87, or 10 points net lower and within 8 points of the season's low record. They closed at that figure, with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 9 to 11 points.

The opening was steady, unchanged prices to a decline of 2 points with active months showing net losses of a few points during the first few minutes under some overnight selling from the South which was combined with selling here for New Orleans and Liverpool account. There was also some local selling, but the offerings were small and the market soon steadied up on covering combined with some trade and commission house buying.

October advanced from 6.71 to 6.79 and March from 7.22 to 7.29, making net gains of about 10 points during the middle of the day, but the demand then seemed to have been supplied, and prices eased during the afternoon under liquidation, while in the late trading increased hedging was reported which some thought might be against expectations of an increased movement next week. October broke to 6.64 and March to 7.16, and closing prices were the lowest of the day.

Three more private crop reports were issued. One made the condition 63.7 and the indicated yield 14,539,000 bales. Another placed the condition at 66.6 while the third report made the condition 65.7 and the indicated yield 15,503,000 bales. On the average of these private reports published within the last few days have pointed to a condition of 65.9 and an indicated crop of 15,110,000 bales. The figures issued today appeared to be without particular effect upon the market, and there was very little comment on the weather news.

Liverpool cables said that hedging and liquidation had been taken by trade calling and covering in that market. Exports today 30,563, making 285,753 so far this season. Port receipts, 56,959. U. S. port stocks, 2,741,739.

MAN KILLED AS AUTO AND TROLLEY CRASH; WOMAN BADLY HURT

Dozen Injured in Accidents in District and Nearby Maryland Points.

4 MEMBERS OF PARTY RUSHED TO HOSPITAL

Policeman and Wife, Taking Holiday Trip, Both Receive Treatment.

A man was killed and more than a dozen persons were injured yesterday and last night in automobile accidents in Washington and nearby Maryland. Injuries which cost the sight of one eye and may prove fatal were received by a woman riding with the man, who was killed almost instantly.

John E. Copsy, 21-year-old attendant at St. Elizabeths Hospital, and two women friends, Mrs. Anna Donnelly and Mrs. Mary Taylor, were driving north on Nichols avenue southeast and going up hill when, near Sumner road, Copsy's coupe crashed head-on into a one-man street car in attempting to pass another machine.

Copsy was fatally crushed when the impact forced the engine back into the seat. He died a few minutes after admittance to Casualty Hospital. Mrs. Donnelly was thrown into the street and suffered the loss of her left eye, multiple lacerations of the face and legs, possible skull fracture and internal injuries and loss of blood. Her condition is critical.

One Escapes Injury.

Mrs. Taylor, who was seated in the middle, escaped serious injury. She was discharged from Providence Hospital, where she was taken by a passing motorist, after receiving treatment for cuts on the neck and contusions.

Copsy lived at 2051 Nichols avenue southeast, which is also Mrs. Donnelly's address. Mrs. Taylor lives at 909 Seventh street southeast. She is 23 and Mrs. Donnelly is 37.

According to police, the street car was operated by Alfred Haynie, 602 Park road. The auto was wrecked and the trolley badly damaged.

The dead youth is survived by his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Copsy; two brothers, Charles G. and William A., and a sister, Mrs. Edna Williams. All are Washingtonians except Mrs. Copsy, who lives in La Plata, Md.

Four Injured in Crash.

Four persons were injured yesterday in an auto accident on the Defense highway near Ritchie road, and two other persons were injured when the car in which they were riding ran off the Baltimore boulevard near College Park.

Those injured in the Defense highway crash were Jacob Locker, 87 years old, contusions of both hands and possible fracture of the left leg; Lucille Locker, 53 years old, fracture of the left shoulder and contusions; Jane C. Locker 54 years old, body bruises and possible internal injuries, and Constance Olsen, 70 years old, possible fractured skull and a broken right forearm. Miss Olsen lives at 831 Rittenhouse street northwest, while the others live at 3930 Military road northwest.

The condition of Miss Jane Locker and Miss Olsen is undetermined, and they remained in Casualty Hospital, where they were treated. Miss Lucille Locker also remained in the hospital, but Mr Locker was allowed to return to his home. The crash is said to have happened when the brakes on the car locked, throwing the machine into a ditch.

Car Leaves Boulevard.

Mrs. John Coyne, 50, incurred a fractured collarbone and lacerations to the left leg when the auto in which she and three others were driving from their home in Haverstraw, N. Y., to Washington, on a vacation trip, ran off the Baltimore boulevard.

Her husband, who is a policeman and 54 years old, suffered a severely sprained back, and Reginald Bush, 24, was treated for cuts on the shoulder and arms. John Coyne, jr., was unhurt.

Struck by an auto as he was crossing Maryland avenue at Fourteenth street northeast, Frank Hurnick, 44, 1336 G street northeast, received minor cuts on the face. Mitchell G. David, 723 B street southeast, was driving the car, according to police. He took the victim to Casualty Hospital.

WHERE MAN WAS KILLED IN TROLLEY CRASH

John E. Copsy, St. Elizabeths Hospital attendant, was driving this coupe last night when it crashed into a street car, causing his death and injury to two women friends. Mrs. Mary Taylor, sitting next to the driver, miraculously escaped with minor cuts.

RIGGS BANK AND 18 SUED FOR $300,000

Woman's Action Charges Banker, Now Convict, Wasted Fortune.

The Riggs National Bank and eighteen men who were affiliated with the Farmers & Mechanics National Bank in Georgetown, which was absorbed in 1928 by the former institution, are defendants in a suit for $300,000 begun yesterday by Mrs. Louise T. Chambers, 3652 Park place northwest.

Mrs. Chambers charges that Harry V. Haynes, former president of the Georgetown bank, now serving a four and one-half year term at Lorton for embezzlement, mishandled her estate and dissipated her fortune which comprised 1,000 shares of stock, valued at more than $166,000 and several thousand dollars in cash.

Details of Transactions.

The plaintiff alleges that Haynes got her to borrow $15,000 from the Farmers & Mechanics National Bank with her stock as collateral and though, she says, the loan was repaid, the stock was not returned.

The day after Haynes resigned as president, after an orgy of stock market gambling, she was persuaded to sign a general ratification of all that he had done in her affairs, the suit sets forth. Later, Mrs. Chambers says, she learned for the first time that she owed the bank $141,000, whereas the bank held notes for only $88,000 upon which there was collateral. The bank offered to call the accounts square if she would sign a release, which she did, and again on December 18, 1928, she signed another paper and received $10,000.

Through Attorney Vernon B. Lowrey she asks for $300,000 together with interest and the costs of the suit.

Others Named Defendants.

Those named as defendants besides the bank are J. McKenney Berry, 1336 Thirtieth street northwest; William M. Beall, 1670 Thirty-first street northwest; Charles H. Craigin, 3127 Dumbarton avenue northwest; J. H. Cranford, Wardman Park Hotel; Henry W. Fisher, 3205 R street northwest, W. C. Gwynn, 1314 Thirtieth street northwest; Mr. Haynes; William King 3114 N street northwest; Joseph H. Lee, 1823 Kalorama road northwest; G. L. Nicholson, 3013 Q street northwest; J. Wilbur Sherwood, 5301 Reno road northwest; Thomas J. Stanton, 3003 O street northwest; Robert D. Weaver, 2101 Wisconsin avenue northwest; Raymond Wise, 3417 Lowell street northwest; Harold W. Burnside, 3818 P street northwest; Harry L. Shelby, 3922 Morrison street northwest; Henry W. Sohon, Union Trust Building; and C. Howie Young, of Philadelphia.

Counsel for the Riggs National Bank explained the bank is included as a party only because of the consolidation of the Farmers & Mechanics National Bank with it in December, 1928. The general counsel of the bank is familiar with the matter and is of the opinion that there is no liability whatever, it was said.

Eliot School Grounds Contract Let.

A contract for the improvement of the grounds at the Charles W. Eliot School was awarded by the District Commissioners yesterday to M. Cain, Inc., of Wasnington, on a low bid of $21,000.

Assault Charged Over Auto Crash

Car Is Described as "Dangerous Weapon" in Indictment.

William Alexander Padgett and Albert J. Coleman were charged with assault with a dangerous weapon in an indictment returned yesterday by the grand jury.

They were riding in an automobile which struck Orville B. Garlitz, while driving on Livingston road southeast, on December 21. Garlitz lost a leg as a result of the accident and also suffered a broken back and broken collar bone.

There are several precedents here for indictments charging assault with a dangerous weapon where an automobile constitutes the weapon.

AUTOS' AUGUST TOLL 7 DEAD, 267 INJURED

Number of Victims of Motor Accidents Higher Than in Past Two Years.

A total of 568 automobile accidents, which caused seven deaths and 267 minor injuries, were reported during August, it was announced at police headquarters yesterday.

The greatest number of crashes recorded in one day was on Friday, August 7, when there were 36. The accidents caused one death and thirteen minor injuries.

The records show that out of the 31 days in August the number of accidents per day in the District of Columbia never fell below the dozen mark except for two days, with eleven crashes on each of these.

In August of last year 657 auto accidents resulted in 6 deaths and 223 minor injuries, while in the same month in 1929 there were 430 crashes which caused 6 deaths and 223 minor injuries.

Cases in which property damage resulted from auto accidents were considerably fewer this August than for the same period last year. In August, 1930, there were 443 such cases, while the figure this year dropped to 335. During the same month in 1929 the property damage cases stood at 229.

The total number of arrests leading to convictions for traffic violations during August, this year, stood at 27.57.

Driver Indicted in Death Of Boy, 11, in Auto Crash

Paul Leslie Blackmer, 7059 Blair road northwest, was indicted on a charge of manslaughter yesterday. He was the driver of an automobile that struck a machine driven by Webster Downing, patent attorney, of 520 Rittenhouse street northwest, in which Downing's 8-year-old son, Carter, was a passenger.

Carter was fatally injured in the collision, which occurred at the corner of Fifth and Rittenhouse streets northwest August 11.

Couple Indicted Under Mann Act.

Walter R. Roberts and his wife, Pauline, were indicted yesterday for violations of the white slave act. They were charged with having brought three girls here from Macon, Ga., for immoral purposes.

REAL ESTATE MAN IS SUICIDE VICTIM

George G. Brown Kills Himself in Presence of His Wife.

George G. Brown, 57-year-old real estate man and prominent in horse racing circles, shot himself to death early today in his second-floor apartment at 1907 Pennsylvania avenue northwest. His wife, Mrs. Jeanette Brown, saw him fire one shot into his mouth from an old make pistol.

An Emergency Hospital surgeon, who responded with the ambulance which answered the wife's summons, pronounced Brown dead. His mother-in-law, Mrs. Minerva Westcott, also was in the apartment, asleep, when the shot was fired.

Mrs. Brown said that her husband and she were planning to move to Bethesda, Md., soon and that he and John Blackstone, his colored odd job man, were packing up the furniture yesterday when Brown gave Blackstone $5 and asked him to go out and buy him a pistol.

The colored man returned to the house without the gun, explaining that he could not buy one for less than $11. Brown then instructed him to clean out his old pistol, the one with which he shot himself several hours later.

The victim was at one time associated with the firm of Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey and prior to that owned a racing stable. He underwent an operation about a year ago and had not fully recovered. He was restless all day yesterday, Mrs. Brown said.

Indictment for Shooting Parking Row Aftermath

A dispute over a parking space that led to the shooting of William M. Taylor, an employe of the Industrial Home department of the Salvation Army, on July 7, was taken into the District Supreme Court yesterday when the grand jury indicted Robert E. Turner.

Taylor was not seriously injured.

ARCHIVES BUILDING SITE TO BE BROKEN IN CEREMONY TODAY

Assistant Secretary Heath of Treasury Department to Turn the Spade.

U. S. PROGRAM ENTERS ON ITS SECOND STAGE

Other Locations to Be Prepared for Furtherance of Construction.

With the breaking of ground on the site of the Archives Building, new Government structure which will house valuable and permanent records of all departments, scheduled to take place this morning at Ninth and Pennsylvania avenue, the Federal Government entered the second stage of its triangle building program which, when completed, will mark the expenditure of more than $100,000,000 and relocate virtually every division of the Federal machinery.

The ceremony will include the turning of a spadeful of earth on the new site and a speech on the significance of the occasion by Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Ferry K. Heath, in charge of the building program. Although no formal invitations have been sent out it was explained at the Treasury yesterday that all organizations and the general public are invited to attend.

With the work started on the Archives Building the Government construction program will be steadily pushed to completion.

Other Sites to Be Cleared.

Sites will soon be cleared for the work on the Interstate Commerce Commission, Department of Labor and the Auditorium buildings, which will be constructed as one unit and will fill the area between Internal Revenue Building and the Department of Commerce Building.

In addition to this group, Government strucutres soon to be started include the Public Health Building, Constitution avenue between Nineteenth and Twentieth streets, which will be erected at a cost of $865,000. The foundations are at present being laid. The extensible building of the Department of Agriculture, which is to cost $12,800,000, will go up between Twelfth and Fourteenth streets, Constitution avenue and C street. One wing of this structure is at present being constructed, while the remainder is in the drawing stage.

On Capitol Hill the office of the architect of the Capitol, David Lynn, is supervising the construction of a new Supreme Court Building, an addition to the House Office Building, and the erection of a fourth wing on the Senate Office Building as well as minor improvements to the new Capitol grounds which have been more than doubled in area. In addition to this, an annex and extension will be built for the Congressional Library.

To Relocate Gardens.

The new Supreme Court Building will cost $9,740,000 and was designed by Cass Gilbert, of New York. It will go up between First and Second streets, East Capitol street and Maryland avenue. The Library extension and annex will cost $6,500,000.

Due to the intersection of Constitution avenue and the Capitol grounds it will be necessary to relocate the Botanic Gardens which is being done at a cost of $876,398 following the design of Bennet Parsons & Frost, of New York.

Model Aircraft Title Is Won by E. Grannis

Youth Is Named Ranking Silver Ace; Wiehle Leads Pilots.

Edward Grannis, 1618 Kennedy place northwest, was named ranking silver ace of the District of Columbia Model Aircraft League yesterday at a luncheon held at the Macfarland Junior High School following the completion of the indoor events of the model aircraft tournament. The large silver trophy donated by the Aviation School of America was won by Grannis in the final event of a four-day competition from the defending champion, Frank Salisbury, 1024 Vermont avenue northwest, and was presented by Commissioner Luther A. Reichelderfer in the presence of Government aviation officials, Army fliers and Community Center leaders.

In the pilot class first honors were divided by Robert Wiehle, 2612 Cathedral avenue northwest, and Blair Bennett, 1410 M street northwest, both of whom totaled 27 points. Three points behind the pair came Morris Krucoff, 100 Sixth street southeast, with a score of 24 points.

One new tournament record was established yesterday when Frank Salisbury won the glider event, his model staying up for eighteen and two-fifth seconds.

Roger Smith, 5505 Eighth street northwest, was the only easy winner of the tournament, taking first in the junior pilots class, while his nearest competitor was eight points in the rear.

Besides the silver cup presented to Grannis the winners in each division received gold strap watches while all point scorers received a monogram of the District Model Aircraft League.

The Team Championship Trophy was won by the Capital Club, which, by this year's victory, gained permanent possession of the cup, having also won it in 1929 and 1930. Frank Salisbury received the award for his club.

Yesterday's best flight was turned in by Frank Salisbury, the defending champion, who put his model seaplane into the air for 2 minutes and 31 seconds.

In the true-scale model event, in which each ship competing must be an accurate reproduction of a present-day airplane, Salisbury also took first honors when his plane stayed up 1 minute and 26 seconds.

EDWARD GRANNIS.

Officials at the luncheon included Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, former chief of the Army Air Corps and chairman of the advisory board of the Model Aircraft League.

CAPITAL SUSPECTED AS CAR-THEFT LINK

Philadelphia Holds Man With Titles to Stolen Autos in Pocket.

Washington was pictured as a link in what police suspect will prove a national automobile theft agency with the arrest in Philadelphia yesterday of Charles E. Weaver, jr., 30, with titles to Washington cars on his person, according to word received here last night.

Police here said they had not been advised of Weaver's arrest, and had no lookout for the man. He was held in $10,000 bail in Philadelphia yesterday and will be given another hearing in Philadelphia City Hall in two weeks, when members of the State Motor Registration Commission will appear.

Philadelphia authorities said the man had titles to cars stolen in Omaha, Nebr., St. Louis, Mo., and Washington, July 19, 21 and August 18, respectively. A Philadelphia dealer charged that more than $100,000 worth of cars Weaver had attempted to sell him were stolen by an "agency."

According to Philadelphia police, the scheme involved transportation of automobiles from one State to another, where an old car would be purchased and a bill of sale obtained. The serial number of the junked car would be transferred to the good one.

WARDMAN ANSWER IN SUIT IS ORDERED

September 14 Set as Limit for Defenders in Receivership Case.

Leslie M. Shaw, Secretary of the Treasury in the Roosevelt administration, yesterday won his fight to compel the Wardman Real Estate Properties, Inc., Halsey, Stuart & Co., and the Central Hanover Trust Co. of New York to file a formal answer to his suit by which he hopes to eject the three receivers who were appointed to take over and manage the Wardman Properties.

Justice F. D. Letts yesterday ordered the defendants to file their answers by September 14, and at the same time he overruled a motion by the defendants to dismiss Mr. Shaw's suit. The three present receivers are Joseph P. Tumulty, Thomas D. Carson and Julius I. Peyser.

They were appointed by Justice James Proctor when the Wardman concern failed to object to a request by the Central Hanover Bank to have receivers appointed to take over the Wardman properties because of a default in interest payments on an $11,000,000 bond issue.

Mr. Shaw had previously filed a suit to have receivers appointed, and his suit was dismissed with leave to file an amended bill within ten days. Before that time expired, the bank went into court and had three receivers appointed.

RITCHIE IS TO RIDE WITH HEADS OF CITY IN FIREMEN'S RANKS

OLD FIRE APPARATUS TO VIE WITH MODERN

Floats and 8,000 Uniformed Visitors Will Add to Color of Event.

With Labor Day and its accompanying red letter activities of the Fire Department a scant 48 hours away, the fire fighting personnel of the District, under the guiding hand of Sergt. A. J. Bargagni, bustled along today putting the finishing touches on plans for the spectacular parade Monday.

The procession, in which the District Commissioners and Gov. Albert C. Ritchie are to ride, will find in its ranks, besides the numerous floats of the District Fire Department, approximately 8,000 firemen from outside the Capital, many of whom will bring their apparatus with them.

Pomp and glitter, memory and pathos, blare and drum roll all have been welded into the yearly march. Sergt. Bargagni, who for many years has been marshal and director, has striven this year to outdo his "productions" of the past and predicts success for his aim.

Over Old-Time Route.

The parade, which will cover the time-honored route up Pennsylvania avenue from the Peace Monument, will get under way promptly at 10:30 a. m. Monday.

Many thousands of holiday visitors are expected to swell the crowds of District residents who yearly line Pennsylvania avenue to cheer the parading fire-fighters. Hotels and restaurants expect a rushing business from the throngs.

A Marine band from the "sea soldier" base at Quantico, Va., will head the parade and will be followed by Sergt. Bargagni as official director and marshal. Next will ride the District Commissioners and a committee from the Washington Board of Trade. Directly behind the District officials will be Gov. Ritchie, escorted by members of the Volunteer State Firemen's Association, the District Firemen's Association, the Sixth Marine Brigade and Band (both reserve organizations), and the District Fire Department Drum Corps.

Mammoth Key Float.

Following the official section of the procession will be a colorful float, bearing a mammoth gold key, symbolic of the welcome accorded the visiting firemen by the local "smoke eaters." Miss Mildred Bargagni, daughter of the grand marshal, will ride with "the key to the city," in her capacity as hostess to the fire laddies.

Then, mile after mile of floats, brilliant fire apparatus, musical outfits, clowns and jesters, will pass before the assembled crowds. A gesture from the fire-fighting days of yore will be provided by the participation in the line of march by Barney, Gene and Tom, beloved fire horses of another era, who are enjoying their old age in a nearby pastureage.

Old Columbia, hand-drawn pump engine of 1850 vintage, will be well up in the forefront. The fire fighting relic will be drawn by a delegation from the Oldest Inhabitants Association.

Visitors From Far Off.

From as far North as up-State New York, as far South as North Carolina and as far West as Ohio, volunteer and city firemen will join the marchers. Considerable Maryland and Virginia apparatus and personnel will swell the procession. Fire outfits from New Jersey, Delaware, West Virginia and Pennsylvania are also to be in the parade.

The other banner events of the day are the policemen-firemen game at the Griffith Stadium in the afternoon and a band and bugle contest at the Ellipse. Both attractions are to start at 3 o'clock and plans are being made for huge crowds.

For the "shut-ins" and others unable to witness the day's doings, Station WJSV has arranged to broadcast the highlights of the parade, the ball game and the band and bugle contest.

Prizes will be awarded the most artistic, the "most unique" and the funniest floats in the parade. Awards will also be made for other ideas embodied by marching organizations, as well as in the band and bugle contest.

Three Are Indicted In Taxicab Killing

Jury Returns Bill on Slaying of Cabman; Theft Held Aim.

Three Negroes alleged to have shot and killed Mannie Solomon, taxi driver, as they were attempting to rob him, were indicted yesterday by the District grand jury on murder charges.

They are William Clinton Robinson, Charles Edward Washington and and Leonard A. Layton. The trio admitted, police said, that they held Solomon up at Union and O streets southwest on the night of July 29. The cab driver resisted attempts to rob him, it was held, and was shot. All three Negroes were arrested within a week of the shooting.

Another first-degree murder indictment was returned when Lajoie A. Cooper, Negro, was charged with killing Joseph Edwards, Negro, June 30, in an argument over a small amount of money.

Narcotic Law Violation Charged to Physician

Charged with violating the Harrison narcotic act, Dr. Bittle Cornelius Keister, 72 years old, of 3461 Fourteenth street northwest, was arrested last night by Detective Sergts. R. A. Sanders and D. H. Jones, of the headquarters narcotic squad.

Dr. Keister was taken to police headquarters, where he was formally charged and later released under $3,000 bond. He was taken into custody on complaint of J. O. Crowley, Federal revenue agent.

Gordon and King Indicted in Assault

Pair Accused of Beating Alleged Assailants of Mrs. Ann Sparks.

Two indictments, each charging them with assault with a dangerous weapon, were returned against William H. Gordon and Thomas King yesterday.

The indictments charge that the pair beat William P. Dermott and Howell R. Bouldin in a garage in the rear of Eighteenth and Calvert streets northwest, August 1. Testimony before the grand jury was to the effect that Gordon, who is also known as Jordon, and King took a blackjack and a piece of pipe and severely beat the two others.

The incident grew out of the accident that befell Mrs. Ann Sparks, who died at Sibley Hospital of injuries she received when an automobile struck her on the Bladensburg road. Boulden and Dermott were riding in an automobile with her that night, and when she told a story that she had been thrown from an automobile, King and Gordon attacked the pair.

Fireman Is Injured In Repair Shop Fire

A fireman was injured last night battling flames which caused slight damage to a shoe repair shop at 2064 Mills avenue northeast.

The fireman, Charles Padgett, 36 years old, of 1513 Neal street northeast, was cut on the left leg by falling glass. Charles Azzarillo, who operates the repair shop, estimated the damage at $500, which he said was not covered by insurance. Cause of the fire was undetermined.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

MURDER IN THE BUSINESS BELT.

"COME, come, tell us why you shot him?" demanded Inspector Grimes, as he grilled Leslie P. Pommox for a killing that had stirred the business district.

"I blame it all on the magazine," declared Pommox grimly.

"What magazine?"

"One of those confession magazines. You know the kind. Full of the how-I-did-it stories by boys who made good in the city," said Pommox.

"Go on. Tell us all!" urged the inspector.

"Well," said Pommox, "I'm a business man or ain't I?"

"There's no telling these days," replied the Inspector, with a note of sarcasm.

"Well, anyhow, I'm supposed to be a business man," resumed Pommox, "and I'm sitting in my elaborately furnished office with my feet on the desk waiting for something to turn up. In other words, doing just what I've been doing for the last two years."

"I understand," nodded the Inspector.

"I'm tilted back in my chair half asleep."

"ONLY half asleep?" asked the Inspector, who knew something about the situation in business these days.

"Well, three-quarters," replied Pommox.

"Three-quarters?" asked the Inspector, doubtingly.

"Oh, call it seven-eighths," agreed Pommox. "Anyhow, everything was so quiet and peaceful I could hear Steel drop. Not a sound except the clock ticking. Gazing out of the windows I could look into dozens of offices and see everything that went on in them."

"What went on?" asked Inspector Grimes.

"Nothing. Didn't I say this was in the heart of the business belt," explained Pommox. "Everybody's asleep like me. There's one man, the executive of a big copper company, who's been sitting there like that for five days. I think he may even be dead."

"Go on, let's get down to the shooting," urged tthe Inspector.

"Well, I'm sitting there in a blue funk, thinking of the old days when the telephone might ring or somebody knock on the door or something. I'm so lonesome I'd welcome a wrong number. Bear in mind I haven't seen a customer in so long I'd jump if one entered. Things are so bad I'm even thinking of disconnecting the phone and selling some office rugs I bought in 1929. Then it happens."

"What?"

"He comes in."

"Who?"

"The fellow I killed."

"Who was he?"

"A writer for the confession magazine."

"What happened?"

"He gave me his card and asked for an interview. The minute he asked his first question everything went black. The next thing I knew I had shot him."

"What was the question?"

"He asked me," said Pommox fiercely, "to what I attributed my SUCCESS IN BUSINESS!"

Features in Tomorrow's Post

Labor Day! Of interest to all Washington and all the Nation. In tomorrow's tabloid magazine there is a timely and forceful story of the origin of this red letter day for the workingman. It deals also with the progress which has been made toward better working conditions since the idea of Labor Day was first conceived. Everyone will find much of interest in this feature.

"Ringless Capital Wants Boxing" is the title of a well-written, fascinating yarn by Shirley Povich, sporting editor of The Post, in which the history of the ring game in the Capital is traced. It is a story with a humorous twist and yet full of facts which will please every sport fan in the city.

The wonders of another world always appeal to the imagination. In the magazine will be found a story called "Go South, Young Man, Go South," in which the advantages of the Argentine are spread before Americans. It is a tale of progress and modern methods in a country about which few residents of the United States know a great deal.

David Rankin Barbee has another of his splendid feature articles in the magazine concerning one of the little-sung experts in governmental service. There will be Helen and Warren, William Lyon Phelps, The Counselor, H. I. Phillips and others who are close to Post readers and whose weekly contributions are awaited eagerly.

Tax Exemption Plan Opposed.

Editor The Washington Post:

Your editorial of August 31 on the proposed tax exemption of the first $2,000 of income is timely and sound. Such a proposal is unjust and unsound. It would be unjust to the vast majority of taxpayers who would be required to pay the entire cost of the Government. It would be unsound because it would encourage extravagance in Government expenditures.

Under the present law the first $2,000 of income of a married person is exempt from taxation. The first $400 of income of a single person is exempt from taxation. Under the present law the first $4,000 of income of a married person is taxed at the rate of 1½ per cent. The first $4,000 of income of a single person is taxed at the rate of 3 per cent.
